Thornburgh "looking" for new ag secretary

Governor Dick Thornburgh and former state Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell, in happier times.

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

HARRISBURG — The search is on for a new state secretary of agriculture to serve in the remaining 21 months of the Thornburgh Administration.

Penrose Hallowell, Thornburgh's Ag secretary for the first six years of the administration, resigned Wednesday, following his conviction on retail theft charges stemming from an alleged shoplifting incident Sept 1

Hallowell, a wealthy Bucks County farmer, allegedly placed a $4.99 tape recording in his pants pocket and walked out of the store without paying for the item.

Both a District Justice and a Common Pleas court judge have rejected Hallowell's argument that he did not intend to steal the tape, but absent-mindedly placed it in his pocket.

Knowledgeable sources in Harrisburg say the governor will try to find someone to fill the admittedly short-lived position. In the meantime, he has elevated one of Hallowell's deputy secretaries, George F. Grode, as acting secretary.

Grode, formerly the Deputy Secretary for Policy and Planning, served as the governor's liaison during the recent avian influenza outbreak.

Grode, said Thornburgh's Press Secretary David Runkel, "is not a candidate for the permanent appointment."

The search for a full-time secretary will go on, he added, and the governor hopes to find a nominee within the month.

Speculation around the capital centered on a number of former legislators who have expressed interest in farming, sources noted It was thought unlikely that a sitting assemblyman would give up an elected post to accept the short-term appointment.

Runkel noted that the governor did not have any conditions the new secretary would have to fill, other than that he would be "knowledgeable on agricultural issues."

Asked if the governor would try to nominate a candidate who, like Hallowell, was a farmer, Runkel said, "the search is not limited to farmers."

Some insiders commented that the governor might be tempted to let the department rest in the hands of a "caretaker" like Grode

However, farming organizations and interest groups have been pushing the case for a full-time, activist secretary that has the confidence, and the ear, of the governor

U.S. to impose duties on Canadian pork?

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Commerce Department has set the stage for imposition of import duties on Canadian hogs, officials here say.

The department has announced that it has reached a preliminary determination that payments from Canadian federal and provincial governments, in effect, are unfair subsidies to that country's pork producers.

Perhaps more importantly, the department required that Canadian pork producers begin posting a bond equal to the amount of the subsidy on all pork imported into this country after April 2.

The plea for Commerce Department intervention was filed last November by the National Pork Producers Council.

Although the immediate impact of the ruling has not been felt, the action could slow the flood of Canadian imports which tripled in 1984 and drove down prices in the ailing pork producing industry.

The preliminary decision is not a final ruling, officials said, and must stand up under in-depth department scrutiny, and review by the International Trade Commission.

The ITC recently conducted its own investigation on the complaint by the NPPC, and reached conclusions that are considered

Who's pitching for NE dairymen?

BY WENDY WEHR

BALTIMORE, Md — The Northeast dairy farmers are coming to bat in Washington this year with three strikes against them. Low priority for the 1985 Farm Bill, relative financial stability in the dairy industry, and lack of Northeast representation will add up to one, two, three, and may leave the Northeast dairymen out of the Washington Farm Bill game

In a sort of spring training for the season, more than 175 Northeast dairy industry leaders gathered in Baltimore this week for the Northeast Dairy Conference. As they took a look at dairy policy, the conference speakers were honest about the Northeast dairymen's prospects in the game in Washington.

"The Farm Bill is a real side issue that has very little priority with the Administration and Congress," said Dr. Kenneth Robinson, a Cornell University ag economist, who spoke about the process and the politics that will shape dairy policy this year

The deficit, defense, tax reform and, particularly, trade deficits will dominate the Washington scene Robinson said that a compromise on the Farm Bill may simply be a by-product of votes being traded on other issues. Strike one.

Diary leaders address the economic impact of bovine growth hormone. See page A26.

And among the farm policy issues, dairy is a side issue as well, said Robinson. "You're an island of calm in a sea of distress," he told the dairy industry leaders. Policy makers will be preoccupied with the commodities that are suffering on the export market.

Wayne Boutwell of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives concurred with Robinson "We're out of the market in every single commodity," he stated as he reviewed the multi-billion dollar drop in U.S ag exports in the last five years

Boutwell proposed that the three policies that now guide farm programs — support of farm income and prices, maintenance of adequate supplies of food and fiber, and orderly marketing and distribution of farm products — should be rounded out with a fourth policy — assuring that the United States is competitive in world markets.

Also admitting that dairy is not in the first string of Farm Bill issues, was James Jeffords, U.S. Congressman from Vermont, and ranking minority Republican on the dairy subcommittee. "Though dairy is respected,"

Pa. Bull Test Sale

The Pa. Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center held its Performance Tested Bull Sale in the Ag Arena for the first time this year

According to the test program's director Glenn Eberly, good weather, new facilities and a large crowd all contributed to this year's higher prices.

See Lancaster Farming's sale report on page A 24.

Jersey meeting

Jersey breeders from across the state met last weekend in Tioga County for a full schedule of annual meeting activities.

Full coverage of the Pa. Jersey Cattle Club annual business meeting and banquet, queen contest, and annual calf sale, can be found on page A22.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

April 8-14, 1985

Though winds are still, the air is chill.

Plant trees and shrubs now Average length of days for the week, 13 hours, 11 minutes Last quarter of the moon, April 11 (Thurs.) President Franklin D Roosevelt died April 12, 1945 John Rolfe married Pocahontas, April 14, 1614

You can live well whether you're rich or poor, but it's cheaper if you're poor

Ask the Old Farmer: I noticed that cows feeding in the pasture are all facing the same way Is there a reason for this? J W H , Springfield, Ill

Yup Cows swing like weathervanes, to head the wind Otherwise the wind roughs up their fur and they don't like it They'll point any which way on windless days

Home Hints Leave mud spatters until they have dried then remove by brushing

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Beginning through midweek mild end of week cold, with rain south, snow in mountains

Greater New York-New Jersey Sunny and mild with possible sprinkles at week's beginning, midweek sunny and warm, end of week cold with moderate to heavy rain, snow in north

Middle Atlantic Coastal Week begins partly cloudy and warm, by midweek clear and warm, end of week brings snow, sleet, and rain

To Control Wild Garlic

Dairy farmers who pasture their milking herd have the most to lose if they do not eliminate wild garlic from their pasture fields. This fast growing wild onion is already growing in pastures and other grass areas.

The young plants are much easier to kill with herbicides than mature plants. We suggest that the plants be sprayed very soon with 2,4-D. This has proven effective in keeping the young plants from maturing; by spraying early in the spring the legumes in the pasture area will not be injured.

Since the wild garlic plant is very well rooted, it may take several sprays over a period of two or more years to eliminate the weed from the area. Don't wait until the plants are mature to make this spray application. Follow label directions when applying any pesticide.

To Store Undelivered Tobacco

A number of tobacco growers have not delivered their '84 crop and need to store the bales on the above ground floor of a tobacco shed or barn. It's important to place some two by fours or similar size lumber under the bales to allow for air circulation. Then put the bales only 2 or 3 high to reduce fermentation from squeezing pressure.

Cover the top layer of bales to keep them clean of bird droppings and dirt. Use old tobacco muslin covers, canvas tarps or loose material, not air-tight. Avoid tight plastic. Air should move freely around the bales.

Be certain no water drips on the stored bales or wind driven rain blows on them.

To Operate Machinery sensibly

Farmers are always in a big hurry when the good spring weather arrives. As a result, they operate their tractors and other machinery at too high a speed. This presents safety hazards and is the cause of too many accidents. Grain drills and corn planters are designed for accurate planting, if operated at a normal rate of speed. Often in the rush of things, we travel too fast and the planting job is disappointing.

We urge farmers to take the time to properly prepare and adjust their machinery and then drive at a speed that will give good performance. With many pieces of machinery the speed is listed on the manufacturer's directions. Take time to be safe and not sorry.

To Avoid Herbicide Residues

Evidence is showing us that residues of atrazine, simazine and to a lesser extent, bladex, are affecting subsequent crops in the rotation following corn. Even though no visual symptoms are evident, the sub-lethal residues still present in corn field soils, are lowering yields of small grain and alfalfa. Consequently, we must make efforts to reduce herbicide carryover.

- Soil test prior to the last year of corn in the rotation. Then apply all the lime recommended before the corn is planted. Liming will release any atrazine, simazine, bladex still tied up in the soil and help control corn crop weeds.
- Use a low residue herbicide program avoiding the triazines (above). Lasso and Dual would be choices to consider.
- To control broadleaf weeds that might escape, Banvel should be applied as a follow up.

Delaware offers "U-Pick" booklet

NEWARK, DE – Each year more farmers and gardeners start U-pick operations to market seasonal fruits and vegetables. Though this is generally a fast, economical way to sell fresh produce, success depends very much on skillful management.

The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service publication, "Management of Pick-Your-Own Marketing Operations," covers all aspects of running a U-pick business in the northeastern U.S.

The 66-page booklet includes tips on planning, organizing, publicizing and operating this type of venture.

It tells how to identify and reach potential customers, schedule production and lay out fields, design facilities such as parking and check-out systems, set prices, deal with customers and employees, and reduce the risk of accidents.

Single copies are available for $1. To order, write: Mail Room, Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19717-1303.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

LIFE: BEFORE AND AFTER DEATH
April 7, 1985

Background Scripture:
John 20:1-23.

Devotional Reading:
John 20:19-23.

Michael B. Sabom is a medical doctor. In his Recollections of Death (Simon & Schuster, 1982) he says, "Although I had been raised in a churchgoing family, I had always tried to keep religious and scientific doctrines separate... Unscientific – that I would never be."

Challenged to participate in a program on Dr. Raymond B. Moody's book, Life After Life, for a local Methodist church, Dr. Sabom tried to bow out, indicating that he was highly dubious of Dr. Moody's claims that patients with "near death" experiences "came back" with convictions that they had encountered a life beyond death.

In order to prove Moody wrong, Dr. Sabom decided to conduct his own investigation with his own "near death" patients under scientific controls which would stand up under critical scrutiny. But Sabom's findings were quite different from what he expected them to be: his own patients seemed to confirm Dr. Moody's findings. He ended up writing of his experience and conclusions and his book, Recollections of Death, is a convincing chronicle of evidence that seems to indicate support for the belief in a life after death.

LIFE-CHANGING

One of the things he found in his study – and this comfirmed what Dr. Moody and others had found – was that these experiences of "near-death" (actually, the patients were "clinically dead" and resuscitated) usually have a profound effect upon their lives. Almost always they are "life-chan[illegible]nces. Assured that there is a [illegible]nd this or on earth seems to make difference in the way they return to live life in the here and now.

Actually, that is also the most important thing about the Easter faith in Jesus Christ. It is, of course, wonderful and marvelous that Christ rose from the dead. But that, by itself, would be nothing more than an item in Ripley's "Believe It or Not" if it were not for the fact that the resurrection of Christ has something of the utmost of importance to say about how and why we live before death.

I HAVE SEEN THE LORD!

When at last the disciples of Jesus finally grasped that he was risen from the tomb, it was a recognition that utterly transformed their lives. By raising Jesus from the dead, God had shown once and for all that He is in charge of this world and our lives. Evil people had done their very worst to defeat Jesus, but God vindicated him when he demonstrated that death does not have the last word.

The disciples of Jesus realized that, even if the enemies of God killed them for preaching the gospel, neither they nor the gospel would be snuffed-out by such an act of violence. Their assurance of a life after death, radically transformed the meaning and impact of their lives before death.

That is why the Easter message is the most important good news of all time.

Send SCS column to White House

The article in Joyce Bupp's column of March 16, 1985 concerning the necessary and exemplary work done by Soil Conservationists certainly expressed some thoughts that needed to be said.

Perhaps it would not be amiss to send a copy to the President whose administration has recently proposed the elimination of the SCS in its budget-cutting plans, a difficult scheme indeed to fathom.

Joyce Bupp's column has always been a pleasure to read for her "earthy" humor and understanding.

Wenger's tax-relief bill approved by Senate

HARRISBURG – Sen. Noah Wenger, (R-36), has announced the unanimous Senate passage of a bill he authored that would provide tax relief to family-owned farms in Pennsylvania.

The legislation, Senate Bill 246, would exempt family farms from having to pay a state realty transfer tax when the farm is transferred from a sole proprietor family member to a family farm corporation.

"Under current law," Wenger stated, "the owner of a farm is required to pay a one percent state realty transfer tax when the owner forms a family corporation. This bill would eliminate that tax and make forming a corporation more attractive to family-owned farms."

In most cases, forming corporations is advantageous to farmers because it provides them with tax relief once they become incorporated, Wenger added.

To ensure that the legislation is used for the purpose intended, the senator said a requirement has been built in specifically stating that none of the family farm corporation's stock can be sold to a non-family member.

"If that happens within a period of ten years after the farm is incorporated, the tax exemption status would be lost and the corporation would have to pay the transfer fee," Wenger explained.

The approved bill is similar to a Wenger-sponsored measure approved during the last session of the General Assembly that provided incorporating family farms with a tax exemption on the local realty transfer tax.

"I am confident that this bill will continue to move through the legislature and that we will soon be able to offer the family farm a much-deserved break in the payment of taxes," Wenger concluded.

Crop Insurance deadline set for April 15

LEHIGHTON – April 15 is the last day to apply for Crop Insurance for corn, grain sorghum, oats, soybeans, tobacco and potatoes in Pennsylvania, according to William Foose, a representative of Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC).

Crop Insurance covers unavoidable loss of production resulting from adverse weather conditions, wildlife, earthquake, or fire.

"Three coverage levels (50, 65, or 75 percent) are available for insurance protection. Additionally, FCIC offers three optional price elections for valuing production lost or damaged," says Foose.

A new Crop Insurance plan, called Actual Production History (APH), is available this year to producers of corn, grain sorghum, peanuts, cotton, and rice. Producers of these crops may now qualify for higher yield guarantees by proving their yield history. Rates have been developed to offer reduced premium for producers with above-average yields. "This change could sharply reduce the cost of carrying Crop Insurance," says Foose.

To find out more about the APH plan, producers should contact a local, authorized agent. To select an agent, producers may check the list of agents at their local ASCS office.

Don't send an ordinary herbicide to do a tough herbicide's job.

Send Eradicane® Extra.

Selective Herbicide

Any cornfield with a history of heavy infestations of hard-to-control weeds is the wrong territory for an ordinary herbicide. You have to call in the specialist, Eradicane Extra, the preplant specially designed to give you consistent, dependable control of the toughest weeds in corn.

Eradicane Extra, tank-mixed with atrazine or Bladex,* is tough enough to knock out rough weeds like quackgrass, nutsedge and velvetleaf. And wild cane, Johnsongrass, fall panicum, foxtails, and many other grasses and broadleaves.

This spring, for the best control of the tough weeds in corn, send in the tough weed specialist, Eradicane Extra.

End of price supports could disrupt dairy economy

ITHACA, NY – President Reagan's plan to eliminate the dairy price-support program would cause severe disruption to the nation's dairy industry, says a Cornell University agricultural economist.

"It would set in motion a barrage of new free-market forces in an industry which has been largely protected from such things," says Andrew Novakovic, an assistant professor of agricultural economics in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

The Reagan administration proposes ending the government's current practice of buying surplus dairy products by October 1987 and replacing the traditional support program with a direct payments program. Reagan's plan has been received cooly by both congressional agricultural policy leaders and dairy farmers.

Currently, surplus milk can be processed into cheese, butter, and nonfat dry milk – products which the government stands ready to buy at preset prices if they are not sold otherwise. In turn, these government purchase prices support farmers' milk prices. In 1987, under Reagan's plan, the government would cease being a buyer.

"Long before October 1987 arrives, cheese and butter manufacturers would begin scrambling, trying to line up new buyers for their products, because the federal government would no longer be a buyer," Novakovic says. "Some would find new markets, but at lower prices since other processors would try to do the same thing. It would become a buyer's market."

"If dairy product manufacturers earn less for their products, naturally the milk price would fall, too," Novakovic notes.

This decline in farm milk prices, however, would be somewhat offset or limited by a new government program of direct payments based on a target price. Under this new program, dairy farmers would receive a direct subsidy if farm prices fell below the target price.

The Reagan plan calls for target prices substantially lower than current support levels. So, farm prices might have to fall from the current $13 per hundredweight to $10 or less before [illegible] would be made. In addition, total payments to each farmer would be limited to $20,000 per year in the first year and would decline to $10,000 per year on October 1, 1989. This target-price program would begin on October 1, 1987.

"Critics of this proposal have charged that the proposed target prices and payment limits would be so low as to be meaningless and ineffective," Novakovic says. "The administration defends the aproach by arguing that a farm economy without heavy intervention will be a healthier industry in the long run."

Established by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the milk support price places a floor price under the farm price for 100 pounds of milk (approximately 11.6 gallons). Recently farm prices have been supported at levels that have resulted in more milk being produced than can be consumed commercially. The government has purchased the excess in the form of manufactured dairy products, thus holding farm prices up.

The milk diversion program, which had no effect on the support price itself, was instituted in January 1984. It pays farmers $10 per hundredweight for decreasing the amount of milk they market relative to what they had marketed in an earlier base period. In addition, the government collects a 50 cents assessment per hundredweight of all milk sold; assessments of one form or another began in April 1983.

In April 1985, the milk diversion program will end; farmers will no longer be paid for reducing milk sales. The 50 cent assessment is also ending at that time, and with it a reduction by USDA of the milk support price from $12.60 to $12.10 per hundredweight is expected.

For dairy farmers, the dropping of the assessment on their milk will balance the decrease in the support price. But come this summer, another 50 cent decrease in the support price is almost a certainty, according to Novakovic.

Further price cuts are likely, even if the Reagan plan is not adopted, Novakovic predicts. At this point, Congress will more likely be receptive to revising the traditional price support and product purchase program. Nonetheless, getting production back in line with consumption may necessitate further price cuts.

"Any new method of setting dairy price supports should be flexible, perhaps equipped with upper and lower limits, and it should reflect changes in supply and demand conditions," Novakovic emphasizes.

Broiler chicks need more vitamin D3, study says

COLLEGE PARK, MD – How much vitamin D3 should broiler producers feed their young chicks?

According to a new study from the University of Maryland's department of poultry science, they should get twice the amount recommended by the National Research Council.

"Our data show that feeding the current NRC recommendation of 200 IU of vitamin D3 per kilogram of diet results in lower overall performance of newly-hatched to eight-week-old broiler chicks," says Jimmy T. Lofton, the principal researcher in the study.

Lofton and his graduate advisor, Dr. Joseph H. Soares, Jr., recommend instead a dose of 400 IU per kilogram of diet to produce optimal results in young broiler chicks.

Some commercial producers feed their young chicks five to 10 times the NRC requirements, anticipating greater than optimal results.

While the practice does not seem to cause adverse effects, Lofton and Soares' data show that such "overdosing" of vitamin D3 produces no beneficial effects in young broilers.

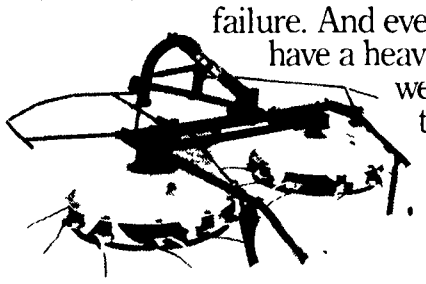
Broilers fed less than 200 IU of vitamin D3 per kilogram of diet may suffer from lower body weight, take in less food, and lose strength in the bones in their legs, according to the study.

THE VICON SYSTEM. MAKE IT WORK FOR YOU.

Sometimes it seems we spend half our lives fighting the system. But there's one system that's always on your side—the Vicon Haying System.

With a Vicon KM Mower/Conditioner, one of our heavy-duty hay rakes or tedders, and a new Vicon Square Baler, you can make hay faster, better and more economically.

The KM 321, for instance, is the fastest mower/conditioner in the world. It's 30 percent faster than conventional mower/conditioners. A new drive unit lets you operate non-stop. Take square corners without drive line vibration or danger of failure. And even if you have a heavy, dew-wet crop, the KM 321 won't plug, and won't leave you worrying about leaf loss.



The Vicon line of tedder/rakes are just as efficient in their own right. They're versatile, ideal for short crops and economical, too. They rake or tedd quickly and cleanly. Available in two working widths to fit any farm. With easy tine replacement. And best of all, Vicon tedder/rakes are gentle on your crop.

Last but not least, you'll find that Vicon SP Square Balers give you the convenient range of bale sizes and weights to meet your haying needs. All have a combination auger/feeder fork which moves the crop evenly into the full width of the bale chamber. So you get consistent bales of even density, time after time. The Vicon is also available with a hydraulic bale thrower.

For more information on Vicon Haying Systems, or the name of your closest Vicon dealer, just call or write. We think you'll see that when you can't beat the system, there's only one thing left for a grower to do.

Pa. firm loses meat inspection permit

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Federal meat inspection services have been indefinitely withdrawn from a Linwood, Pa., meat processing firm because of felony convictions of the firm's owner for drug trafficking and for transmitting wager information.

U.S. Department of Agriculture administrative law judge Victor Palmer on Dec. 19 ordered inspection denied to Summit Beef Co., based on the criminal actions of the firm's owner, Vincent L. Perry, of Wilmington, Del.

Perry, now serving a three-year prison term for the drug conviction, is also under indictment with three other men for conspiracy to sell uninspected meat for human consumption.

One of the four men indicted in the meat case has since pleaded guilty to violating meat inspection laws. In a plea bargain agreement, Dominic Impagliazzo, a former Summit employee, pleaded guilty Feb. 28, to conspiracy and to transporting uninspected meat with intent to defraud. Sentencing is set for April 22.

The meat scheme, which spanned three years, was halted when federal and Pennsylvania state officials raided the company in February 1984.

"Immediately following the raid, USDA temporarily suspended operations at Summit until all meat at the plant had been reinspected," according to Donald Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service.

The company then resumed limited operations, as permitted under law. However, in April–just before Perry's drug trafficking conviction–the plant voluntarily halted operations and asked that federal inspection be suspended, Houston said. The wager information conviction occurred in 1982.

Last August, Summit requested that inspection be reinstated so the company could once again operate. USDA then filed a complaint against Summit requesting the indefinite withdrawal of inspection. Because Summit failed to file an answer to the complaint, Judge Palmer issued a Decision and Order indefinitely withdrawing meat inspection services. Under law, federal meat inspection may be denied anyone found unfit to receive inspection services because of a felony conviction.

The indictment on the conspiracy charges alleged that the Taylor Pet Food Co., Downingtown, Pa., slaughtered and boned uninspected cattle and sold the meat to Summit. The company then allegedly resold the product to its wholesale customers. A trial on those charges is set for April.

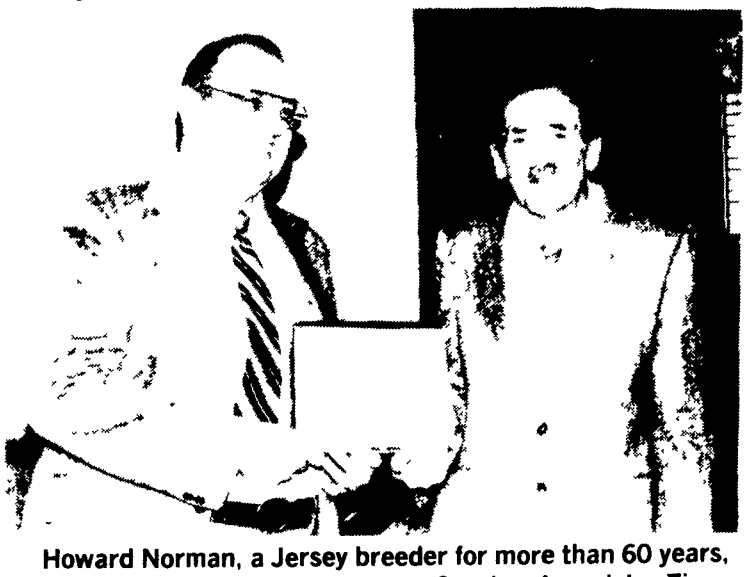
State Jersey breeders gather in Tioga County

WELLSBORO – I've surrounded myself with people with greater talent than me," stated James F Cavanaugh, retiring executive secretary of the American Jersey Cattle Club Cavanaugh spoke at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club on March 30th, at the Tioga County Community Building, Wellsboro. In his address to almost 200 Pennsylvania Jersey breeders, Cavanaugh congratulated Jersey families, the family Jersey farms, and his Jersey staff over his best 38 years of service to the Jersey breed

"It wasn't difficult for me to push for higher production in the Jersey breed. I knew we had to have it," he stated. "Don't put us in the same category as any other breed," he advised dairymen, "because we're growing."



Howard Norman, a Jersey breeder for more than 60 years, was presented the Distinguished Service Award by Tioga County Extension Director, Larue Thomas.

Cavanaugh was honored by Pennsylvania Jersey breeders with a special plaque presented to him by PJCC President, Craig Rhein. As Rhein made the presentation he highlighted Cavanaugh's contributions to the Jersey breed. In 1953 Cavanaugh served as the first editor of the breed publication, Jersey Journal. His emphasis on the use of plus proven sires, the implementation of the genetic recovery program, the equity program, and the all Jersey milk program has brought increased popularity to a modernized, efficient breed and increased revenues for Jersey dairymen.

Honored by many dairy organizations across the nation, Cavanaugh contributed his success to the Jersey fraternity which he had around him.

Providing an example of the kind of dairy philsophy which Cavanaugh has encouraged throughout the Jersey breed, Robert Ulrich, Jr., R1, Quarryville and his Valley-U Jersey were recognized throughout the awards program for their superior production, butterfat, protein, and genetics.

Ulrich's four-year-old Debbie was recognized as high cow in the state for milk fat and protein with her record. 21,430M, 4.1% F, 874F, 3.5% P, 749P. Another Valley-U Jersey, Florence, held high fat honors with 5.4%, 880 F at three years, ten months of age. Ulrich's herd was also recognized as high herd in the 50-99 cow category with an average of 13,289M, 675F, and 511P.

Claiming the most attention at the meeting was the newly initiated "Genetics Award," sponsored by the Norman Family, Tioga County. Robert Ulrich's Valley-U Jerseys again claimed top honors and were recognized in a special presentation by Duane Norman, reseaerch geneticist, USDA.

The Genetic Improvement Award is sponsored by the families of Alred Norman, state Extension dairy specialist; New Mexico State University; Don and Janet Norman, Breezylea Jerseys, Liberty; Ernest and David Norman, Normandell Farm, Liberty; and Duane Norman, geneticist.

The honor recognizes the herd with the highest cow performance index average for cows in the January USDA DHIA cow Index run. The herd must also be a Pennsylvania Jersey herd with 30 or more cows and have a herd average for milk, fat or protein higher than the state average for the Jersey breed. At least 80 percent of the cows included in the herd CPI average must be homebred. The herd must also have at least 20 percent of all cows and heifers serviced to young bulls.

"We would like to present this award in memory of our grandparents, Albert and Mary Jane Norman, who brought a Jersey cow to Liberty, Pennsylvania, 80 years ago, and in recognition of their sons, Howard and Claud Norman and their wives, Dorothy and Grace, who carried on the Jersey tradition," the Normans stated as the award was presented.

In Ulrich's herd of 100 registered Jerseys, 30 percent are bred to young sires. An avid believer in the use of young sires for the steady upward progression of the breed, Ulrich selects five to six young sires a year to sample in his herd. "I just look at the dam and the sire and try to pick something that would be an outcross to what we have," Ulrich states. "I don't think it's hurt us," he adds. He uses the young sires on hard breeders and on randomly selected cows where a plus proven bull is not needed. High indexing cows are bred to the high PD bulls. The rest of the 97% homebred herd is divided with the high PD service sires and the richly pedigreed young service sires.

He trys to use at least two Pennsylvania young sires a year

Jersey calf prices down

WELLSBORO – Although the crowd was large, prices were low as 17 registered Jersey calves paraded across the ring for an average of $304.11 at the annual calf sale of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club. Held at the Tioga County Fairgrounds, the sale featured stylish, young calves suitable for project animals and replacement stock for Jersey juniors and dairymen.

High-selling animal was the consignment of Florence Belcher, Leraysville. JM Betsy CF Beta brought $570.00 on the bid from Beth Ann Warner, Columbia Cross Roads. The September heifer is sired by a son of Shadewell Fascinator.

"I just liked the way she looked," commented 15-year-old Warner. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Warner, Beth Ann looks forward to raising her own herd with that of her sister's to start another milking herd on their parents' farm. The Warners recently sold their Holstein cows and kept the heifers. They plan to build the herd again with half Holsteins and half Jerseys. The Warner sisters own 16 head and plan to do some showing too.

Second high selling animal was the consignment of Merle Lawton, Newark Valley, New York. Lawtons BBM Shine brought $525.00 from the bid of Andrew Myers, Littlestown. The heifer is sired by Briarcliffs Black Magic out of a Master Milestone C dam with a projected ME of 12,598 pounds milk.

Other high selling animals included:

$375.00 for Windy Acres State Betty, consigned by William Eick, R2, Columbia Cross Roads purchased by Melinda Warner, R3, Columbia Cross Roads.

Hobaugh crowned state Jersey queen

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

WELLSBORO – Jersey breeders met the new state royalty last weekend as the Pennsylvania Jersey Queen was selected. Held in conjunction with the two-day Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club's annual meeting, the state Jersey queen contest was the highlighted event on Friday, March 29th.

Over 160 Jersey breeders from across the state watched as Carol Dreisbach, Hamburg, the 1984 Pennsylvania Jersey Queen and the reigning National Jersey Jug Queen, relinquished her state title to Carol Hobaugh, East Berlin. "They're going to have a lot of fun," Dreisbach stated in her farewell message to the Jersey breeders. Saying that she likes to promote milk and Jerseys, Dreisbach thanked everyone for their help and wished the new queen and her alternate a great year.

"I've always been interested in the small, elegant breed," Hobaugh confessed after being named the new state Jersey queen. She currently owns six Jerseys from her 11 years in 4-H and looks forward to increasing her herd.

The 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Reever, East Berlin, Hobaugh works at the A. Michael St. Peter Center as a resident advisor for the mentally handicapped. She plans to continue her education in the dairy field and will enroll as a dairy production major at a nearby college.

Hobaugh is not a novice in milk promotion, as she is currently the alternate dairy princess in Adams County. Stating that she is anxious to represent the Jersey breed,

The alternate state Jersey queen is Lisa Lusk, Charleroi, Washington County. A freshman majoring in dairy production, at Penn State, Lusk comes with an extensive background with the Jersey breed. Her family maintains a small Jersey herd of her and her siblings 4-H project animals. Her brother and sister are responsible for most of the care and maintanence of the herd and the family shows at many local and district shows.

As the new state Jersey queen, Carol Hobaugh is eligible to compete for the national title in Louisville, Kentucky, in November. At the national contest, the reigning National Jersey Jug Queen, Carol Dreisbach, will pass on her title to the winning state queen. Pennsylvania has been home to the National Jersey Jug Queen since 1983 when Patricia Dreisbach, received the title. Last November, Patty Dreisbach crowned her sister, Carol, as her successor. The occasion was the first time that the crown was passed on to a sister.

Judges for the event included: Diane Anderson, nutritional consultant, Joyce Hellier, nurse, and Jay Guffy, extension director.

As part of the competition, the girls were asked to introduce themselves to the audience and summarize their background with Jerseys. They then selected an impromptu question and answered it before the judges.

Egleston Polled Hereford garners top bid

Ag Arena hosts 12th Pa. Bull Test Sale

BY JACK HUBLEY

STATE COLLEGE — Any way you look at it, this year's Pennsylvania Performance Tested Bull Sale was a cut above its 1984 counterpart. Last year's event failed to get off the ground (literally) when a late March blizzard dropped a foot of snow on State College and collapsed the sale tent, delaying the sale for a week.

But with last Friday's sale staged for the first time in Penn State's shiny new Ag Arena, Mother Nature knew better than to try to crash the party, and sunny skies prevailed.

Attendance, spirits and prices all ran high, and it took a thousand dollars more to go home with this year's number-one bull.

Of the 55 performance tested bulls offered, a Polled Hereford owned by Egleston's Polled Herefords of Elkland, Tioga County, turned out to be the most popular. Posting the test's highest index of 120, and an average daily gain on test of 4.18 pounds, EPH Klondike Banner 401 convinced Jay Wysocki of American breeders Service, DeForest, Wisc., to offer the winning bid of $3,600.

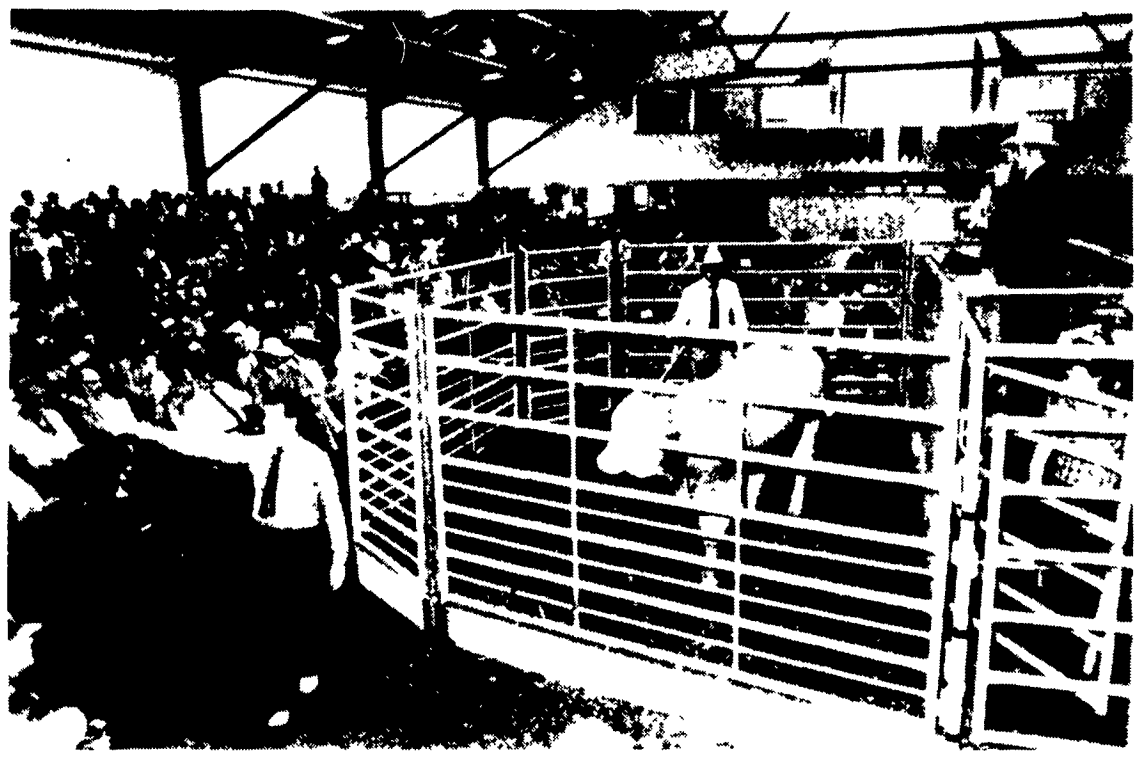
"This bull combined a variety of outstanding traits that propelled him into the top selling category," commented Meat Animal Evaluation Center director Glenn Eberly. "He was a very sound bull, and very consistent from birth through the end of the test period." Eberly also noted that this was the first time in its 12 years of performance testing that the center has sent a bull to a major breeding concern outside of Pennsylvania.

And with plenty of royalty in his pedigree, it was easy to see why the Egleston entry was able to compile the winning statistics. Sired by the famous Klondike Banner 469L, the young bull was out of the Egleston dam that manufactured this year's Farm Show grand champion female.

"It's fun to come here and compete with some of the top breeders–it's a good measuring stick," commented a smiling Mike Egleston, after his bull left the sale ring.

"A humble operation at best," is Egleston's assessment of the northern Pennsylvania dairy and beef operation owned by himself and his father. On their two farms totalling 750 acres, the Eglestons milk 40 Holsteins in addition to running 40 Polled Hereford brood cows. And in spite of the fact that all the farm work is done by Mike and his father, the younger Egleston still finds time to teach school.

Egleston notes that both his dairy and beef herds are bred AI to take advantage of the top sires available. The value of this strategy was apparent elsewhere among the ranks of Polled Herefords, with Klondike Banner siring three out of the top four indexing bulls, and four out of the top five bulls being out of Vindicator daughters.



The sun shone on Pennsylvania's Bull Test Sale last Friday, held for the first time in Penn State's Ag Arena. Both attendance and prices were up.

The sale's second highest selling bull was an Angus that posted the top daily gain for the test's 140-day duration. Consigned by Richard Stokes of Flemington, NJ, HSF Skywalker 415 recorded an average daily gain of 4.66 pounds and an index of 116. (The index incorporates average daily gain, adjusted 365-day weight and adjusted fat thickness scores, and reveals a bull's ranking only within other members of his breed. In the above example, an index of 116 means that this bull's overall performance was 16 percent better than the average of all Angus bulls on test.)

The top indexing bull among all Angus entries, this Pine Drive Big Sky son went to Edwin Yeo of Lowellville, Ohio, for $2,900.

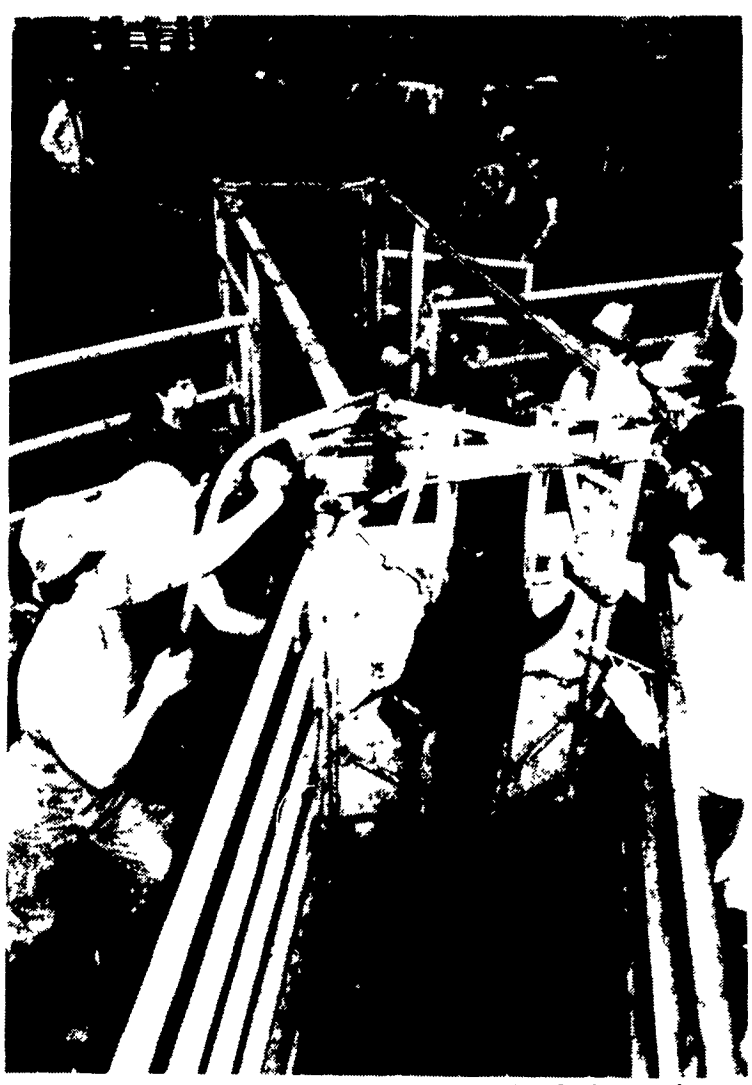
Another Angus bull, HF Hercules 415, consigned by Huntingdon Farm of Alexandria, earned the third highest price, when Holder Brothers of Gamaliel, Ky., offered a final bid of $2,550. The only 7-frame bull among all of the British breeds offered, this big Angus posted an average daily gain of 3.63 pounds on test and a final index of 109.

In addition to the Polled Hereford and Angus breeds, Simmentals were well represented at the sale. This year's top selling Simmental was MF Salvation 4, consigned by Messick Farms of Middletown. Posting an average daily gain on test of 4.21 pounds, and a final index of 113, this son of Canadian Salvatore went to Byerly Farms of Milton for $1,300.

The race for high sale average could hardly have been closer, with the sale's 16 Angus finally coming out on top by only 46 cents. Angus bulls averaged $1,232.82, with the 17 Polled Hereford bulls going for $1,232.36. Other sale averages included 18 Simmentals at $940.28, two Charolais at $1,025, and a pair of Chianinas for $737.50.

By sale's end, 98 registered bidders had offered a total of $61,125 for the 55 bulls.

"This was our best attendance ever," concluded Eberly, " and in light of beef prices during the past three weeks, I think we had a very successful sale "



An army of Penn State Block and Bridle Club members made sure that each bull looked his best at sale time.

James Bennett, (left) director of the American Polled Hereford Association, congratulates Mike Egleston on his high-indexing and high-selling Polled Hereford bull. Jay Wysocki (center) of American Breeders Service, was the buyer at $3,600.

Bovine growth hormone to revolutionize dairy economy

BY WENDY WEHR

BALTIMORE — An oppressive silence weighed heavily over the crowd. Little more could be said as the discussion about bovine growth hormone and new dairy technologies concluded at this week's Northeast Dairy Conference.

The dairy industry leaders knew that the time had come to face up to the radical production increases that will soon alter the very essence of world dairy production.

Bovine growth hormone, which can increase milk production up to 40 percent, will be commercially available in 1987 or 1988, said Dr. Robert Kalter, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Economics, Cornell University.

And within three years of its initial marketing, the growth hormone will be adopted by 95 percent of dairy farmers, predicts Kalter. Consequently, dairy farm numbers could plummet by a minimum of 25 percent.

Kalter was one of several dairy experts who reported on the revolutionary bovine growth hormone during the well-attended Northeast Dairy Conference, held April 1-2 in Baltimore.

While opinions differed on probable FDA approval of the hormone, the potential production gains that will result, and the degree of economic change that the industry will undergo, no one could argue with the emerging trends and their implications for world-wide dairying.

"I want to alert this group and others to the major public and private policy decisions to be made before this product comes on the market," Kalter emphasized.

Dairy leaders should be thinking about growth hormone and other technological advances now, while the 1985 Farm Bill is being formulated.

"Unprecedented magnitude of adjustment"

Of all the conference speakers, Kalter predicted the greatest upheaval in the industry with the advent of biosynthetic bovine growth hormone. He estimates that the size of the national dairy herd could drop from 11.2 million cows to as few as 8 million, a 30 percent decline.

At the same time, the number of dairy farms may dwindle by a minimum of 25 percent.

In recent research at Cornell, daily shots of the hormone boosted cows' milk yield up to 41 percent during a 118-day period covering the last two-thirds of lactation. Kalter reminded the conferees that the 40 percent increase during the time of injection translates into a 25 percent increase over a 300-day lactation.

Kalter made his projections based on a study he is heading, which focuses on a series of economic questions, including cost of commercial production of the growth hormone (methionyl bovine somatotropin or MBS), market prices of the product, impacts on farm profits, the farm management implications of its use, and the adoption rate of the technology by dairy farmers.

In Kalter's view, commercial use of growth hormone may be approved by FDA by 1987 or 1988. FDA must assess the long-term safety of the treated animals and of the animal products sold for human consumption.

Dr. Robert Collier, a University of Florida animal scientist who told the conference participants about the mode of action of the growth hormone, is also optimistic about FDA approval. "There's no reason this product can't come to market," said Collier.

Surveys of more than 1,000 New York dairy farmers also indicate the strong possibility of rapid adoption of the new technology.

"If 80 to 90 percent of the dairy farmers, as indicated by survey results, adopt the technology within the first three years following the commercial introduction of the hormone, unprecedented implications for farm management, milk markets, prices, and the structure of the dairy industry will follow," Kalter said.

"The magnitude of this adjustment and its timing will depend on cows' production response, the rate of adoption, and the level and scope of government price support program for milk," Kalter explained. "Many farmers, however, will profit from this new technology within three to five years after its introduction."

Changes in feed requirements will occur with use of growth hormone. Requirements for high-protein feed concentrates may increase from 30 to 110 percent. As a result, cropping patterns may change to accommodate the need for more nutrients.

Although the cost of the hormone to the farmers is still unknown and ration costs may go up, Kalter indicated that, assuming stable milk prices, farm returns over production costs would increase up to 26 percent, depending on farm characteristics and extra milk produced.

The early innovators, excellent managers, and farmers with good soil resources will be the winners in the dairy production game, said Kalter. Among the losers will be the highly leveraged farmers.

Impact of technology in Northeast

Dr. Lew Mix, director of farm management research and development for Agway, Inc., also addressed the implications of bovine growth hormone and new technologies. He was not as quick to assume the rapid adoption of growth hormone by dairymen, but he too warned that vast changes in the industry are imminent.

"In my projections, I assume that 65 percent of dairymen will be using it (bovine growth hormone) by 1995 and by 2000 about 90 percent of the cows will be injected with the hormone," said Mix.

He also stressed that an average increase in production is assumed to be 15 percent per cow per year due to the growth hormone.

"Average production per cow as a combined result of genetic improvement, improved feeding and management and use of the growth hormone will reach an estimated 13,804 pound average level by 1990, 15,639 by 1995, and 17,025 pounds by 2000 in the Northeastern states," reported Mix, adding that his was a "very, very conservative estimate."

"Even if bovine growth hormone were not approved, we would still reach an average of 17,000 pounds," declared Mix.

Bob Kalter, a Cornell University ag economist, had some startling observations for the Northeast Dairy Conference participants. The number of dairy farms will dwindle a minimum of 25 percent with the advent of bovine growth hormone.

Taking into account population and demographic changes in the Northeast, shifts in per capita consumption and production per cow, Mix estimated the approximate number of dairy cows and dairy farms required by the year 2000.

The number of dairy cows in the Northeast may drop from 2,226,000 in 1983 to 1,737,000 in 2000, a drop of 489,000 head or 22 percent. The number of commercial dairy farms in the Northeast may drop from 35,739 in 1983 to 21,716 in 2000, a drop of 14,023 farms or 39 percent.

"The potential impact of these reductions on Northeastern agriculture and agri-business and the regional economy are tremendous," added Mix. Among his other projections for the Northeast from 1983 to 2000 were:

- Average number of cows per farm up from 62 to 80.
- Capital investment per cow up from $5,500 to $16,240.
- Capital per dairy farm worker up from $148,500 to $568,400.
- Cows per worker up 27 to 35.
- Milk sales per worker up from 337,500 pounds to 588,000.
- On-farm microcomputer use up from three percent to 60 percent.

While Mix admitted the scenario he presented was rather pessimistic for the Northeast dairy industry, he also called for leaders of the industry to get together and "make some things happen instead of watch them happen."

He advocated improved product quality, innovative new products, intensive advertising and sales promotion and aggressive marketing to increase per capita consumption, and ultimately improve those projections for the year 2000.

"I submit to you that the dairy industry has a challenge to achieve these goals to help maintain a viable northeastern agriculture. It can be accomplished if we plan carefully, lay out a course of action, then act to make it happen," concluded Mix.

said Jeffords, "the dominant factor in the next Farm Bill will be whether Reagan and the grain farmers of the Midwest can come to an agreement."

But Robinson cautioned that a ceiling on farm expenditures by the budget committees could pit commodity against commodity. The result would be more pressure on the dairy industry to find a program that doesn't cost too much. Strike two.

Furthermore, insisted Robinson, the Northeast dairy farmers will have little representation when the compromise Farm Bill is finally formulated.

"There is no clear front runner on bills that are being considered," said Robinson. "Before the Administration's bill used to have the inside track, but it's no secret that the bill submitted by the White House is mainly a bargaining chip that has no basis of support in either the House or the Senate. The Administration's bill is dead."

That means the Farm Bill will be written in Congress, outlined Robinson, and will ultimately be hashed out by a conference committee composed of the members of the Senate and House ag committees. Both committees are dominated by Southern and Midwest congressmen. Strike three.

But will it be three strikes and you're out for the Northeast dairymen? Maybe, but there's still the very real possibility that the game will be called on account of rain. All the dairy policy experts at the conference admitted that there's a real chance that no Farm Bill at all will emerge in 1985.

Both Jeffords and Robinson, as well as USDA's Floyd Gaibler, who gave the Administration's point of view during the conference, predicted a freeze on what's in place now, giving the dairy farmers an $11.60 price through next year.

While they'd like to give farmers $12.10, added Jeffords, they want a program that will come in below the $1.6 billion budget consideration. An $11.60 support price will meet that qualification.

Whether the dairy policy game is played in 1985 or 1986, the conference participants agreed that the Northeast dairy farmers are coming into the compromise game with a handicap. Maybe this week's spring training will help them face up to and overcome their difficulties.

Dr. Kenneth Robinson alerted the Northeast dairy farmers to the political realities of the Farm Bill game in Washington.

An extensive Flower and Garden Show as well as greenhouse displays will be presented by the Ornamental Horticulture department. Many types of early spring plants and other items for the home garden will be on sale during the weekend.

The various classroom and laboratory buildings will be open for tours and will feature displays in Biology, Chemistry, Food Science, Business Administration, Agronomy and Horticulture.

Honey bees and honey products will be another popular exhibit and various other special features, including an art show, will be offered at this 37th annual A-Day event.

Food stands and a chicken barbeque will help satisfy the taste buds and the kids will enjoy the hay and pony rides.

Some of the special events will include Band and Chorale concerts and contests in log sawing, pie eating, canoe jousting and a milking competition.

A-Day is a fun time for the entire family and provides a special environment for an outdoor weekend.

All events will be held on the College's campus on Route 202, one mile west of Doylestown, Pennsylvania.

and samples some of his own young sires that will be going to an A.I. organization.

Other high herds recognized were: William R. Yoder, Dawn Rhein and Family, Kenny Dairy Farm, and Thomas and Larry Aaron.

John Judson, Bradford County, received the type award for the highest appraised herd. His herd of 21 cows average 84%. A new Jersey breeder in business since July, 1984, Judson credits much of his success to the advice of his neighbor and Jersey friend, Roy Watson, Troy. "I always wanted to farm," Judson explained.

The Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club Distinguished Service Award was also presented at the annual meeting and went to a person that has been promoting Jerseys through his family for over 60 years. Howard Norman received the Distinguished Service Award for 1985. Norman raised nine children as active 4-Hers with Jerseys. Five boys went on to receive Keystone Farmer Degrees, six went on to National 4-H Congress. Currently eight of his children have bachelor's degrees, and seven have their masters, two their doctorates. He began a Jersey family that has actively shown their Jerseys at the local, state and national level, and remains active in community and church affairs.

Norman's sons are currently continuing the Jersey tradition on the Normandell farm and his grandchildren continue to show their Jerseys.

"We're real proud of these juniors," Lori Sollenberger, youth chairman, commented before she handed out the junior awards. Through the state junior organization, Pennsylvania Jerseys are being recognized throughout the nation as they win at state and national levels.

The outstanding FFA junior is Marlin Deaven, Newburg. He received the Fetterhof trophy. Brian Koontz, Fredonia, received the Brunges trophy for the highest producing cow in the production contest. Other winners were: Brian Koontz, Jeie Shertzer, Patty Dreisbach, Michelle Lusk, Michael Lusk, Carol Dreisbach, Jennifer Shertzer, Carolyn Norman, Jackie Koontz, Melanie Dietrich, Crystal Miller, Christopher Zagrodnichek, Danny Yingling.

In keeping with the theme of the state's annual meeting, Don Koontz, national director to the American Jersey Cattle Club from Pennsylvania, also spoke on the progression of the breed through the use of young sires.

"We have fallen behind a little bit," he warns breeders. "The young sire sampling in the Jersey breed has been falling." Encouraging dairymen to select the young sires and use them in their herds, Koontz stated that the directors are currently working or more ways to get more young bulls sampled.

Craig Rhein, Pa. Jersey Cattle Club president, presents an award of appreciation to Jim Cavanaugh, retiring executive secretary of the American Jersey Cattle Club.

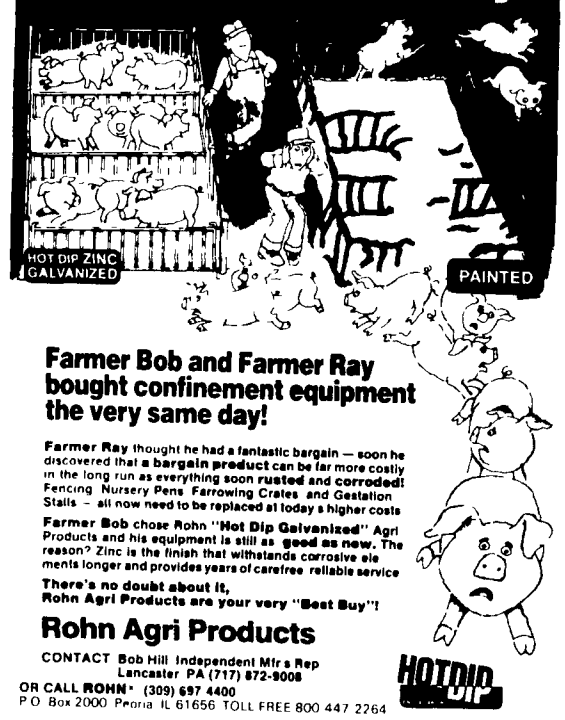
Who Got the Best Buy?



Farmer Bob and Farmer Ray bought confinement equipment the very same day!

Farmer Ray thought he had a fantastic bargain — soon he discovered that a bargain product can be far more costly in the long run as everything soon rusted and corroded! Fencing Nursery Pens Farrowing Crates and Gestation Stalls – all now need to be replaced at today's higher costs

Farmer Bob chose Rohn "Hot Dip Galvanized" Agri Products and his equipment is still as good as new. The reason? Zinc is the finish that withstands corrosive elements longer and provides years of carefree reliable service

Bradford Agronomy Day draws record crowd

BY JANE BRESEE
Staff Correspondent

ULSTER – The annual Agronomy Day in Bradford County, held on March 26 in the Ulster Fire Hall, drew more than 100 farmers, the best attendance ever, according to County Cooperative Extension Agent Alton Homan.

It was also the first year that commercial farm seed and fertilizer companies and other ag-related industries had been invited to set up booths. The 11 who attended said they are enthusiastic about returning next year, Homan said.

The speakers for the all-day session were from the Penn State Agronomy Extension Service and included Sid Bosworth, forage specialist; Tom Lanini, weed control specialist; and Doug Beegle, soil fertility specialist.

Bosworth's topics included the use of organic acid preservatives and desiccants as well as "all you want to know about Brassicas–turnips, kale, rapes, and swedes–for forages". Perennial ryegrass was discussed.

Tom Lanini amused the crowd with a quiz about common weeds that everyone should be able to recognize and name. He recommended some wise weed control procedures to make hay stands last longer.

Doug Beegle addressed the changes on the "New" soil test report and questionnaire. Fertilizing newly established stands and maintaining the old were also discussed at length.

The Five Acre Corn Club awards were presented at this meeting. The average yield in Bradford County in 1984 was 136.3 bushels per acre. The Romaine Sechrist yield is based on shelled corn, the rest are based on ear corn.

Blue Ribbon winners are: Dale Mattocks, Columbia Cross Roads, 174.3 bushels per acre; French Farm, Waverly, N.Y., 173.9; Sid Lewis, Wysox, 168.0; Glenora River Acres, Wyalusing, 158.2; Robert Whipple, Towanda, 157.0; Gene Sharer, Wyalusing, 152.3; Nelson Welles, Ulster, 151.3.

Red Ribbon winners were: Scott Shedden, Canton, 145.7; Tom McCarty, Wyalusing, 144.3; LeRoydale Farms, Canton, 128.3; Romaine Sechrist, Canton, 128.3; Kendale Farms, Wyalusing, 126.8.

White Ribbon winners were: James Gore, Ulster, 121.4; Landis Bros, Alba, 109.3; and Rex Russell, Orwell, 107.0.

The Corn Silage Club winners were also given recognition but were not awarded ribbons. According to Homan, silage is even more important in Bradford County because forage needs are met first before any grain is harvested. The report is in tons per acre of TDN is 4.72.

Duties on Canadian pork

favorable to the the pork industry's case. Specifically, the ITC ruled that the industry had been injured by the alleged subsidies.

The Commerce Department estimated that the subsidy amounted to $3.90 per hundredweight on live hogs and pork products. That would result in a duty of about $8.40 on a 220-pound hog.

The estimated subsidy is the amount Canadian importers must post as a bond, pending the final outcome of the case.

The further deliberations could increase, decrease, eliminate or maintain the estimated amount of the duty, said Commerce Department trade spokesman Chris Parlan. A complete reversal of the preliminary duty occurs in 30 to 50 percent of the cases, he added.

"I'd expect that the Canadians will say the duty is too high, and the pork producers will say it's too low," Parlan said.

True to his prediction, the NPPC, in a statement commending the department for the ruling, noted that they will "attempt to convince the Commerce Department to raise the duty rate on processed pork products."

Although NPPC still believes the strong dollar is the major culprit in the flood of imports, it said, "the preliminary countervailing duties ruling should counter the effect of the unfair government subsidies being paid Canadian producers, and should alleviate the problem considerably.

It quoted University of Missouri ag economist Glenn Grimes as saying that the duties, if imposed this summer, would curb Canadian pork imports by 10 to 15 percent for the rest of 1985, and by as much as 30 to 50 percent thereafter.

Parlan said the Commerce Department will accept public comment on the proposed duties through May 1, and conduct a public hearing on the issue by about May 3. It should finalize it decision on or about June 10, he said

The final determination in the case will be up to the ITC, which will have 45 days following Commerce Department action to make its own ruling.

Any duties collected would be paid to the general fund of the U.S. Treasury.

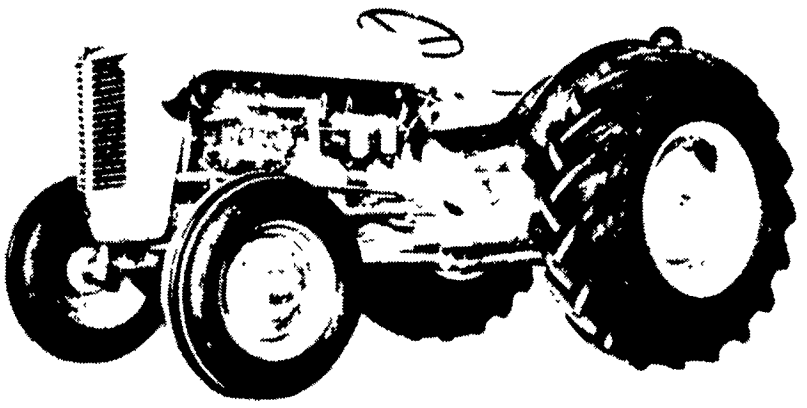
NOW IS THE TIME TO TRADE IN YOUR USED TRACTOR...

LET THE FERGUSON SYSTEM WORK FOR YOU!



THE FERGUSON SYSTEM IS BORN

For 20 YEARS Ferguson struggled to make his ideas reality By 1920, he had designed and built a light plow with a linkage system for fitting to a Ford tractor They were very successful and in 1922, aware of Henry Ford's interest in farm machinery, he went to Detroit and demonstrated it

Though Ford was impressed, Ferguson failed to get his backing and this led to manufactures George and Eber Sherman of Evansville, Ohio. Together they formed the Ferguson Sherman Corporation and Ferguson's hand-lift plows were fitted to thousands of Ford tractors between 1922 and 1928

Then disaster struck. Henry Ford, having trouble making his tractors pay, announced that he was discontinuing tractor manufacture This put an end to Ferguson's plow business and he returned to Belfast determined to design not only his own tractor but an entire new system of mechanization

He commenced work on the assumption that a variety of implements to cover all basic farming needs would be required, and that the end-product of it all would have to be greater farm productivity at lower cost

The hand-built prototype was completed in his Belfast garage workshop in 1933 Today it is part of the collection of leading British inventions preserved at the Science Museum in London.

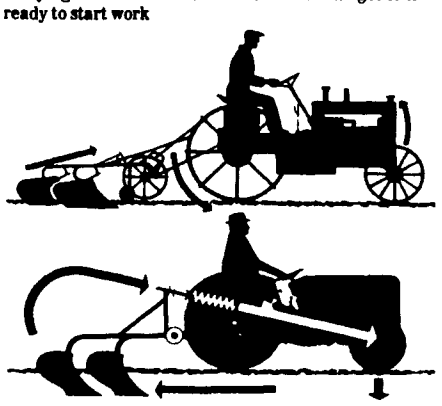
With two assistants, he had produced a revolution in agricultural engineering. The tractor weighed only sixteen hundred pounds which, with two other features, set it apart from anything else in the tractor field. the three-point linkage system and the associated hydraulic control of the implement Ferguson had perfected what was to become known throughout the world as the Ferguson System

By the prevailing standards then, the tractor was more than a mere lightweight — it was ridiculously small and at first greeted alike by farmers, traditionalists and cynics with taunts and derision.

Ferguson survived because as well as being a superb salesman, he was an ace demonstrator Time and again he put his tractor to work in the same field alongside much bigger, more powerful tractors, and was able to show that his small machine could always match and often outperform them all

The hydraulic lift that was combined with the tractor's linkage system was a major labor saver, as well as making tractors much safer to operate.

Capable of lifting a load of up to one ton, it enabled the farmer to hitch on his implement and raise it up for carrying on the back of the tractor When he got to the field, pushing a lever lowered the implement into the ground ready to start work



(top) Early plowing method — plow hitched to rear axle and pulled. (bottom) Ferguson hydraulic system — line of pull at a point ahead of front axle.

The hydraulic system automatically kept the implement at a constant depth, or it could be adjusted as it went along At the end of the field, the implement was lifted out of the soil so that the tractor could be turned quickly and easily, ready to resume work with the implement lowered again into the ground — and all without the driver stopping the tractor or leaving his seat

Essentially, however, the key secret of Ferguson's tractor design was the way in which the linkage transferred the weight of the implement onto the tractor to give wheel grip and traction In work, even more weight was transferred onto the tractor wheels by the forces the implement generated in trying to dig-in deeper as it was pulled through the ground

No longer was heavy, built-in weight on the tractor needed to improve traction, and the engine power could be used much more efficiently and economically for work output rather than merely hauling around the tractor's own dead weight

Je-Hi-Jo Threat Raspberry Red, consigned by Patricia A. Walton of Bliss, NY, was one of two animals that sold for $3,500 at the 7th International Spring Red and White sale. Pictured from left are Gary Walton, Bob Hoffman, representative of the buyer, John and Sandy Nutting of Leeds, ME; owner Patricia Walton; and Bruce Hamilton. Auctioneer Don Albrecht is in the background.

Marlu Alban Petunia-Red, consigned by Stonehurst Farm, Inc., of Strasburg, was the thjrd highest selling animal at the 7th International Spring Red and White Sale, drawing a bid of $3,300. From left are Tom Hoskins of Marlu Farms, the breeder; Don Welk from Stonehurst; the buyer, Darvin J. Kanagy of Belleville; and leadsman Warren Wolf. Standing to the rear are ringman Charles Myers and auctioneer Don Albrecht.

LANCASTER — A yearling heifer from Bliss, NY, and a 3-year-old cow from Davidsonville, MD, were the top-selling animals at the 7th International Spring Red and White Sale last weekend.

Je-Hi-Jo Threat Raspberry-Red, consigned by Patricia Walton of Bliss, NY, and Vio-Net Molly Chief Iona-Red, consigned by Jack Bernstein of Davidsonville, MD, each sold for $3,500, a full $1,000 higher than last year's high bid.

The two animals were among 56 head auctioned at the event for an average of $1,388, more than $400 over the average at last year's weather-dampened event.

The heifer was sired by Hanover-Hill Triple Threat. Her dam, Winterman Maple Sugar-Red, produced 20,215 pounds of milk with 4.2 percent butterfat as a 4-year-old. She was purchased by John and Sandy Nutting of Leeds, ME.

Matt-Wil Farms of Troy, purchased the other top-selling animal, which was sired by Vincent-View Molly Chief. As a two-year-old, the cow produced 17,830 pounds of milk with 3.6 percent butterfat. Her dam, Maplebound Gentle Ben Irene, produced 23,867 pounds of milk with 3.3 percent fat, at the age of 4.

The third highest-selling animal was Marlu Alban Petunia-Red, a 3-year-old consigned by Stonehurst Farms, Inc. of Strasburg and bought for $3,300 by Darvin J. Kanagy of Belleville. Last year, she produced 18,461 pounds of milk with 3.3 percent butterfat. Her sire was Lillywhile Citation Alban-Red and her dam was Faithland-Farms TT Pedals-Red.

The sale, which attracted buyers from six states, had consignments from Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, New York, Maine, Maryland and Pennsylvania, as well as Canada.

Auctioneer Don Albrecht termed the sale, "very successful." And though it was much better than last year's dreary turnout, it still fell more than $100 less than the 1983 average sale per animal.

The sale was preceded by the International Spring Red and White Show, which attracted 70 animals. Matt-Will Farms was named the premier breeder and Summerhill Farms, the premier exhibitor.

Maple Grove Sylvan-Red, exhibited by Summerhill Farms, was the grand champion female, while Redline Jo Jo, exhibited by Ostrander and Hartman, was the reserve grand champion female.

Last year's top exhibitor, Albrecht Farms, was listed as breeder for many of the Summerhill Farms entries in the junior classes

Summerhill swept most of the individual classes, including junior champion, reserve junior champion, senior champion and grand champion female and grand champion, reserve grand champion and junior champion male.

The donation semen sale netted $2,473 for the organization's promotional activities, while the donation calf sale brought $675 and sale of two paintings brought in $1,185.

FDA okays pheasant drug made by Penn State profs

UNIVERSITY PARK — As a result of studies by Penn State and Cornell University scientists, a drug that controls a serious disease in pheasants has been approved for use by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

Drs. W.H. Patton and L.D. Schwartz, professors of veterinary science at The Pennsylvania State University, and Drs. J.C. Babish and D.J. Lisk, Cornell University chemists, have completed the controlled studies necessary for obtaining FDA approval of Amprolium.

This new drug, manufactured by Merck, Sharp and Dohme, Inc. can be administered in pheasant feed as part growers' preventive measures to minimize the occurrence of coccidiosis.

Coccidiosis is a protozoan-caused pheasant disease that poses no health threat to man, but does represent a severe economic threat to the growers. Losses caused by coccidiosis range up to $4 million per year.

Growers in Pennsylvania, one of the nation's top producers of farm-reared pheasants, and in other states have expressed a strong interest in using Aprolium to control coccidiosis.

The studies performed by Patten, Schwartz, Babish and Lisk have demonstrated Aprolium's effectiveness and safety. FDA's approval means that Aprolium has met its standards to permit human consumption of meat and livers of treated pheasants.

In 1963, 30 percent of the milk was home delivered, but 20 years later, in 1983, only 2 percent was delivered to homes. In the same period of time, fluid milk packaging changed from 31 percent glass, 64 percent paper and 5 percent metal cans in 1963 to 1 percent glass, 38 percent paper, and 61 percent plastic in 1983. The half gallon was the most popular size in 1963, with 55 percent of the milk packages, while 13 percent of the packages were gallons and 16 percent quarts. In 1983, gallons were the most popular size (60 percent) with half gallons at 22 percent and quarts at 5 percent. Half pints, the size most popularly used in schools, remained at 9 percent to 11 percent throughout the period.

"My 120 beat the rest."

Just look at this alfalfa. Leafy...fine-stemmed ...the best alfalfa there is. That's not just the seed dealer in me talking. I got this proof right out of my own fields.

University tests also proved 120 is the best. You just can't get better tonnage than this. Or protein. And my 120 beat the others in fast starts, winterhardiness, longevity and regrowth, too. You need that kind of performance whether you feed it or sell it.

Why not ask your own DEKALB-PFIZER dealer about 120. Then compare it with what you're growing. You'll see how this 120 beats the rest.

Bay awareness program set

NEW HOLLAND — The Eastern Lancaster County School District will sponsor a Chesapeake Bay Awareness Program on Monday evening, April 15, 1985, at 7:00 p.m., in the Garden Spot High School Senior High cafeteria.

The goal of the meeting is to make area residents more aware of Lancaster County's relationship to the Chesapeake Bay and to provide specific suggestions to minimize our role in its pollution.

John Page Williams of The Chesapeake Bay Foundation, located in Annapolis, Maryland, will be the featured speaker. An informative film about the Bay will be shown, depicting its development, its economic and recreational value, and how the estuary has become a victim of progress and neglect.

James Huber, Lancaster County Commissioner, will present an overview of Lancaster County's relationship to the Bay problem and what we are doing on the county level to reduce pollution.

For the last year, various environmental and farm agencies in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia have been attempting to educate business, industry, and the general public about how the Bay.

The general public is invited to this free program. Community service clubs, churches, agriculture, and sportsman's organizations are encouraged to urge their members to attend and become informed.

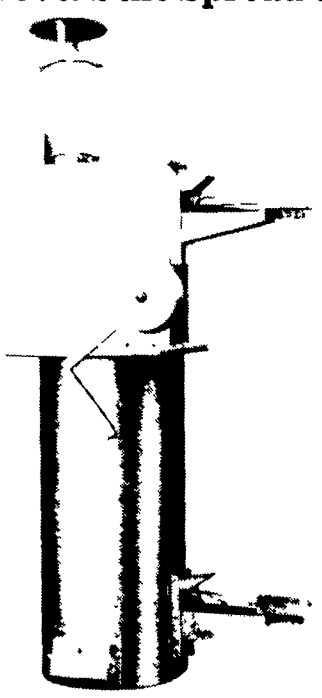
SHENANDOAH INCINERATORS - A SANITARY ALTERNATIVE FOR ON FARM DISPOSAL

To Help Prevent the Spread of Disease

The sanitary way to get rid of animal carcasses is with a Shenandoah incinerator. It's pollution controlled and convenient to use. It's also extra efficient because we've lined the burning chambers, and in some models even the afterburning chambers, with one and a quarter inches of refractory cement. That keeps the heat up and the energy costs down.



Choose among eight easy-to-install smoke and odor controlled models. You even have the option of burning gas or oil.

Ask your local Shenandoah dealer about efficient, inexpensive incinerators. You'll find out how our bright ideas in farm equipment can mean a bright spot in your day. And still leave a green spot in your wallet.

N.J. Holstein seminar set

FLEMINGTON, N.J. – Duane Green, Elsie, Michigan, will be the featured speaker at the New Jersey Holstein Seminars set for Tuesday, April 9. They will be held at two locations: 10:30 a.m. at the Allamuchy Town Hall; 7:30 p.m. at the Farm Credit Service building, Main St. in Rancocas.

Green is associated with the family-owned, nationally known Green Meadow Farms, Inc., the largest registered Holstein herd in the county. It numbers 1,500 head. He is currently vice-president of the National Holstein Association.

A principal interest for the Greens is milk promotion, in addition to merchandizing good cattle. Green has been very active in the development of sales promotion efforts for milk. He will be discussing this subject along with his views on herd management and the sale of cattle.

Co-Chairman for the annual seminars are Amos Rudderow, Moorestown, and Bucky Jones, Medford.

The price is right: $2 for seniors, free to juniors. Holstein breeders are urged to bring their dairy farm neighbors.

It takes more than wire to make a cage system More than anything else it takes a feeder

Sure, other components are important, but mainly it's the feeder that makes the system That's why Big Dutchman's Systems are equipped with a SPEED FEED chain feeder that feeds every bird the right amount at the right time, without waste

Blair Co. Farmer's Assoc. meets membership goal

BY BETSY STITT

WILLIAMSBURG — Members of the Blair County Farmers Association learned that the group had surpassed its membership goal for the year by five persons at the association's recent spring meeting and banquet.

The group's membership goal was 363 and the final tally showed 368 members listed. The association has grown from 43 member families to 53. Blair County has always been a forerunner in membership, State Director Joe Johns reported. In 1973, PACMA Director Marlin Miller said, Blair County met their membership goal in just three days.

Audrey Kensinger, chairman of the ladies committee, reported that the group is planning two Ladies Day Out programs — one with Bedford County and one of their own. They are also seeking senior high students to attend the Youth Conference at Bucknell University.

Phil Pheasant reported that nine members went to Harrisburg to discuss several bills with state legislators. The members told legislators they would like the amount of land foreigners can own reduced from 100 acres to 10 acres.

They also lobbied for a reduction in the number of employees small businesses must have to qualify for a loan. Under present legislation, businessmen must employ 25 people to be eligible; PFA would like that number reduced to five.

Pheasant also encourged farmers to send more letters in support of returnable beverage containers.

Charlie Mohn, a PFA member since 1958 and associate administrator since 1970, was the evening's keynote speaker. He was instrumental in organizing PFA in Blair County and reminded farmers that PFA's original purpose was to give farmers a voice in legislation. Now, hardly a day goes by that legislators do not call PFA to see how a bill would affect farmers, he reported.

The highlight of the evening came when the charter members were recognized. Charter members honored included John Dean, the first county PFA president; Kenneth Ritchey; Byron Sollenberger; Richard Mattern; Willis Greaser; Joe Wineland; Allen Smith; Robert Dauberman; and Bill Barroner. Other charter members who were not present include Sam Black, Ross Burket; Tom Claycomb, Frank R. Moore, D.A. Morrow, Are Hill Orchard; David D. Showalter, and Gilbert S. Watts.

The first board of directors included John Dean, Willis Greaser, Richard Mattern, Tom Claycome and Sam Black.

State Farmers Union members join NFU lobbying effort

WASHINGTON — Representatives of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union joined fellow National Farmers Union members from several states in a two-day visit to the Nation's capital.

On-going discussions of agricultural policy for the 1985 Farm Bill, plus the recent veto of the emergency farm credit legislation prompted Farmers Union to hold the fly-in and make the group's feelings known in person.

Pennsylvania Farmers Union President M. James Brown expressed the group's sentiment. "People are waking up to the farm situation," he said, "but real understanding can only come about if farmers get off the farm and educate our neighbors–in the cities and especially in the Congress."

"The Washington Post is currently running a series of articles on the farm crisis," Brown continued. "Tuesday's early edition includes estimates by the American Bankers Association that we'll lose about twice as many every day. Farmers have to do whatever they can to reverse this trend–I think that coming to Washington is a good start."

Each Senator and Representative which the group visited was given the National Farmers Union policy recommendations for the 1985 Farm Bill. Discussions emphasized such points as making the next farm bill a long-term law, limiting the wide discretionary authority of the Secretary of Agriculture maintaining base price supports and tying them to the cost of production, and expanding the authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation to include the power to negotiate long-term agreements with importing nations.

Farmers Union members also asked for reform of the deficiency payment system: first to increase the payments to reflect the difference between the market price and 100% of parity, and second to de-escalate payment so that more of the benefits reach those middle 1/3 of the farmers who are struggling with the highest debt.

Finally, the group asked that the new farm bill include cross-compliance requirements for eligibility in any single commodity program and that the new bill contain supply management programs adopted through producer referenda.

Pennsylvania Farmers Union members attended a breakfast with representatives of the Pennsylvania Congressional delegation on the 26th. Congressman Bob Edgar and Senator Arlen Specter each addressed the group on agricultural policy and answered questions.

Lancaster to host American Jersey Cattle Club

HAMBURG – "Come Alive in '85" is the theme for the national meeting of the American Jersey Cattle Club. The meeting will be hosted by the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club at the Host Resort in Lancaster on June 16th to 19th. In preparing for this major event, the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club encourages Jersey dairymen from across the United States and Canada to "Come Alive in '85" and see the beautiful Pennsylvania countryside, learn about Pennsylvania's heritage, and view Pennsylvania Jerseys.

With a full agenda for the three-day meeting, over 500 Jersey enthusiasts are expected to participate. After registration on Sunday, June 16th, there will be pre-convention hospitality, courtesy of the Cumberland Valley Jersey Breeders.

Monday, June 17th, features tours of four Lancaster County Jersey farms in the Peach Bottom area. Unique to this part of the county and of great interest to the western visitors will be the immaculate stanchion barns, upright silos, and small herds of family-bred Jerseys. The tour will also include a visit to an Amish homestead and a view of the Lancaster countryside. Lunch will be held at Muddy Run Recreational Park. The day will be concluded with a family-style meal at the Good and Plenty Restaurant, Lancaster.

Tuesday, June 18th, will begin with the National All-Jersey, Inc. Junior breakfast and annual meeting. A luncheon will be held at the sale barn at the Solanco Fairgrounds just prior to the 28th Annual National Heifer Sale.

The National Heifer Sale, the highest quality heifer sale in the nation, will feature 60 heifers selected on the basis of the highest pedigree indexes. Proceeds from this sale will go toward funding the youth programs of the American Jersey Cattle Club.

American Breeders Service will be hosting a social hour before the Annual Jersey Breeders Banquet to be held that evening, at the Host Resort.

The Young Jersey Dairyman Award Breakfast and Junior breakfast will be held on Wednesday and will be followed by the 117th Annual Meeting of the American Jersey Cattle Club.

Throughout the three-day event, Pennsylvania hospitality will be displayed through the generosity of many associated businesses and friends. There will be booths sponsored by local businesses and a hospitality room to meet the hosting Pennsylvania Jersey breeders and to register for the many activities scheduled for Jersey juniors and dairymen.

Pennsylvania crafts will also be featured with a silent auction during the three-day meeting. Quilts, Jersey cow art, and many other craft items handmade by Pennsylvania Jersey folk will be available to out-of-state visitors as they "meet Pennsylvania." "You'd be surprised at how many people have never been to Pennsylvania," commented Jim Cavanaugh, executive secretary of the AJCC at a recent meeting.

Pennsylvania has not hosted the national meeting since 1970 and Jersey breeders and sponsors of the event are anxious to show off their state to the hundreds of visitors.

Co-chairman for the event are Dr. and Mrs. Robert C. Dreisbach, R3, Hamburg, and Don and Angie Koontz, Fredonia. Also preparing for the visiting dairymen are David and Donna Reusing, who are putting together a "welcome bag" of Pennsylvania products to give each visitor.

Jersey breeders are encouraged to register early for this meeting.

Registrations will be discounted if made by April 15th. Don't miss the annual meeting and chance to showcase Pennsylvania and its Jerseys. Registration information can be obtained from Donald Koontz, 3016 District Road, Fredonia, Pa., 16124 or phone 412-376-2884.

Information on sponsorship of an event or participation in the funding of the meeting can be obtained from Robert C. Dreisbach, R3, Box 3735, Hamburg, Pa. 19526 or phone 215-562-3242.

At "Come Alive in '85" Pennsylvania Jersey Breeders want breeders throughout the state and the nation to recognize their efforts in the promotion and progression of the fastest growing breed.

Hog and pig inventories down slightly in March

HARRISBURG – Inventory of all hogs and pigs on March 1, 1985 in the ten states conducting quarterly hog surveys is estimated at 39.5 million head, one percent below last March, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

This year's figure is also six percent below March 1983 and is the lowest March inventory since 1976. The ten quarterly states are Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina and Ohio.

Breeding inventory at 5.22 million head is four percent less than a year ago and 13 percent less than March 1983. This is the lowest March breeding herd since 1973 when estimates for these comparable ten states became available. Market hog inventory, at 34.3 million head, is one percent below last year and five percent below two years ago.

The December 1984-February 1985 pig crop was 14.5 million head, two percent more than last year but nine percent below two years ago. There were 1.94 million sows that farrowed during the past quarter, a decrease of one percent from a year ago and ten percent below the same period of two years ago.

Sows farrowing averaged 7.51 pigs per litter compared with 7.27 last year and 7.45 two years ago. The litter rate is the highest on record for a December-February quarter.

Hog producers in the ten quarterly states intend to farrow 2.37 million sows during March-May of this year. This is five percent less than actual farrowings during the comparable period in 1984, and 15 percent less than two years ago. Farrowing intentions for June-August are 2.20 million head, three percent below the same period last year and nine percent than two years ago.

Perspectives on Dairy Price Support Policy: Problems, Goals, and Tools

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of nine articles about dairy policy options for 1985. Compiled by Jack Kirkland and Blair Smith, Extension ag economists at Penn State, the articles are written by a variety of national authorities on dairy policy issues.

We are printing these articles to help you better understand and evaluate the policies and programs the dairy industry faces. The first two articles explain the current situation, while the other seven review policies and programs that may be enacted to stabilize the dairy industry.

We are also printing the series to help you take a more effective stand for the program you choose to support. The 1985 Farm Bill has the potential of being one of the most important pieces of legislation to the dairy sector since 1949. You can influence dairy policy through your representatives in Congress, your general farm organization, your milk marketing cooperative and your political party.

For the last three years policy makers and industry participants have tried to create dairy policy within a political gridlock. Fundamental questions lie at the center of the traffic jam: Do policy makers pursue individual or common goals, and which program will alleviate the problems plaguing the dairy sector?

Discussions of policy goals and the implications of their options are seldom prominent in dairy policy debates. Whether or not they address the goals explicitly or implicitly in 1985, policy makers will influence dairy policy that could determine at how and how well the dairy sector will adjust to the technological and economic changes it will undergo in the future.

Problems and Goals Prior to the 1980's

The architects of New Deal agricultural policy identified a key farm problem–low prices. Their one objective was to raise farm prices to 100 percent of parity; a goal originally sought through a form of production controls. What emerged by the late 1930s was a dairy policy that largely embraced the goals and enforced the pricing procedures that cooperatives could not maintain on their own.

Federal orders enhanced the bargaining power of farmers and enforced a more equal distribution of returns to farmers. Even so, orders were not able to raise farm prices and maintain secure markets to the satisfaction of dairy farm interests.

The next major attempt to raise farm prices occurred during World War II as part of a larger effort to stimulate food production. After the war, with the influx of young men anxious to return to the farm, it was deemed necessary to legislate a permanent program that helped to ensure adequate returns and secure markets to existing and new generations of dairy farmers. The Agricultural Act of 1949 authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to support farm prices at no less than 75 percent of parity and no more than 90 percent of parity. This defined in practice, if not in principle, the boundaries of adequate returns and reasonable prices. Anything more precise than that was left to the discretion of the Secretary.

Stable and secure markets were essentially guaranteed by the manner in which farm prices were supported. The USDA buys manufactured dairy products at wholesale prices designed to give manufacturers enough money to cover their costs and pay farmers the equivalent of the support price. In so doing the USDA not only raises prices but also guarantees a secure and essentially unlimited outlet for market surpluses. To be sure, not every farmer or processor is guaranteed an outlet for his or her product, but USDA's willingness to purchase any quantity of cheddar cheese, butter, and nonfat dry milk at a given price comes just one step short of that.

From 1949 through 1978, under the traditional purchase program, annual net removals on a milk equivalent basis averaged four percent of total milk marketings. This implies that the operational goal of the support program is to support farm prices slightly above levels that would perfectly balance commercial supply and demand, resulting in a perennial but fairly small surplus. It is evident that both price enhancement and stabilization have been important goals in the administration of the price support program, but prior to 1979, price enhancement goals were clearly tempered by some sensitivity to market conditions.

Policy goals across agriculture shifted perceptibly during the 1970s. Reliance on intervention was replaced by faith in demand-induced growth stemming largely from greater agricultural exports. Although cash grain farmers prospered during this period, dairy farmers fared poorly as feed prices increased while support prices increased slowly and reluctantly. Between 1973 and 1975, domestic production was less than commercial disappearance, import quotas were greatly expanded to make up the shortfall, and net removals averaged only one percent of production. In 1976, President Carter fulfilled a campaign pledge to increase the support price for milk. Congress followed by enacting legislation in 1977 and 1979 that required milk prices to be supported at no less than 80 percent of parity, with semi-annual adjustments. Thus, the course was set for a level of enhancement unparalleled in the 30-year history of the program.

The shift in the mid-1970s from a very free, market-oriented policy to one of enhancing farm milk prices occurred primarily for political reasons. Dairy farmers who felt they had been short-changed during the Nixon administration convinced President Carter and Congress that they deserved compensating treatment. High parity prices and cost data convinced Congress that milk prices were not keeping up with production costs. Whatever relationship these high parity prices may have had to costs, they proved to be totally inconsistent with market supply and demand. Parity had become unreliable as a guide for setting support prices.

Current Problems and Policy Goals

Since 1980 the dairy industry has struggled to get back to the way life used to be. Like the kitten in the tree, getting back down is not nearly as easy as getting up.

Congress has grappled with and changed dairy policy each year since 1980. Each new policy has been a bit harsher than the prior one. In April 1981, the semi-annual price increase required under 1979 legislation was suspended. In December 1981, support prices were essentially severed from the parity standard. Although not related to parity, small annual increases in support prices were permitted in the 1981 Agriculture and Food Act. In 1982 it became apparent that even the first small increase was unwarranted, given growing surpluses.

Amendments were added to the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1982 which froze the support price at the level it had been since October 1980 and the Secretary was granted authority to directly assess farmers to help offset some of the program costs. Two assessments of 50 cents per ctw. of milk marketed were permitted. The first was nonrefundable; the second was refundable to farmers who reduced their markets.

In November 1983, a four-point compromise, reflecting each of the major proposals that had been advanced, was adopted. The Dairy Production Stabilization Act combined price cuts, a mandatory assessment, a mandatory promotion program funded by farmer assessments, and a "milk diversion program" which offered cash payments to farmers who agreed to market less milk than they had during a base period. It would appear that when surpluses first began to grow, Congress tried to do as little as possible, addressing first the principal budget concerns. By late 1983, Congress was apparently ready to try a little bit of everything.

HARDY BRAND CORN REALLY PERFORMS

Toni & Mike Rinaldi, Easton, PA

"In the 5 years we've been planting Hardy, it's been excellent. That's why we keep coming back."

"We've been increasing our use of Hardy over the years, because in five years we've had no problem at all. The 701X gives us great yields. And it's got nice ears to it, filled out all the way to the end. We like the 802X and 602XS, too—excellent standability and dry-down, and they're good yielders. When you're getting top yields, and a good price, you stay with it!"

Dairy Policy Options

Problems, Goals, and Policies for the Future

Due to lower production and higher consumption, USDA net purchases and government costs were lower in 1984 than 1983. Nevertheless both measures of the dairy problem are at high levels. Prospect for 1985 are that net removals will at best stay at the 1984 level. The closer supply-demand balance is clearly an improvement, but it is also clear that current policies have not solved the short-run nor the long-run problems facing the dairy industry.

Any number of policy options are available and several will be seriously advanced during 1985. Some people will support a price oriented program and suggest refinements to the type of support program that existed prior to 1981. A few will call for sophisticated plans to structure and centralize management of farm supplies. A target price-deficiency payment program similar to that used for grain and other crop programs is endorsed by some people. The total elimination of any support mechanism seems unlikely, but its chances increase as high government costs continue.

In the following leaflets, several dairy policies are discussed. They are different not only in the way they work but, more importantly, in what they seek to accomplish. Policy goals are neither right nor wrong; they are based on individual or shared values and beliefs. Likewise policy options are neither good nor bad unless they are judged by a set of policy goals. The challenge before policy makers in 1985 will be to resist the temptation to legislate another compromise that deals with the persistent short-run problems, but which fails to face the long-run issues.

Will dairy policy in 1985 seek primarily to preserve and protect dairy farm interests as they exist today, or will it sacrifice a measure of individual protection to promote a greater flexibility and adaptability to the technological and economic changes that will buffet and challenge the dairy industry as it approaches the 21st century?

Pseudorabies eradication to be discussed

LANCASTER — Three public meetings have been scheduled for Thursday and Friday to explain a proposed Pseudorabies (PRV) eradication program drafted by members of a special pork industry PRV committee.

The committee, formed several months ago by members of the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council, hopes to free Pennsylvania swine herds of this dangerous virus that is currently responsible for the quarantine of some 30 swine units, located primarily in Lancaster County.

Two meetings are scheduled for Thursday, April 11; one at 2 p.m. at the Penryn Firehall along Newport Road, and another at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center at 7 p.m. A third meeting will take place on Friday, April 12, at the Earl Township Building on Huyard Road at 10:30 a.m.

Swine producers, agribusinessmen and all other interested persons are urged to attend.

Plants can get 'cold feet' too

WASHINGTON – Chilly soil can reduce the level of zinc and other trace minerals in plants, so people get less in their diets, say scientists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Crops dislike "cold feet," so even a slight drop in soil temperature slows down the uptake of minerals by roots, said David L. Grunes, soil scientist, and Ross M. Welch, plant physiologist, of USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

According to them, new laboratory studies show cold soils keep tap roots from penetrating deeply and putting out a thick network of branch or side roots in the lower depths to absorb minerals.

When soil temperatures hover around 50 degrees Fahrenheit, consumers may get less than expected amounts of minerals in foods.

This happens because a smaller root system cannot fully do the work of supplying mineral nutrients to the plant, according to Grunes and Welch, who are based at the research agency's U.S. Plant, Soil and Nutrition Laboratory, Ithaca, N.Y.

"We're doing root research because agriculture has a wealth of information about what happens within plant parts above ground, but relatively little is known about what goes on in the tangled world of roots. Yet, roots are the critical point in the plant's ability to absorb nutrients, water and essential ions," Grunes said.

So far, Grunes and his colleagues have studied mineral uptake by such grain crops as corn, barley and wheat, but future research will involve other crops.

As an example of what can happen, he pointed to North Dakota field studies several years ago of corn grown on soils low in zinc and phosphorus. Grunes found that the plants, grown on cold soil, had stunted roots and showed severe symptoms of deficiency in both zinc and phosphorus.

An agency research team in Ithaca also has shown in recent greenhouse work that barley plants have much less zinc in their tops when the root-zone temperature is low. Ironically, when the root-zone temperature is low, more zinc is absorbed by the roots, but it stays in root cells.

When the root-zone temperature increases, greater amounts of zinc can travel into the top or edible parts of the barley plant, according to the findings of the team of Grunes, Welch, chemist Earle E. Cary, and soil scientists Wendell A. Norvell of the research agency and visiting soil scientist Samuel M. Schwartz of the Volcani Center, Bet-Dagan, Israel.

In its barley studies, the team also found that at a soil temperature of 68 degrees F., the plants produced many branched roots which fanned out and filled thier six-inch deep, one-gallon containers.

By contrast, at 50 degrees F., the barley plants put forth only a few long, thick roots with some hairlike rootlets. Branching was confined to the older parts of roots in the upper three inches of soil, Grunes said.

Knowledge of how and when zinc moves into the food chain is important because it is an essential element. Evidence points to borderline deficiencies in livestock and some human population groups.

Plants need only about 20 parts per million of zinc in their tissues, but animals and humans need more – about 30 parts per million – in their diets.

Delaware expert says farm policy may be set soon

NEWARK, DE – If the 1985 farm bill follows the route to passage of the last one four years ago, farmers and others who want to communicate their views to the Congress about proposed farm policy should wait no longer.

"The 1981 farm bill wasn't passed until December, but Congress had virtually set its limits months before by budget reconciliation measures," says University of Delaware extension farm policy specialist Gerald Vaughn. "The same procedures, if used again, could largely shape the 1985 farm bill as early as May."

In 1974 Congress passed the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act, better known as the "budget act." The procedures it outlined called for Congress to set budget totals before considering action on individual appropriations. "Under this act, the Senate and House–by adopting two budget resolutions (the first to occur on May 15)–put a ceiling on total expenditures and then allocate spending limits to the standing committees on agriculture and other programs," Vaughn explains. "The standing committees then revise their budget plans to be in line with the spending limits. A second budget resolution must be passed by September 15."

The first budget resolution in May is only a guide to congressional budget action, the economist says. It doesn't have the force of law. However, the second budget resolution in September, which may revise the first, is binding on appropriations. In practice, the September resolution differs little from the May resolution.

According to Vaughn, the budget act strongly influenced the farm bill that emerged in 1981. He says the tight lid put on farm program spending compelled congressional agriculture committees to redirect farm and food policy before the 1981 farm bill draft was even considered. And it provided the administration with a powerful reason for threatening to veto any farm bill that exceeded the congressional budget limits.

"If Congress is serious about substantially reducing the federal budget deficit, and reducing the cost of farm programs in the process, limits set by the May budget resolution could govern the outcome of the 1985 farm bill debate," Vaughn believes.

"Now is the time to contact members of Congress," he says, "especially members of the Senate and House budget committees."

Drainage course

It has been a wet spring and much farmland is still holding water on the surface, indicating that you may have a drainage problem. If you are trying to decide what you can do to eliminate this situation now and in the future, there may be help available from Penn State.

Controlled removal of excess water helps increase production and provides additional fertile cropland on most existing farms, says Extension agricultural engineers at Penn State.

A knowledge of surface and subsurface drainage methods is important to those thinking about installing systems to dry up a rust spot.

To order a copy of the course, send $7.50, postage included, to DRAINAGE, Dept. 5000, University Park, PA 16802. Make check payable to PENN STATE.

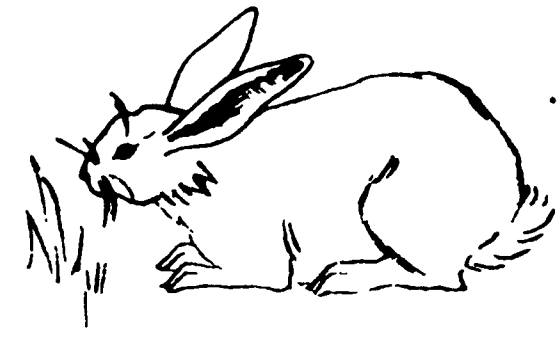
Cuddly Easter bunnies are more than just pets



BY BARBARA RADER
Staff Correspondent

Tomorrow, children around the world will be celebrating Easter. Among the traditions that mark this special holiday, is the hunting of brightly painted Easter eggs and baskets stuffed with chocolate candies, jelly beans, stuffed toys and perhaps a live, cuddly baby bunny.

Rabbit raisers will see their commodity sell at its peak, as children exclaim to parents, "Oh, mommy, can I have that one?" or "Ah, isn't he cute!" These phrases are heard over and over again as Audrey Thomas, Butler, takes her 4-H'ers to the Butler Mall to merchandise their product.

As a well-informed veteran in the rabbit business, Audrey can competently field all the questions she gets about rabbits. She has had rabbits nearly all her life. Her children had rabbits when they were little, but phased out of them as they grew. However, once Audrey's children had kids themselves, the rabbits came back and have remained ever since.

Since 1972 Audrey and her husband, Bob, have been showing and raising rabbits under the name Pant & Puff Hutchery. They've raised many varieties of rabbits, but say the Flemish Giants are their first love.

About eight years ago Angoras entered the couple's hutchery. The Thomases currently have around 100 Angoras and the same number of Flemish Giants. A few mini lops and Dutch have found their way into the hutchery as well.

Since rabbits of each breed come in a variety of colors, the Thomases usually have all seven colors of the Flemish Giants and several colors of Angoras.

"Easter bunnies are more than just pets," Audrey stresses. The combination is food, fur, fancy and fellowship — the four F's.

"All rabbits provide fellowship no matter what breed they are," she said, explaining that there are about 40 distinctive breeds of rabbits recognized by the American Rabbit Breeders Association.

"Fancy" she explained, are rabbits that meet the standards set by ARBA to compete in shows. Various classes for all the different breeds have standards to meet. Usually four classes per breed are shown, consisting of senior does, senior bucks, junior does and junior bucks.

Rabbits weighing 10 pounds or more are broken into a six class breed. The classes consist of six months and under; six to eight months; and rabbits eight and over, with separate classes for does and bucks.

The most popular meat rabbit breeds come from the six class breeds; however, smaller rabbits do supply meat.

Domestic rabbits are a perfect food for dieters and for folks who must watch their cholesterol intake, Audrey explained. Rabbit meat contains a lot of protein and less cholestrol than most other meats.

The final "F" that Audrey attributed to rabbits is fur, which is used for clothing and novelty items. Angora rabbits are the only breed that do not bear fur; they wear a coat of wool. The Angora wool is usually brushed or plucked out, Audrey explained. Keeping the pen and the rabbit clean is the most important aspect getting top-quality Angora wool.

The wool is usually spun without being cleaned first, so people generally aren't allergic to it, she said. People who are allergic to wool are usually reacting to the cleaning aids and detergents used to prepare commercial wool.

Spun Angora is becoming increasingly available in stores, and is used mostly for clothing trimmings. There are two kinds of rabbit wool — the English Angora and French Angora. The English makes a fluffier and softer wool than the French, while the latter breed carries more of a guard hair. This makes the wool a little coarse, but it is still very soft.

The English Angora rabbits can be distinguished from the French Angoras by the wool tassels on the tips of their ears and toes. The French rabbits have no wool past the first knuckle on their front feet and they have clean ears with no bangs.

Rabbit wool spun into yarn usually sells for about $7 to $14 per ounce, Audrey said. Articles made from rabbit wool are lighter and seven times warmer than those made from lambs wool.

Much rabbit wool is used with sheep wool or other yarns when made into garments or trimmings. Most of the rabbit wool is used in trimmings rather than complete garments because of its expense.

Audrey spins her rabbit wool using her own spinning wheel, loom, and carding machine. She took her wheel to the Butler County Fair last July, hoping to catch up on her spinning during the week. Her 4-H'ers were intrigued by her spinning and decided that they'd like to try it themselves.

Their interest sparked the beginning of the Cottontail Twisters 4-H Club. Nine of the youngsters traveled with two other Butler County spinning and weaving groups to enter the Sheep to Shawl Contest at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Under Audrey's guidance, these members made a scarf from sheep wool. They learn to spin on sheep wool first because it is heavier and easier to work with than rabbit wool.

Audrey has joined her resources and talents with those of another woman to form to form "Bunny Hugs," a small, home business. They specialize in Angora wool, raw wool, spun wool, and crocheted and knitted wool garments. They attend a few craft shows to promote and market their items.

She has also found time in her busy schedule for another 4-H club. The Butler County Cottontails 4-H Rabbit Club was formed nine years ago with Audrey being the sole leader. With as many as 60 children in the club at one time, she broke them down into three age groups, so she would have three meetings instead of just one a month.

More recently the three groups have been meeting together because their projects are similar. The actual project is to have two does and a buck and raise two litters of bunnies to merchandise. Most projects are with pedigreed animals.

When the club started the 4-H'ers needed a place to exhibit their projects. Audrey stepped in and arranged for both 4-H and open show competition at the Big Butler Fair and at the Butler Farm Show.

This talented lady is also an active member of the Pittsburg/Butler Rabbitry Association, where she has served as the show secretary for the last eight years. This year's two-day double show, held last weekend, brought in well over 1,500 entries from Pennsylvania. Ohio, New York and Virginia.

The Thomases travel to many states to compete for premium honors. Their home is decorated with plaques, trophies and other special mementos from local shows and National ARBA Convention shows.

Audrey offers the following advice to children who receive little bunnies in their Easter baskets. "One thing that kills most Easter bunnies is rough handling and the wrong feed," she says. "The best rule is to remember to feed no greens. Root crops can be fed, but without tops. Plenty of good pellets and hay with fresh water at all times will excel their daily diets," she explained. Treats such as grain cereals, fruit treats and Oreo's are a favorite in preferance to greens, and are fine if used correctly, she said.

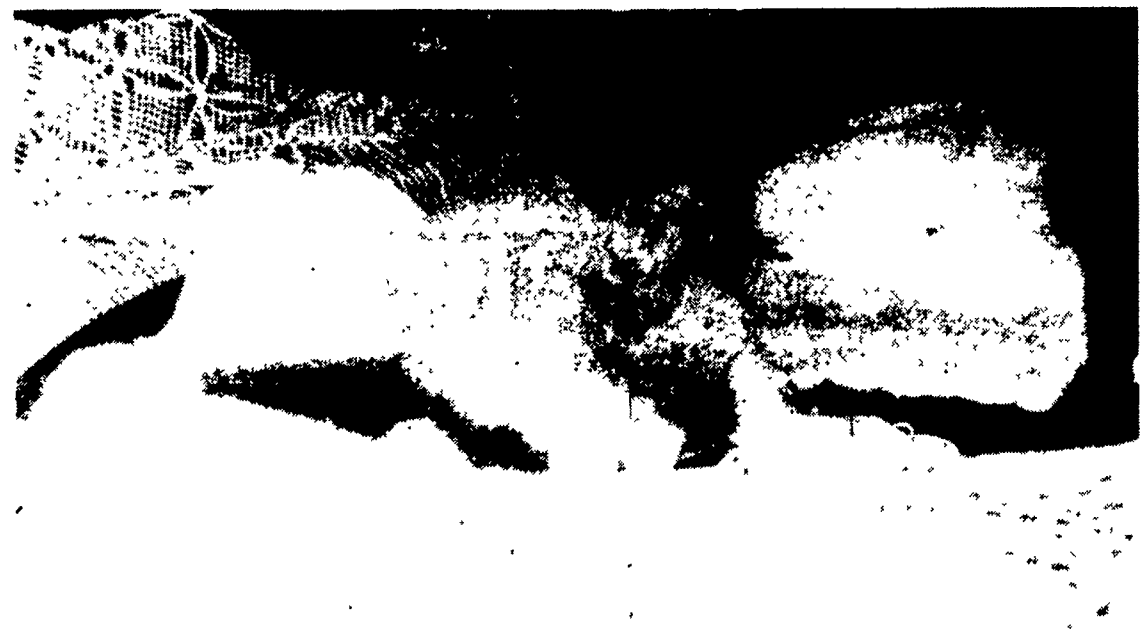
Responsible handling is also a must. "Never, never pick them up by their ears. Get their feet onto something secure as quickly as possible," she recommended. In most cases, she continued, they should be picked up by the loose skin on the back of their heads, with the opposite hand supporting their back legs.

The rex breeds should be handled differently because their fur is very much like velvet. Handling becomes a major chore so as not to endanger their fur, she said.

Housing is an important factor which is sometimes neglected. Rabbits should have a pen that is protected from direct wind and sun. Good sanitation is essential to keep the pen clean.

Bunnies do make good house pets, and can be easily litter trained when kept in a confined area with a litter box for a short period of time. But beware, Audrey warned, rabbits like to chew on wires.

So if you receive a cuddly, floppy-eared surprise in your Easter basket, take the advice of a woman who knows rabbits — "Your treatment of rabbits makes them what they are."



This English Angora rabbit is surrounded by items made of rabbit's wool. The items are knitted and crocheted by "Bunny Hugs."

Add up what a 9-month John Deere finance charge waiver means to you

Are most advertised "low-rate" finance offers the big deals they're made out to be? Not compared to John Deere's 9-month finance charge waiver on new tractors, 40- to 300-hp.* As the chart shows, the John Deere 9-month waiver is more attractive than most of the low-rate offers you've read about. And, as you can see, paying off the John Deere contract early could result in an effective rate as low as 3.38%.

Don't be misled—compare real finance charges

The Long Green Line™

JOHN DEERE

Nothing runs like a Deere™

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

From the distance of the kitchen window to the back yard, they appear as mere yellow or creamy-colored blotches.

A brisk wind sweeps down across the patchy green grass, sending the vague yellow shapes bobbing in its wake. Even from the distance, I can see the bright shapes leaning away from the prevailing breeze, turning their backs to the occasional harshness of a fickle season.

But, up close, perfect droplets of dew sparkle on the crisp, ballerina-skirt blossoms. It has always seemed so perfectly fitting that Easter and the unfolding of the daffodils should coincide.

With heavy rains in the forecasts, I carefully pluck a handful of these brave, cheerful bloomers, and arrange them casually in a pewter pitcher with sassy, straight pussywillow and tendrils of graceful weeping willow.

How exquisitely beautiful they are, their six perfect oval outside petals framing the cup-shaped, ruffled centers. In contrast are a few less familiar creamy whites, with shallow, heavily-crimped centers, like pleated skirts twirling around in exuberant dancing.

How unimpressive they seemed last fall, those pudgy, plain bulbs, wrapped in brown parchment-like skins. Imagine, trying to convince someone unfamiliar with the ways of bulbs that these tear-drop shaped, fleshy objects would bring forth blooms of the utmost beauty, after being buried for months in chilled soil blanketed with snow and ice.

By gosh, it takes a kind of faith to plant bulbs.

But such a perfect example they are of the Resurrection we now celebrate. We know it happens. We expect that the bulb, in due time, will sprout forth slender green leaves and then burst into breathtaking loveliness-and yet each time it seems a miracle all over again.

Just like the Easter story itself.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Tomorrow is Easter and for a long time I debated with myself as to whether or not I should buy candy and fill some Easter baskets. Since we are expecting some of the children to come home, I'm hoping I can get them to eat the chocolates–I certainly don't need them.

My family always enjoys painting hard-boiled eggs and it wouldn't seem like Easter without this enjoyable job. Through the winter months, I always save some dry onion skins so that I can dye eggs a yellow-orange with them. Probably, I do this because I know that my Grandmother Landis always did it.

I've been gathering dandelion plants for salad this spring. We like it raw with a bit of mayonnaise added. And, have you tried dipping the blossoms in a fritter batter and frying them? They taste somewhat like oysters–a whole lot cheaper too.

My sugar peas are over an inch high and the onions are green too I've planted over 1,000 feet of peas and that should surely keep me busy in May and June. I am not too sure about my strawberries this year. Many of them look like they died from a disease last fall.

The other Sunday our daughter, Judy, invited us for dinner because she was flying to London for a vacation the next day. From her home we traveled to the home of our hosts for the Hawaiian trip. They held a reunion where we could share pictures and souvenirs with our fellow travelers. It was nice to see everyone again.

Now I must finish pruning some bushes that haven't been trimmed, because I don't enjoy working otuside when the thermometer hovers around 30 and 40 degrees in the morning.

Make a ham for Easter

If the centerpiece of your Easter dinner is a tasty baked ham, you might want to try some of the tasty glazes suggested below.

But before you cook your ham, make sure you read the label to see what kind of ham you have. Hams labeled "fully-cooked" may be eaten without further cooking. To serve hot, heat to an internal temperature of only 140°F. Hams labeled "cook-before-eating" should be cooked to an internal temperature of 160°F.

If the label does not specify the type of ham, ask the meat retailer. As a guide, most hams are "fully cooked" by the meat processor.

If you are like most cooks, you'll find that your hungry family didn't quite devour all your tasty Easter dinner. Don't despair, there are plenty of creative ways to use ham with other dishes. You could grind up your leftovers for ham loaf, or slice it down and grill the slices. For other ideas on using up your leftovers, look over the recipes below.

ALOHA HAM LOAVES

2 pounds ground smoked ham
6 slices canned pineapple
6½ square pimiento
1 5½-ounce can evaporated milk
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1 egg, beaten
½ cup crushed unsalted crackers
2 tablespoons catsup
1 tablespoon snipped parsley

Place a pineapple slice in the bottom of each 6 aluminum pans. Fill center of each pineapple slice with a square of pimiento. Mix 2 tablespoons evaporated milk with curry powder and sprinkle 1 teaspoon of the liquid over each pineapple slice. Add remaining evaporated milk to instant onion. Lightly but thoroughly combine ground ham, egg, cracker crumbs, catsup and parsley; mix in evaporated milk with onion. Divide meat mixture in sixths and place 1 portion on pineapple ring in each pan, pressing lightly to mound. Cover each pan tightly with aluminum foil, securing around rim of pan. Place on grill and cook at low to moderate temperature 45 to 55 minutes or until done. Invert pans to remove loaves and serve pineapple side up. Makes 6 servings.

PLANKED HAM SLICE

1 "fully-cooked" smoked ham slice, cut ½ inch thick (about 1 pound)
1 cup hot seasoned mashed potatoes
1 cup hot mashed rutabaga
1 tablespoon hot skim milk
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 teaspoons chopped chives
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper

Trim excess fat from ham slice. Place ham slice on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat and broil 5 minutes. Meanwhile, combine potatoes, rutabaga, butter, skim milk, chives, salt and pepper. Keep warm. Transfer ham slice to an oiled wooden plank or metal sizzle platter. Tube or spoon mashed vegetables around edge of ham slice to edge of plank or platter. Continue broiling 7 to 8 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

PEACHY HAM SLICES

2 boneless "fully cooked" ham slices, cut ½ to ¾ inch thick
1 1-pound can sliced peaches
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Cut ham slices in half. Drain sliced peaches; reserve ½ cup syrup. Combine and mix sugar, cornstarch and nutmeg. Add peach syrup, orange juice and lemon juice. Stir until free of lumps. Melt butter or margarine in skillet. Brown ham slices lightly on both sides; remove from skillet and keep warm. Add cornstarch mixture to skillet; cook until thickened and clear, stirring constantly. Add ham and peach slices; heat thoroughly. Makes 4 servings.

BAKED PENNSYLVANIA HAM WITH SPARKLING CHERRY GLAZE

1 boneless "fully-cooked' smoked half ham
1 10-ounce jar cherry jelly
½ cup light corn syrup
½ teaspoon ginger
1 clove garlic, sliced
Canned sliced pineapples or apples, for garnish
Parsley or watercress, for garnish

Remove wrapping and casing from ham. Place ham on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is in center of thickest part of ham. Cover face of ham with aluminum foil to keep it moist. Bake in 325°F. oven as directed on package label or until meat thermometer reads 140°F. It will take about 2 hours to heat a 6 to 8 pound half ham. While ham is baking, prepare glaze. Combine jelly, corn syrup, ginger and garlic in saucepan. Bring to simmering stage; simmer 3 to 4 minutes. Remove garlic from sauce and discard. Brush glaze over ham 2 to 3 times during the last 30 minutes of baking. Garnish with sliced pineapple or apples and parsley or watercress. Serve leftover glaze with ham. Count on 3 to 4 servings per pound of ham.

SPICY CRUSTED HAM

1 boneless "fully cooked" smoked half ham
⅓ cup light brown sugar
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon allspice
¼ teaspoon black pepper
⅓ cup light or dark corn syrup
Whole cloves, optional

Place ham, fat side up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is in center of thickest part of ham. Cover ham slice with aluminum foil to keep it moist. Bake in 325°F. oven as directed on package label or until meat thermometer registers 140°F. It will take about 2 hours for a 6 to 8 pound half ham. While ham is baking, prepare topping. Combine brown sugar, bread crumbs, mustard, allspice and pepper; mix well. Bring corn syrup to a boil; set aside. Thirty minutes before end of baking time stud with whole cloves, if desired; brush top and sides of ham with syrup. Sprinkle with about ⅓ of the crumb mixture. Bake 10 minutes. Drizzle with about ½ of the remaining syrup and sprinkle with ½ of the remaining crumbs. Bake 10 minutes longer. Repeat to use remaining ingredients. Allow 3 to 4 servings of ham per pound.

CURRY SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon curry powder
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon sherry or sherry flavoring

In saucepan, melt butter over low heat. Blend in flour, salt, curry powder and pepper. Cook over low heat, stirring until mixture is smooth and bubbly. Remove from heat; stir in milk and sherry. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minutes.

UPSIDE-DOWN SUPPER

1½ cups cubed cooked ham
1 cup cooked lima beans
1 8-ounce can cream-style corn
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese (about 4 ounces)
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
⅔ cup Bisquick baking mix
⅓ cup cornmeal
1 egg
¼ cup milk

Heat oven to 400°F. Mix ham, beans, corn, cheese, onion and Worcestershire sauce. Turn into greased 1½-quart casserole Cover; bake 15 minutes.

Mix remaining ingredients; spoon over hot meat mixture, spreading batter evenly to edge of casserole. Bake uncovered 20 minutes. Cut into wedges; invert each onto place. Makes 4 servings.

CRAB-STUFFED HAM ROLLS

2 6-ounce packages frozen cooked crabmeat
12 thin slices boiled ham (about ½ pound)
Curry Sauce (recipe below)
Hot cooked rice
Sliced green onions or capers

Heat oven to 350 °F. Cut each block of frozen crabmeat into 6 sticks, each ½ inch wide. Place frozen stick of crabmeat on narrow end of each ham slice; roll up and secure with wooden pick. Place seam side down in ungreased baking pan, 13x9x2 inches. Cover; bake 20 minutes or until heated through.

While ham rolls bake, prepare Curry Sauce. Arrange ham rolls on rice; spoon sauce over rolls and sprinkle with sliced onions

VERSATILE HAM LOAF

1 pound pork
1 pound ham

Grind these two meats together.

1 egg
2 tablespoons brown sugar
½ cup milk
1 cup corn flake crumbs

Mix all ingredients together and bake in a loaf pan OR use this recipe as hors d'oeurves. Mold into 1-inch balls and bake in a 13x9x2-inch sheet pan. Bake at 350°F. for 1 hour. During the last 15 minutes, baste with:

¼ cup wine vinegar
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup water
½ tablespoon dry mustard

This is very easy and delicious.

HAM STEAK COLUMBO

2 large ham steaks (center cut)
¼ pound provolone cheese, sliced thin
¼ pound mozzarella cheese, sliced thin
1 medium onion, sliced very thin
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced thin
2 tablespoons butter
2 cloves garlic
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley

Sauce:

¼ cup olive oil
1 cup finely chopped onions
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 cup tomato sauce
¼ cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
½ cup water
3 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon pepper

In hot oil, cook onion and garlic until transparent. Add other ingredients and simmer uncovered for 15 minutes.

Using one ham steak, allow room to stitch (about ¼ inch in from fatty edge); layer several slices of provolone and one layer of onion Place mozzarella around edge of provolone leaving center free for placement of mushrooms. Saute mushrooms in butter, garlic and parsley. When tender, place over above layers in ring formed by mozzarella cheese. Salt and pepper to taste. Top with any cheese left over. Place other ham steak over entire recipe aligning with ham steak on bottom. Taking a needle and some fairly heavy thread, lace together, taking care not to tear ham steaks. Before placing on charcoal grill, baste entirely with barbecue sauce. Grill for approximately 10 minutes per side. CAUTION: Watch steaks at all times as cheese tends to run. If cheese does run, turn steaks and allow cheese to harden and turn again.

Use Easter eggs to create entry for egg recipe contest

HARRISBURG – Don't know what to do with all those eggs left by the Easter bunny? Why not use them to create a special dish and enter it in the 1985 Egg Recipe Contest?

Any Pennsylvania resident, grade 6 through adult, is eligible to enter the competition, which has an April 15 deadline.

The recipe should include at least one egg per serving, and should provide exact amounts of each ingredient in the order used in the recipe. Be sure to include cooking utensils, time and temperatures in the recipe method. Recipes should not include garnishes.

Entries are being sought in two categories – the junior division, grades 6 through 12, and the adult division. Seven 'eggcellent' regional champions in each division will each be awarded $200 and become eligible to compete for the top state junior and adult titles and $1,000 in prizes in September 1985.

The two finalists may then enter the National Egg Cooking Contest with top prizes of $4,000. Second place winner will receive $1,500 and third place finisher $1,000.

Recipes should be sent to EGGs, Bureau of Markets, Pa. Department of Agriculture, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408. More than one entry may be submitted per envelope, but each recipe must be on a separate piece of paper. Contesntants are requested to print or type their name, address, county, and phone number on each recipe, along with the name of the category of participation

Recipes will be judged on overall nutritional quality, ease of preparation and suitability to today's fast-paced lifestyles, taste appeal, appearance and creative combination of eggs with other foods.

The contest is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Pennsylvania Egg Marketing Association, Pennsylvania Poultry Federation and the American Egg Board. All recipes submitted become the property of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and/or the American Egg Board.

Ladies Have You Heard?

PREPARE FOOD SAFELY

Has anyone in your family ever gotten sick or "had problems" from something you prepared for a meal? Food-related illnesses are largely a result of carelessness or lack of knowledge about proper food preparation and storage. The preparer must take precautions to insure safety. Here's some advice. advice.

• Potential health problems are related to the handling of raw meat, especially poultry. Take care not to handle raw meat in conjunction with other foods, because this could cross-contaminate them. Also, make sure that unprotected cuts on hands and fingers do not come in contact with raw meat. The cut could become a source of staphylococcal contamination in meat.

• Leftover meat and stuffing should be stored separately. When stored together they may become contaminated by bacteria growing on the surface of the meat. Besides stuffing, other foods that support the growth of dangerous bacteria include puddings; custard pies; salads made of meat, eggs, or vegetables; cheese pies or quiches; meat pies; pizzas and lasagna.

• A food preparer should also know that refrigeration does not stop the growth of bacteria in foods and that freezing does not kill them. Refrigerator temperatures of 40°F. or lower will slow the growth of bacteria, but not stop it. Temperatures above 40°F. will aid the growth of bacteria.

Canned foods that have rust on the can, are bulging, or don't appear to be normal are good candidates for unsafe food. If a can is opened, do not taste the food to see if it is safe to eat. Test it by checking its appearance and smell.

ALTER FOR A NEW LOOK

Spring is a lovely time of year but it can also be an expensive one. No matter how carefully you've planned, someone in the family is bound to have changed sizes or needs. Not all of last year's clothes are going to do for this year However, before you go shopping for clothes or fabrics, evaluate what you have on hand.

Altering what you no longer use may give your clothes a new look and a new life.

Begin your evaluation with a fitting. Try on the garment and look closely at its fit and remodeling possibilities. Think about the types of clothing you need and the look you want to achieve. Here are some questions to consider before trying to turn a sow's ear into a silk purse!

• Does the garment fit well in the governing areas — the shoulders, neck, and chest. Altering the fit in these areas is often difficult and may change the fit and look of the entire piece.

• Are you really capable of making necessary changes? Before you begin, evaluate your sewing skills and remember, you don't usually have to tear the entire garment apart to achieve what you want.

• Will old construction lines show? Look closely at the original construction lines before you decide on altering the garment. Some items are marked with puncture marks to direct original sewing and are unsightly if exposed. Some fabrics are permanently scarred by stitching and pressing lines.

• Nubby surfaced fabrics such as tweeds and bouccle can often be steamed or "roughed up" with an old toothbrush to close or disguise original stitching lines.

• Smooth mid to light weight fabrics with substantial amounts of man-made fabrics are difficult to alter because they scar easily and original lines will show.

Is the garment usable? If you can't use it, someone else can. Pass them along to family, neighbors, or friends or donate them to your local community clothing bank.

Strawberry Queen sought

MUNCY — The Strawberry Growers' Association is now seeking applicants for the 1985 Strawberry Queen.

In 1983 Gov. Dick Thornburgh designated the Muncy area as the strawberry capital of Pennsylvania. Last year, Karen Bird of Muncy was selected to reign as queen, representing the strawberry growers at the state farm show in Harrisburg.

The 1985 pageant will be conducted at Lycoming Mall on June 9 at 2 p.m. The pageant will kick off strawberry activities week, which culminates in Muncy on June 16 at 2 p.m. with the queen's coronation in the gardens of the historical society.

The Strawberry Growers hope this pageant will develop to the level of other state commodity queen pageants such as the dairy princess and the apple queen.

Applicants for 1985 Strawberry Queen should be 16 to 21 years of age and must be willing to promote strawberries in Pennsylvania.

Applications are available from Ralph Styer, treasurer, R3, Box 143, Muncy, Pa., 17756.

Pa. farms decreasing at alarming rate

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG – Since 1945, the number of farms in Pennsylvania has decreased from 171,000 to 55,535 and the amount of acreage has been reduced from 15 million acres to about 8.3 million acres. At that rate of decrease, by the year 2050 there could be little farmland left.

These statistics were presented by William A. Adams, director of natural resources for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, at the 17th annual Legislative Conference sponsored by the Women's Legislative Exchange last week in Harrisburg. Over 700 women from throughout the Commonwealth attended the workshops to study issues of concern.

Adams pointed out that losing one acre of farmland to actual development, means losing three additional acres to post development pressures. He noted that when the state builds one mile of new highway, it takes 60 acres of land. In addition to development pressure, erosion and economics play a large part in the disappearance of farmland.

Louise Midla, a farmer from Marianna in Washington County, called the disappearance of farmland a problem as important in its consequences as crime and alcohol abuse.

On the national scene, the group was told that unless Florida takes strong action immediately, by the turn of the century all their winter fruits and vegetables will be gone. James Riggle, American Farmland Trust, gave this assessment as he talked about development pressures in states like Florida and California. Riggle said there is no question that there will be land on which to grow food in the 1990's, but he questioned what kind of food, what quality of food and at what cost to the consumer. "Are we willing to pay for that quality?" he asked the group rhetorically.

Riggle contended that a lot of produce is already being imported, and the quality of much of the food produced in other countries is not the same as that produced under the strict federal inspection laws in this country.

On a positive note, Riggle noted that the amount of land in crop production has increased by about 10 percent in the last five years, but said that prime farmland is down about 600,000 acres per year. He noted, "The target of non-farm develoment is prime farmland."

When prime farmland is lost, cost of production in other areas is very high because of the cost of using highly erodible, marginal soil.

Erosion continues to be a serious problem in losing farmland. Although erosion was almost under control in the early 1960's, Riggle said, "It is now on the increase." Nutrients and pesticides are very complex problems, he asserted.

Another positive note is that federal agencies have done an in-depth review of effects of federal policy on farmland, and have changed their attitudes. Riggle said that federal agencies traditionally have taken prime farmland for highways, airports and sewage treatment plants. Now, under the federal farmland protection policy act, federal agencies are required to respect state and local farmland policies. He added, "This puts the burden on state and local governments to decide what they want their communities to look like in the future."

Riggle said that Pennsylvania is one of the top states in the nation in leading farmland preservation efforts. Wisconsin, Oregon, Maryland, Illinois and Michigan, are other states with good farmland policy legislation. Unfortunately, states that should be acting most vigorously are not, he said.

PFA's Adams said that there are many laws in effect in the Commonwealth which provide relief for farmers and give the groundwork for farmland preservation. The right-to-farm law of 1982 prevents farmers from being harrassed with nusiance laws, and the 1976 clean and green law offers some tax breaks for land used for agricultural purposes.

Adams estimated that currently there are about 136,000 acres in the state in designated agricultural areas under Act 43, the Ag Area Security Act. He pointed out that the one percent of the realty transfer tax which goes into the general fund will help make money available for purchasing development rights, and will spread the burden more evenly on the taxpayers. He and Riggle agreed that the responsibility of preserving farmland lies not just with farmers, but with the entire population. Therefore the tax burden should be shared.

Midla, decried what she called "buckshot urbanization," when the gradual changes in the country side go unnoticed. She said a comprehensive land use plan is essential, and urged the audience to establish agricultural development councils which include all community groups to complete and update maps. She said this kind of effort can help avoid using prime farmland for public uses. Pointing out the value of agriculture, it was noted that agriculture adds more value than any of industry in Pennsylvania in terms of creating jobs and influencing the economy.

Elderly are a valuable resource, not a problem

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG – "The elderly are considered a problem and I think that is a mistake. I think they should be viewed as a valuable resource. We should create that mind set." These are the words of State Representative Allen Kukovich, chairman of the youth and aging subcommittee of the Health and Welfare Committee.

Speaking in Harrisburg at the annual legislative conference of the Pennsylvania Women's Legislative Exhange, Kukovich said he wanted to be a member of that committee "because the seniors and aging need to have advocates." He said their concerns need to be considered in every issue.

He made it clear that the funds which are generated by the state lottery have done a great deal to help the elderly. "If we didn't have the lottery, we would be in grave trouble."

The lottery, and its potential for helping senior citizens could be in trouble; however, as federal monies are cut in many areas. "Leaders are now looking to the lottery for other programs." Kukovich said they must be ever-vigilant about new or increased funding for programs through the lottery, to be sure the primary intent continues to be met.

Kukovich said the big issues facing the elderly in Pennsylvania include property tax reform and utility reform. He noted that 23 percent of the residents are on fixed incomes, and the slogan "heat or eat" has become an accurate one for many elderly. Their income simply does not stretch.

He said that telephones cannot be considered a luxury for the elderly; they are a "lifeline." He proposes that utilities have a base lifeline rate in their structure so the elderly can afford phones.

"There is a great deal of political clout and power among the aging in Pennsylvania," Kukovich pointed out.

Alma Jacobs, acting secretary of aging in Pennsylvania, said she will be traveling throughout the state talking with senior about the PACE program which offers pharmaceutical assistance to the elderly. This is funded through the lottery, and Jacobs said that prescription drug abuse is a big problem because of lack of understanding on proper use.

Jacobs said her department is increasing its budget by 17 percent over last year to increase services. She cited in-home services for the elderly as a pressing need.

Attendant care for the disabled which offers hands-on personal care is extremely important in keeping the elderly in their homes and not institutionalized. Jacobs said, "He must take care of the caretakers by offering technical assistance through area offices of aging."

The department is committed to providing in-home services which will keep people in their homes in their own communities. She said, "It is the proper, and humane thing to do, and we save money because it is cheaper than institutionalizing the elderly."

It was pointed out that 89 percent of people over age 65 live in their home communities, with only seven percent confined to their home beds, and only four percent in institutions.

Because many are able to live alone, a very real need is affordable housing for the elderly.

Kukovich pointed out, "An injustice done to anyone anywhere is an injustice done to all of us everywhere."

Jacobs made it clear that the Office of Aging is interested in hearing about instances of discrimination and abuses against the elderly.

Effort, determination pay off for Star Farmer Rodney Herr

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

NEW OXFORD — Rodney E. Herr is the State Star Farmer, the highest production agriculture award in the Future Farmers of America in Pennsylvania.

For Herr it was the culmination of many years of hard work, keeping extensive and accurate records and filling out project books. About winning the award he says,"It felt great. All these years were worthwhile."

Herr is a senior at New Oxford High School in Adams County and served as president of the work he does in swine and poultry projects.

His record books show the profitability and the extent of the projects, but it is Herr's effort and determination that tells the real story of this successful young farmer.

Herr is the son of Mrs. Erma Herr and the late Clair E. Herr of Gettysburg, and he farms Glen Afton Farm in partnership with his mother and older brother, Stanley. Together they operate a 400-acre farm, marketing about 3,000 hogs annually, with a herd of 165 brood sows. They also raise about 50,000 pullets each year, and grow soybeans and corn.

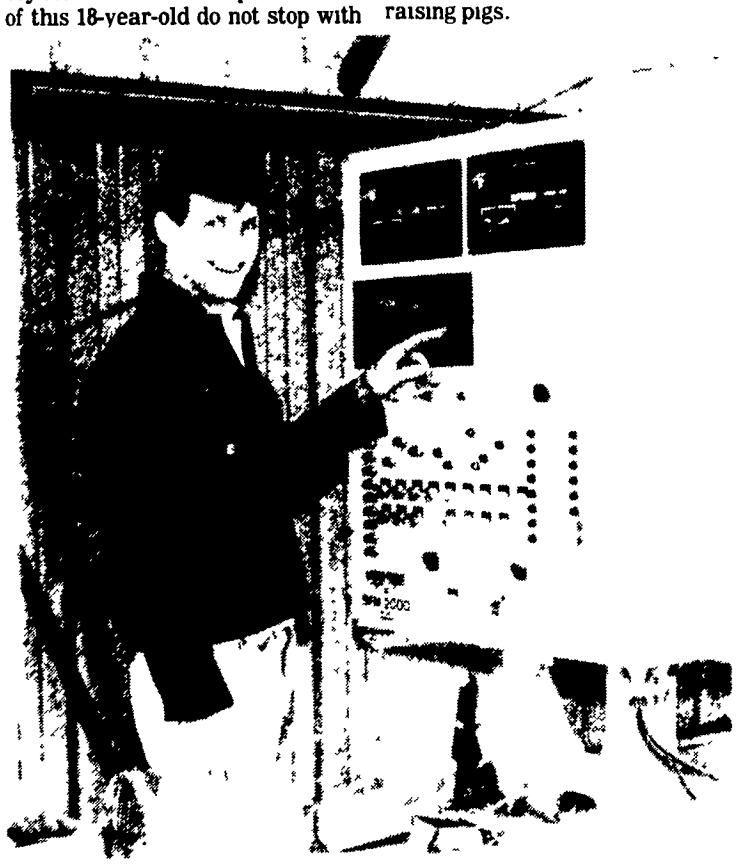
Herr's FFA projects include 32 brood sows/gilts, 600 head of market hogs, 17,000 pullets, 13 acres of corn and 50 acres of soybeans. But the responsibilities of this 18-year-old do not stop with his own projects–he is heavily involved with the entire farm.

His chores are completed before school, even if that means getting a very, very early start to find time for all the extra activities. FFA has been a family tradition in the Herr family, with Rodney's father having been a member, and his brother having achieved a Keystone farmer degree.

The time and responsibilities don't bother Herr. He says frankly, I think I always wanted to be a farmer. I like the farm and I like learning about farming." And, of primary importance to his future, he says, "I think you can make a good living with hogs."

Of course he has learned a lot about his projects and farming through FFA, and he says he will continue to be a member after graduation. But he also says that he and his brother receive many magazines which they read to learn the latest information. They also attend "a lot of swine schools, meetings and shows." All of this openness to learning has helped them to build one of the most modern and largest swine operations in Adams County.

The farrow to finish operation includes separate facilities for different ages of swine, as well as a very modern maternity area. Contributing to Herr's success in the star farmer competition is his very high degree of success in raising pigs.



An automated mixing system makes it easy for the Herrs to mix their own feed on a daily basis. Here, Rodney enters data into the computer which controls the mixing operation.

In Herr's projects, he has 96 percent live pigs at birth, 92 pounds average litter weight, and 9.9 pigs per litter. Herr acknowledges pride in this success and says, "One reason is that we give iron shots and add dry iron to their feed. Good nutrition helps a lot."

To have the best in feed, the Herrs mix their own with a computer system which formulates the ration for each age group. The Herr brothers mix feed every day, and have even begun making their own pre-mix because it is more economical. They raise all their own feed. Herr says they like mixing their own, adding, "The fresher the feed the better."

They market about 80-100 hogs every two weeks, year round. Pigs are with sows for about four weeks, then they go into pens with raised decks for another three to four weeks. Herr said, "Even if the deck is just a few inches off the floor, the pigs do better."

Next the pigs go into 4-by-15 pens, 10 to a pen. Herr said that with fewer pigs in a pen they exercise more and do better. At this stage they are fed manually– "Then we know what they're getting," Herr notes. Once they move to the finishing pens they are fed totally on an automatic system.

Very extensive record keeping is important in FFA and helps in winning awards, but Herr feels it is necessary in any case. "It helps you know what's going on, and how good your business is doing. It helps you know where to improve and what you are spending."

Of course, knowing how important records are and actually keeping them are two different matters. Herr's vo-ag teacher Brian Campbell says he urges all his students to keep records up to date, and says he makes specific time available for students to work on records. He points out that to be truly outstanding, the book requires a complete accounting of efforts in the projects, including monies spent and taken in, hours worked, total assets and net worth.

Campbell credits the awards programs in FFA in helping the young people achieve. "The only way to be motivated is to do well. The awards give them something that they want to achieve." Campbell expresses special pride in seeing Herr win the state recognition because Herr was in Campbell's first freshman class.

Herr credits FFA with more than just helping him to learn to be a better farmer. "It has helped me get to meet a lot of people. I used to be shy and it has helped to learn to talk in front of people." Herr has also served as president of the county FFA group.

This little pig is just one of many which belongs to Rodney Herr. He has achieved a high success rate in his farrowing operation, averaging 9.9 pigs per litter.

Next September, he will compete with 16 other state representatives in an effort to become the Northeastern United States Star Farmer. After that, of course, there is the possibility of reaching for that ultimate achievement–American Farmer.

The state award has meant a lot to Rodney Herr, and he looks forward to further competition. However, his real success has come in his commitment to his future as a farmer, and his assurance that he can make it in the swine industry. What he learned in FFA will always help him as he works and achieves in the agricultural community.

Rodney Herr looks over some of the sows which make up his FFA project and which contributed to his being named state star farmer.

Tulpehocken FFA honors members at annual banquet

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

BERNVILLE — The Tulpehocken Chapter of the Future Farmers of America honored and awarded their dedicated members last week at the annual parent-member awards banquet at the Tulpehocken High School, Bernville.

When State FFA Reporter Heather Hernley, Lebanon, spoke to the crowd of FFA members, family, and friends about getting the experience in FFA to build a foundation for the future, she could have been referring to three outstanding members of this chapter. Connie Strunk, R1, Mohrsville, Doris Stump, R3, Bernville, and Gary Bicksler, R1, Richland, were among those honored for their efforts toward their future goals during the awards presentation.

Harvey Smith, state area vocational consultant, congratulated Strunk for earning the Keystone Farmer Degree. Strunk, current president of the chapter, was awarded the DeKalb award along with a proficiency award in farm-home improvement and agribusiness. Strunk is currently on the work experience program and works on an area dairy farm.

Doris Stump was awarded the Star Greenhand award. The ninth-grade daughter of John and Rita Stump, R3, Bernville, Rita looks forward to participating in more events throughout her upcoming years in FFA. The first year member owns ten Holstein and enjoys showing at local fairs and 4-H shows.

The Chapter Star Farmer award went to sophomore Gary Bicksler, the son of Ray and Barbara Bicksler, R1, Richland. Although he admits to enjoying field work the most, Bicksler maintains Holstein cow and calf projects and looks forward to participating in the state dairy judging contests. Learning by working on the home farm, Bicksler hopes to farm on his own in the future.

Proficiency awards were presented by advisers, Barry Kellner and Lisa Shirey to the following: Gary Bicksler–dairy production and judging; Ronald Crossley–farm mechanics and specialty livestock; Shawn Beck–creed recitation; Doris Stump–dairy; Troy Koenig–feed grains and diversified livestock; Thomas Rausch–extemporaneous speaking, and swine production; Scott Bohn–dairy production; Connie Strunk--farm and home improvement and agribusiness.

The Tulpehocken FFA Chapter also designated the following as Honorary Chapter members: Jeffrey Kellner, high school principal, and Oscar Manbeck, school board and advisory council member.

Awards of appreciation were presented to: Wendy Manbeck, typist; George Moyer, dairy farmer; Wayhar Farms, Richard Frantz, English teacher; and John Feaser, teacher.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Use up all those Easter eggs

What are you going to do with your leftover Easter eggs on Monday? If the Easter bunny left you lots of hard boiled eggs to hunt, will you be eating egg salad, egg salad, and more egg salad? Not necessarily! Use your microwave and these recipes to add a little variety to your meals last week!

Creamed eggs on toast are fast and easy to make for breakfast. The Easter Egg Casserole is a protein packed dish to accompany hot dogs, or for a vegetarian meal. Either recipe would be good served with a salad for a light lunch or supper.

If you don't have any left over hard boiled eggs, Don't try to boil them in your microwave in their shells, they may explode! You can, however, hard cook them without their shells when you need eggs for chopping or salads.

To Hard Cook Eggs:

Break raw eggs into custard cups, or a microwave muffin pan (if it doesn't have steam vent-holes in the bottom!). Poke a hole in each yolk with a toothpick or sharp knife. This breaks the membrane surrounding the yolk, so it won't explode.

Cover tightly with plastic wrap and cook for 45-60 seconds per egg on medium power, (50,5). You could use high power for 30 seconds each, but the eggs sometimes get rubbery (overcooked) on the edges.

In a microwave, the yolks cook faster than the whites because they have a higher fat content. After microwaving, let the eggs stand, covered, about 5 minutes for the whites to finish cooking. Cool and chop.

This layered casserole takes a while to put together, but can be made ahead of time. For breakfast, make it with bacon (see Tips, below) and refrigerate overnight.

Easter Egg Casserole

½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
4 hard cooked eggs, chopped
1 jar (4 ounces) sliced pimiento or mushrooms, drained, optional
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese (4 ounces)
1 cup bland cracker crumbs, such as saltines, Ritz, etc.
1½ cups milk
3 tablespoons margarine
4 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt, omit or reduce salt if crackers are salty.
¼ teaspoon dry mustard

Topping:

2 tablespoons margarine or butter
½ cup cracker crumbs

1. Saute celery, onion and one tablespoon margarine in an 8-9-inch square or round glass dish for four minutes on high until tender. Stir once after two minutes. Remove half of the vegetables to a small bowl and spread the remainder evenly in the dish.

2. Make a thick white sauce in a 4-cup measure as follows: Melt 3 tablespoons margarine on high for 1 minute. Stir in flour, salt, mustard until smooth. Then slowly add milk, stirring until smooth Cook for 2 minutes on high. Stir in flour, salt, mustard until smooth. Then slowly add milk, stirring until smooth. Cook for 2 minutes on high. Stir well. Cook for 2-3 minutes longer, stirring every minute until the sauce boils and thickens.

3. Layer the casserole ingredients in the dish in this order: half of the onions and celery, ½ cup cracker crumbs, ¾ cup white sauce, ½ cup cheese, half of the pimiento or mushrooms, and half of the eggs. Repeat layers using remaining ingredients.

4. Melt 2 tablespoons margarine in a 2-cup measure or small bowl (microwave for 30-45 seconds on high). Stir in ½ cup cracker crumbs and cook on high for 2-3 minutes, stirring each minute until the crumbs are browned. Sprinkle over the top of the casserole.

5. Cook casserole, uncovered, for 10-12 minutes on medium high (70,7) until heated through. Let stand, covered, 5 minutes before serving. Makes 4 main dish servings, or 6-8 as a side dish.

TIPS:

--Replace pimiento or mushrooms with bacon: Cook 4 slices bacon in 8" square dish for 4 minutes on high. Remove bacon, drain and crumble. Saute vegetables in one tablespoon bacon fat instead of using butter or margarine, in Step 1 above.

--To make ahead, prepare through Step 3, cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate. In Step 4, brown cracker crumbs, but do not sprinkle on top of casserole. To heat for serving: Cook on medium high (70,7), covered with plastic wrap for 10 minutes. Remove cover, sprinkle crumbs over top and cook uncovered on medium high (70,7) for 5 minutes longer, until heated through.

Creamed eggs on toast can be whipped up in less than 10 minutes in your microwave. Add mushrooms for a gourmet feast and flavor treat.

Creamed Eggs

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup sliced mushrooms, optional
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
Dash Tabasco sauce or white pepper
1 cup milk
3 hard cooked eggs, peeled and slice or chopped
Toast (make in toaster, you can't make toast in the microwave!)

1. Put margarine and mushrooms in a one-quart casserole dish. (If not using mushrooms, just melt margarine.) Microwave on high for 3 minutes, stirring once halfway through. Stir in flour, salt and tabasco or pepper. Slowly stir in milk, stirring until smooth.

2. Microwave on high, uncovered, for 1½ minutes, stir well. Microwave on high for 2 minutes longer, stirring each minute until cream sauce boils and thickens.

3. Add eggs, stirring gently to mix. Microwave on medium (50,5) for about 2 minutes until heated through. (Use defrost (30,3) for about 3 minutes if your oven doesn't have medium power.) Serve hot over toast. Makes 2-3 servings.

NOTE: The cooking times above are for microwaves with 600-700 watts of cooking power. For 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 watts, add 20 seconds to each minute.

Carl Kreider grew the plot that was submitted for the Solanco Chapter. The plot placed second in the state contest, earning $750 for the Solanco Young Farmer Chapter and $250 plus three units of Pioneer seed corn for Kreider. Other Solanco participants, C. Martin Greenleaf, Jr., Karl Herr, and Walter Pownall, were presented $25 each from the chapter earnings for their support of the local contest.

The following corn awards were given to recognize winners in the local corn production contest:

Walter Pownall, Quarryville, produced 180 bushels of shelled corn per acre to win the corn grain division. Dale Peifer, Kirkwood, was second with 167 bushels and C. Grasslands chapter wins lion's share of FFA speech titles

BY GLENN B. KNIGHT

NEW HOLLAND – The host team – Grasslands Chapter – came out tops in parliamentary procedure during the 1985 Lancaster County FFA Speech Competition March 20 at Garden Spot High School.

Grasslanders also made a sweep of the prepared presentations in the Soil Conservation category, but it was there that the domination ended.

While Julie Hess and Karen Martin, of ELANCO, took first and second in the senior category, SOLANCO's Kelly Miller joined the winner's ranks with third place. Sharon Zimmerman, from Ephrata's Cloister Chapter, was the winning Greenhand as ELANCO's Adriene Payne and Karen Dero took second and third.

Penn Manor's Deb Martin spoke extemporaneously on "Why do FFA members participate in FFA activities?" to take top honors in that area. Barry Harnish, from the Garden Spot Chapter at Lampeter-Strasburg High School, came in second and Elizabethtown's Greg Musser rounded up a solid third.

In winning the Soil Conservation presentation, Elaine Zeiset delivered her manuscript titled, "Everyone's Dump". "The Chesapeake Bay Problem" was taken on by Lamar Gockley in his second place effort. Paul Quanbeck wrote on "Acid Rain – A Big Problem." All three are Grasslanders.

Staff Correspondent

BUTLER — The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association and the Pennsylvania Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association co-sponsored three commodity marketing seminars across the state during March. Farm women Rosemary Hartter and Jan Holliger of Eureka, Ill. headed the workshops aimed at teaching farmers basic marketing skills.

Several years ago Hartter found herself as executor of her parents' estate and discovered just how much she needed education in marketing. Seeking marketing knowledge, she went to several marketing meetings, attending some twice before she felt comfortable with the information.

A farm wife herself, she stresses, "A farm wife stands beside her husband in the operation, not behind him." The woman's role, she said, should be to help remove stress from her husband's life.

Touching her message with humor, Hartter teaches a down-to-earth understanding of the marketing procedures. This program, she stressed, is not just for a husband-wife team, but for family members and business partners as well. "It's a real necessity for the folks to learn this," Holliger added.

The women suggested five basic steps necessary to maintain a successful marketing operation.

Step one is to learn the jargon. This is basically mastering a new vocabulary which helps you interpret information from speakers, advisory services, reports, articles and other sources of information.

Step two involves learning to gather information and keeping records. By using simple and inexpensive tools to maintain daily, weekly, and long-term prices in the farm home, the wife can fit this task into her already busy schedule. Family members are good sources of help in gathering information, she said.

Step three is to market products for more than it costs to produce them. This is called learning how to figure production costs. Knowledge of each production cost is essential in marketing commodities.

Learning to use different marketing tools follows as step four. Understanding and using these tools properly to sell livestock or grain will be beneficial and profitable in the end.

The final and most important steop is to know yourself and your financial situation. Marketing can be a rewarding and profitable adventure, but, she added, it's not meant for everyone.

Hartter and Holliger presented workshops in Allentown, Lewisburg and Butler, as well as in their hometown state of Illinois.

Joe Buck, Pennsylvania's director of marketing of hogs, poultry, fruits and vegetables traveled with the women to the seminar sites. He related the overall view of how marketing works and its functions statewide.

Bee mites may be in Pa.

Pennsylvania beekeepers must take protective measures to keep the honey bee tracheal mite from spreading throughout the state's hives, a Penn State entomologist says.

"Scientists must come up with better sampling techniques, better control strategies and better methods of detection so beekeepers know exactly where they stand," says Clarence Collison. "If they get high infestation levels, beekeepers will likely suffer increased winter losses. This has the potential to be a serious problem."

Honey bee tracheal mites are internal parasites that survive in the breathing tubes of adult bees. They feed on the host's blood until maturity, and then migrate to other bees.

"The mite is an added stress to the bee," Collison explains. "It's greatest impact is under high infestation levels at times, when the colony is already exposed to stress, such as winter confinement."

After the initial American outbreak in Texas last July, tracheal mite infestations were confirmed in ten states. A national survey was commissioned, and Pennsylvania examined 47 samples of 100 bees each in compliance with the effort. No mites were found in Pennsylvania samples.

One month after the samples were taken, however, tracheal mites were found in Pennsylvania bees in a commercial operation sent to Florida for wintering.

"This means the mites are probably already in Pennsylvania, but weren't detected in the survey," Collison says. "Random sampling in Pennsylvania hasn't confirmed its presence, but the mite probably will be found. Infestations have been confirmed in New York and Ohio."

Northern beekeepers depend on southern bee breeders and queen bee suppliers. Some of the northern infestations can be traced back to queen and packaged bee sales and migratory beekeeping. Infestation can be controlled, Collison adds, if the mite situation encourages northern beekeepers to winter their bees on location.

"Pennsylvania beekeepers will have to produce more of their own queens. They'll have to split more of their colonies, and rely less on shipments from the South," he says. "I think that's what it will amount to."

Collison's main contention is not the spread of the disease, but the attention generated by the spread of the disease. Infestations are difficult to measure because mites are found at very low levels.

"There are two schools," he points out. "One says the mite is a serious problem at any infestation level, and something must be done. The other says infestation has been here for some time, and unless infestation levels reach 30 percent or more, we'll just have to live with it."

Since the mite find, Florida has been placed under bee quarantine by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Collison doesn't think the quarantine will be on for long.

"The purpose (of the quarantine) is to keep the mite within Florida," he says. "I think the industry has already come to the conclusion that it's going to be impossible to eradicate it.

"Right now, it looks like the infestation is the worst in Florida. But Florida officials have looked harder for the mite than any other state. The harder a state looks for mites, the greater are the chances of finding it. It's just a matter of time until we find it in Pennsylvania colonies."

Until then, Pennsylvania will take other protective measures. The state's Department of Agriculture released a statement this week on the shipment of bees both in and out of Pennsylvania: "Pennsylvania is prepared to accept bees which have been inspected in their states according to proposed guidelines. The state is also prepared to do the required sampling so bees can move from Pennsylvania to other states that accept these guidelines."

Collison belives that individual states might bow out of writing their own bee shipping regulations because "pandemonium could break out if every state developed its own rules and regulations."

"But if the federal government chooses not to get involved, and I suspect that that will happen, then states must accept the certificates of other states," he adds. "It must be a national effort, at least. Since it's been found in ten states, we can bet it's fairly well spread already."

THE FUERST F-L-E-X-I-B-L-E TINE HARROW/CART

Fuerst Hercules 30 Harrow carried on a Harrow Cart incorporating Treflan Amiben Lexone near Keota IA in one pass behind a 28 IH 496 disk

Improves Your Herbicide Performance!

- Eliminates a pass over your fields
- Requires little additional power
- Levels and prepares ideal seedbed

All for a minimum investment Harrow/Cart moves quickly from field to field 16 to 30 foot widths

You don't need expensive implements to incorporate herbicides!
Work done by several chemical companies and universities demonstrates how effective the Fuerst Flexible Tine Harrow is behind cultivators or disks In essence farmers are getting two incorporations in one pass with the bonus of outstanding leveling and an excellent seedbed

One Pass Incorporation Strategy
The Fuerst Harrow carried on a Fuerst Harrow Cart retains its flexibility when in use assuring same depth incorporation throughout Behind your cultivator or disk you can expect to get good results of incorporating and leveling even on trashy fields Eleven rows of unique 3½ inch long spreading action™ tines are linked together in a blanket like manner With no rigid frame the harrow is able to snake snugly over the contours of the ground The special tines are the key to the success of the Fuerst Hercules Harrow for incorporating and leveling achieving optimum results at 6 to 8 mph

- The Harrow Cart is rugged and follows tight turns behind a disk or cultivator wiping out wheel tracks as it goes
- The folding wings make transportation of the harrow from field to field a simple manner without restricting the harrows effectiveness in the field Can be transported directly behind disk or cultivator

800 SERIES PLANTERS

Early Riser Planters

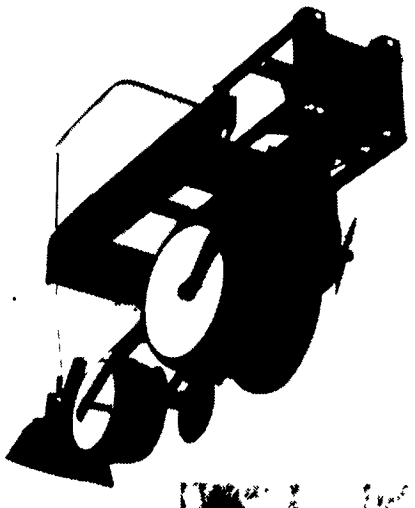
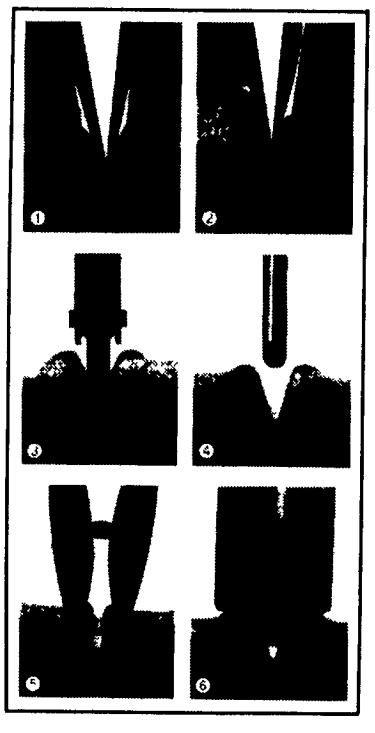
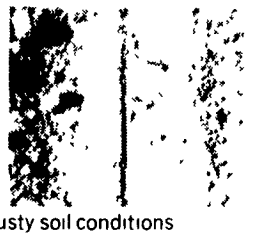
EARLY RISER ROW UNITS







Here's an actual photo of the Early Riser press wheel track Note the cracking slit it leaves in the soil so young plants can emerge easier in crusty soil conditions

Early Riser row units provide ideal seed environment preparation and seed placement for fast germination and uniform emergence.

The Early Riser row unit is the most advanced as sembly of its kind because it prepares and controls a seedbed environment conducive to fast germination and uniform seedling emergence in virtually all field conditions and ground preparation practices Its consistent performance is unmatched for achieving max imum yield potential Basically here s how the 800 Series row unit works

1 Staggered double disk opener design places one disk slightly ahead of the other so it opens the narrow est seed trench possible In addition the thin edge of the leading disk and the adjustable pressure springs work to penetrate hard soil easier and slice through heavy trash more effectively than conventional opener designs equipped with no till colters This reduces power requirements cuts plugging in trashy conditions and eliminates the need for expensive colter attachments

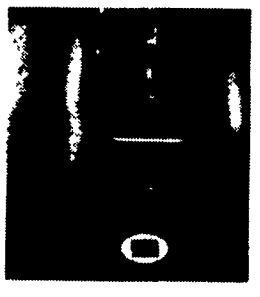
2. Exclusive front pull equalizing gauge wheels are connected through a special linkage that maintains equal pressure on the gauge wheels at all times As one wheel moves up over a clod the other wheel is forced down This equalizing action cuts opener move ment to half the height of the obstacle and results in smoother row unit operation more uniform depth con trol and better seed placement especially in rough or untilled ground In addition both wheels are fitted with special profile moisture-saving tires that trap moist soil alongside the furrow This allows moist soil to return to the trench first to surround the seed and help promote faster germination

3. IH patented furrow firming point firms the trench walls and removes loose soil from the bottom of the fur row leaving a well defined V shaped trench This elim inates seed bounce gives better seed to soil contact and improves capillary action of moisture to the seed for better faster germination

4 More uniform seed depth placement is another benefit of smooth narrow seed trenches Seeds deliv ered to the trench are grasped firmly and held in place eliminating seed bounce The clean furrow bottom also assures every seed is placed at the same depth a must for reliable uniform emergence

5 Twin inverted covering disks control the amount of soil cover Positioned directly behind the openers they replace moist soil captured by the special profile tires to the seed trench first assuring faster germination Covering disk depth is set automatically when row unit depth is selected for complete control over covering performance In addition the twin disk cutting action reduces plugging in trashy field conditions when com pared to other closing methods

6 Wide, semi-pneumatic press wheels gently compact soil over the seed to eliminate moisture robbing air pockets A center rib on each press wheel provides a cracking slit allowing young plants to emerge easier in crusty soil conditions The press wheels also produce a slightly mounded seedbed profile that is ideal for effec tive chemical banding



Match planter row unit per formance to field conditions without tools One knob conveniently located on the rear of each planter unit sets depth gauge wheels opener and covering disk depth and press wheel down pressure The row unit knob works on an index that s zeroed at the factory All you have to do is deter mine the proper setting for one unit then set all the other units at the same place on the scale Nothing could be faster or easier

ANNOUNCING A BETTER WAY TO CLEAN YOUR SOIL

SOIL FUMIGANT

Treating your soil with a fumigant helps get your crops off to a better start. But one problem with soil fumigants has been getting even distribution. Until now.

Now, with Vapam soil fumigant and the Hydroflo Cheminjector® pump, you can thoroughly fumigate your soil using your irrigation water. That saves you tedious hours of application, and the water does the work of distributing Vapam uniformly through the soil. You get more complete coverage using less fumigant. Without all that extra labor.

So you'll be able to do an even better job of getting potential problems out of the way before you plant your vegetables. Vapam eliminates verticillium and fusarium wilts and many other soil-borne diseases. And it helps clear the soil of nematodes and many germinating weed seeds. This helps make the job of weed control easier later in the season.

Now you can make better use of your Vapam than ever—at a lower cost than ever. See your Vapam supplier or contact Hydroflo for information on the Cheminjector pump. Follow label directions.

Stauffer Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemical Division, Westport, CT 06881.

Says "Pork '85" editor:

Opportunity is knocking in the hog business

"Pork '85" editor Bill Newham came East on Tuesday to address producers at Tri-County Swine Systems' Open House.

BY JACK HUBLEY

LEBANON — Hog producers willing to hone their marketing skills can expect a three to seven-percent increase in profits as return for their efforts.

This was the message delivered by Bill Newham, editor of "Pork '85" magazine, at Tuesday's sixth annual Open House hosted by Tri-County Swine Systems, Lebanon.

Addressing more than 100 producers, Newham outlined three forward pricing opportunities currently available to enterprising hog producers. "Hedging probably offers the most opportunity," Newham said, pointing out that hedging in hog futures protects a farmer's investment from downward price movement.

Trading in options, however, will allow the producer to take advantage of upward price movement, he pointed out. Explaining the procedure, Newham said that an up-front premium is paid to guarantee a price level.

"Say you pay $500 to guarantee $52 hogs in July. If the price is $52, you get that, but if the price goes to $55, then that's what you receive," he said. He also pointed out that option premiums are higher than those in the futures market because of the added "upside potential."

The third pricing method covered was forward contracting. Here the producer simply contracts to deliver a number of hogs at a predetermined price. This method usually offers the lowest profit potential of the three, Newham said.

"Another area where I see opportunities is in carcass merit selling," Newham continued. When buying on carcass merit, packers pay only for pounds of lean rather than on a live hog basis. According to Newham, dressed carcass prices in the midwest are based on the amount of backfat, using 1.1 to 1.2 inches as a base. Carcasses with less backfat than this are awarded premiums based on a sliding scale. Fatter carcasses are penalized according to the same scale.

"We're seeing a rapid growth of equitable carcass merit programs in the Midwest," Newham said. "It's a move by the industry to pay for a quality, lean-muscled product, and a quality product is where our future lies."

"Marketing is a skill, and a producer will have to grasp it to be truly successful," Newham pointed out. "And you don't have to be a large producer to realize the benefits," he added. "You can compete (with large operations) because you are your own labor force."

In summary, Newham characterized the hog business as an industry of "challenges and opportunities." He stressed that producers willing to keep detailed records and explore marketing opportunities such as forward pricing and carcass merit selling will be the pork producers of the future.

Other speakers complementing the day's activities included John Beck of DeKalb, who discussed management techniques aimed at increasing profits, and Penn State's Dr. Dan Hagen who talked about improving herd reproductive efficiency.

Also featured were Gene Hubbard of Ralston Purina who discussed the value of slaughter checks, and Penn State veterinarian Dr. Larry Hutchinson who discussed the role of biosecurity in disease prevention.

A manufacturer and installer of swine production facilities and equipment, Tri-County Swine Systems also builds and installs feeding equipment, including on-farm milling equipment, through its Automatic Farm Systems division.

Beef, sheep, swine discussed at W. Pa. Livestock Conference

Staff Correspondent

WARRENDALE — More than 70 western Pennsylvania livestock enthusiasts met at Warrendale's Quality Inn on Mar. 23, for the Western Pennsylvania Livestock Conference.

Speakers for the morning sessions included Extension farm management specialist William Waters, Extension meats scientist William Henning and Soil Conservation Service agronomist Thomas Calvert.

Addressing marketing problems, Henning placed the responsibility of marketing livestock products squarely on the shoulders of the producers. He stressed that producers need to know their markets before they can raise their animals correctly.

"You, the producer, need to put forth more of an effort because you are marketing more than just your product," Henning said. Quality, integrity and service must also be provided to the consumer, he said.

The subject of farm record keeping was addressed by William Waters. Complete records are fundamental to any farming operation, said Waters, as you cannot expect to manage anything that you don't measure.

Thomas Calvert touched on maximizing forage utilization and using pastures to their best advantage. Important points to consider, said Calvert, are soil productivity, plant productivity, plant management, percent digestibility and forage consumed per acre.

Concurrent beef, sheep and swine seminars were held during the afternoon. Joe Shick and Ed Woods, Extension agents from Lawrence and Washington Counties, respectively, talked about swine management and selection.

The beef session was conducted by Dr. Lester Burdette, who discussed the critical nutrients in supplying energy and protein to beef cattle. Beaver County agent Lee Miller conducted an informative session on the selection of beef cattle, touching on heifer replacements, cow herd size and sire selection.

Extension veterinarian Dr. Thomas Drake discussed the health of both beef herds and sheep. Using a month-by-month run-down, Drake explained worming, vaccinating and flushing procedures for lambs and ewes.

Sheep specialist Clair Engle discussed sheep feeding and nutrition. He noted that it is vitally important to know when the flock should be fed, as well as what feeds to provide.

The proper balance of protein, salt, calcium, phosphorus, vitamins and water is essential for the health of both ewes and growing lambs, Engle said.

Selection of sheep was covered by Beaver County agent Bob Calvert. Factors to be considered in the selection process include climate, available nutrition and other environmental factors. The producer must also assess the market potential of breeds in his area, and decide what commodity will be produced, be it meat, wool or both.

Anyone wishing to obtain a copy of the day's presentations may do so by contacting Beaver County Extension agent Lee Miller, phone: 412-728-5700.

Sheep owners: Shearing time is here again

NEWARK, Del. — Now is the time for sheep owners to prepare for shearing their flocks. "All too often, people wait until the last minute before contacting their shearer," says University of Delaware extension agricultural agent Richard Barczewski. "As a result, their sheep aren't shorn until after the annual wool pool, which means they could have difficulty finding buyers for their wool."

Barczewski suggests producers arrange now for a mid-April or early May shearing date.

"Remember that you and the shearer have certain responsibilities to each other," the agent says. To make it easier for the shearer, he suggests shepherds take the following steps:

- Be prepared. Have the shearing area ready before the shearer gets there.
- Pen the sheep ahead of time. Don't expect the shearer to chase them for you.
- Make sure the animals are dry. "There's nothing more frustrating to a shearer than driving out to a farm expecting to do a job that can't even be started," Barczewski says.
- Be prepared to roll and tie the fleeces. Generally there's enough time to do this before catching another sheep for the shearer. Be sure to use paper twine only.
- Keep the work area clean. The best surface for shearing is wood. Have a broom handy to sweep away tags and dirt so clean fleeces won't be contaminated.
- Don't expect to trim feet and deworm animals while they're being shorn. Shearers usually don't mind if these procedures are completed before or after shearing, provided there are enough hands available to keep things moving smoothly while they work.

In return for this cooperation, the shearer should do a clean, smooth job, removing all the wool (including that on heads and legs) without excessive nicks and cuts and without second cuts to fleeces, keeping each fleece in one piece, and treating animals gently.

Shearers generally carry 100 feet of extension cord for use with electric shears, Barczewski says. Some also carry a supply of paper twine, but check ahead of time to be sure your shearer does. If not, you must provide this.

Shearing prices vary depending on the number of sheep to be shorn and travel distance to the farm. With only one or two animals, the price could be as high as $20. Usually, the bigger the flock, the lower the price.

Pork Prose

Kenneth B. Kephart

University of Del.

Is there any merit to growing and feeding grain sorghum (milo) to hogs on Delmarva? We asked the question about a year and a half ago. At that time it was a crop we didn't know much about. And the market for milo was poor or non-existent. But since then interest has been growing – especially among hog producers. And at the University of Delaware, we're starting to generate some useful information. Here's what we've found in regard to the feeding value of grain sorghum.

We conducted our first study with the help of Ralph Lowe and Kip Foskey at the University of Delaware swine unit at the Georgetown substation in December of 1983. We formulated two diets that contained roughly 18 percent crude protein – one a corn-soy mixture, the other milo-soy. Sixty pigs averaging 34 pounds were fed one of the two diets for 28 days. The performance of the pigs is shown in the table below.

Trail 1: Effect of Grain Sorghum in Young Growing Pigs

	Corn-Soy Diet	Milo-Soy Diet
Daily Feed Intake, lbs.	2.39	2.51
Daily Gain, lbs.	1.09	1.16
Feed/Gain	2.24	2.17

Although the numbers seem to be in favor of the milo, there is no statistical difference between the two groups in regard to feed intake, growth rate, or feed efficiency. So this pilot study showed a lot of promise.

Our next step was to see what milo could do in the field. Delaware extension crops specialist Frank Webb planted more than 60 hybrids in the spring of 1984 to test their yield potential. In addition, he set up three side-by-side plots – containing corn, birdresistant milo and non-bird-resistant milo.

After harvest, each of the grains from these side-by-side plots was used to formulate a hog finishing diet. The corn diet was formulated to contain 14 percent crude protein. For the other diets, we substituted milo for corn on a pound-for-pound basis. Pigs were on test for 50 days. Field results and animal performance are shown below.

Trial 2: Field Results & Hog Performance Using Corn, Milo, or Bird-resistant Milo

Pioneer Variety	3358	8650	B864
Yield, bu/acre	113	80	119
Initial Wt.	108	109	108
Final Wt.	223	216	214
Daily Feed Intake, lbs.	7.4	7.2	6.9
Daily Gain, lbs.	2.31[a]	2.14[b]	2.11[b]

Under our conditions there was little difference in hog performance between the bird-resistant and non-bird resistant varieties of milo. Together, the pigs on the milo diest grew about 8 percent slower than those on the corn-soy diet. And, as the table shows, no statistical differences in feed conversion were found among the dietary treatments. But when the milo data was combined and compared to that of corn, pigs on the corn diets were about 4 percent more efficient. That difference was significant.

What does all of this mean if you're a hog producer? If you grow a pig from 50 to 220 pounds, using milo instead of corn will require an extra 6.5 days and 20 additional pounds of feed. If you assume that the overhead cost of keeping a hog around for another week is 10 cents a day, and corn prices are in the range of $2.50 to $3.50 a bushel, then the break-even prices for feeding milo will be about 25 cents a bushel under corn price.

Some notes of caution:

- Other varieties, especially the bird-resistant hybrids, may not provide the same level of performance that we observed.
- Milo has a higher protein content than corn. But because of the limited lysine, we recommend that formulation be on a pound-for-pound basis.
- Although these trials were completed without problems, we still have only two trials. More data is needed. More data is coming.
- Unless you stop raising corn altogether, you'll probably need additional storage for the milo. The added costs may reduce some of its advantages.
- If you continue to raise more than one grain, you'll have additional handling.
- Milo is not as simple to dry as corn because of its small kernel size. Check drier manufacturer's recommendations if you have questions.

In summary, our studies so far indicate that milo is comparable to corn as a field crop. In dry years if may even be better. And as a grain for hogs, it's only slightly inferior to corn. The data may not be enough to convince anyone that milo is the only way to go – but it's sure something to think about.

For more information, you can write for the results of the 1984 Delaware sorghum variety trials. The address is: University of Delaware Substation, RD #2, Box 48, Georgetown, DE 19947.

On-farm testing prevents antibiotic residues

BY DR. LARRY HUTCHINSON and
SHARON E. HARMON
Penn State veterinary scientists

UNIVERSITY PARK – Preventing antibiotic residues in marketed products is a concern to every livestock producer. The penalties for a residue violation can be costly, whether milk is produced, hogs are marketed or steers are fed. In addition, food supplies must be wholesome to meet consumer expectations. American consumers have enjoyed some of the highest quality livestock products in the world, and their respect and confidence must be maintained.

One means of preventing residues is to test any questionable product before it is sold. Tests are now available that can easily be done right on the farm or, if preferred, by a veterinarian.

The Delvotest P for milk is the most widely known on-farm test. Used by many cooperatives to screen members' milk, the Delvotest P detects most antibiotics. The kit consists of 10 ampules containing spores of the organism Bacillus stearothermophilus var calidolactis in a solid medium, tablets containing nutrients and a color indicator, and a dosing syringe for measuring milk samples.

To perform the test, break the tip off the ampules, add a nutrient tablet and the milk sample, and incubate for 2 1/2 hours. Results are based on color change. A yellow color is negative and means no antibiotics are present. Positive samples will be purple.

The cost for the Delvotest P is $1.87 per test. A water bath or block heater is needed to incubate the samples. The block heater sells for about $95.

A second test for antibiotics in milk is Penzyme. Penzyme detects the presence of betalactam antibiotics. These antibiotics include penicillin, cephapirin, hetacillin, ampicillin, cloxicillin, oxacillin, nafcillin, amoxicillin and cephalosporins.

Penzyme's kit is similar to Delvotest's. It contains ampules, tablets, and a syringe for measuring the milk sample. Rather than testing for microorganism growth, however, Penzyme tests an enzyme reaction between reagents in the vial and tablet, and antibiotics that may be present in the milk.

Penzyme is a two-step procedure. Remove the cap from the enzyme vial and add the milk sample. Incubate the vial for five minutes. After this first incubation, add one tablet to the vial, swirl gently, and incubate for 15 more minutes. At the end of the incubation, a pink color means a negative result, while yellow indicates the presence of antibiotics. Penzyme tests cost about $2 each. The incubator sells for $70.

Another test, which is both inexpensive and versatile, is the LAST (Live Animal Swab Test). This test detects most antibiotics. A similar test, the CAST (Calf Antibiotic Sulfa Test), is designed to check bob veal calves for both antibiotics and sulfas.

Although originally developed to be used only with urine, the LAST has been used to test milk, saliva and blood–all with good results. LAST and CAST are the only tests that can detect residues in the meat of animals prior to marketing.

The LAST kit contains agar gel test plates, a bottle of the test bacteria, Bacillus subtilis, paper antibiotic discs, and cotton swabs.

To determine if an animal is ready to market, obtain a urine sample. Follow the directions to prepare the agar gel plate with the test bacteria. Dip two cotton-tipped swabs in the urine and place them on the plate along with the antibiotic disc. Incubate for 18-24 hours. At the end of this time, if the bacteria on the plate have grown up to the swabs, and there is no growth around the antibiotic disc, the test is negative. A clear zone of no growth around the swab tips indicates the antibiotics are still present in the animal's system and the animal should not be marketed.

The FDA officially recognized the LAST test for urine only, but trials on milk samples give promising results. The LAST did have some false positives (too sensitive), but no false negatives on milk samples. For a test of this type, it is much better to obtain a few false positives than to have false negative results.

The LAST has also been used on swabs that have been placed on hogs' mouths to absorb the saliva.

One of the major advantages of the LAST is its low cost. The supplies for each test cost about $1.10. For $10 or $12, you can make an incubator using a Styrofoam cooler and an automatic aquarium heater.

One of the biggest drawbacks to the LAST is the recommended 18-24 hour incubation. Often, however, you start to see results in as little as 10 hours.

A free booklet that tells how to perform the LAST, how to make your own incubator, and where to order supplies can be obtained by writing: Publications Office, FSIS-ILA Room 1163-S, U.S.D.A. Washington, D.C. 20250 and asking for Agriculture Handbook Number 601, "How to Perform the Live Animal Swab Test for Antibiotic Residues."

The Penzyme test is available from SmithKline Animal Health Products, 1600 Paoli Pike, P.O. Box 2650, West Chester, PA 19380. Or, you may call 1-800-523-4835 Ext. 281-7506. For the Delvotest P, contact Nedco Inc., Verona, N.Y. 13478, or call 315-363-9141.

Many milk plant and private veterinarians do residue testing or provide testing supplies.

As more emphasis is placed on our food supply being "natural," "organic," and "untainted," the public is going to be looking closely at the possibility of antibiotics getting into our food chain. On-farm antibiotic tests are one way the producer can protect both himself and the consumer from the possibility of drug contamination of marketed food products.

When to test for antibiotics

In order for any antibiotics test to be beneficial, it must be used whenever there is the possibility of a residue problem. Listed below are some occasions when the tests could be useful:

For milk testing:

1. Screen milk from cows that have been treated with an antibiotic, a route of administration or a dosage level for which withdrawal times are not available.
2. Screen milk from cows that have been dry treated and that calve early.
3. Check bulk tank milk if it is suspected that milk from a treated cow was accidentally added to the tank.
4. Check purchased cows for residue before adding their milk to the tank.
5. Check routine-treated cows to make sure antibiotic has cleared their milk.

For testing urine from meat-producing livestock:

1. Test animals after off-label use of medication – drugs given to a different species or by a different route than that specified on the label.
2. Test urine after withdrawl time if more than the recommended dose of drug may have been given.
3. Test animal after withdrawal time if a combination of drugs has been used.
4. Check very debilitated animals after treating, since these animals may have longer drug clearance times.
5. Test any animal before shipment to slaughter if there is a possibility of drug residue.

WYE Angus Sale tops $80,000

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – The 7th annual sale of Wye Angus bulls, cows and calves by the University of Maryland on Mar. 25, grossed just over $80,000.

The animals–consisting of 28 yearling bulls, and nine cows with calves at their side–brought $80,625, with an average price of $1,456 per bull and $4,428 per cow, according to Dr. W. Lamar Harris, director of the university's Agricultural Experiment Station (UMAES).

UMAES operates the Wye Research and Education Center where the animals are raised for research. The center was also the site of the sale.

"The Wye herd is the only repository in the world of black Angus breeding stock for which meticulous records of ancestry have been kept for more than 40 years," Harris said.

This is the second year the university, through its University of Maryland Foundation, has offered females in its annual sale.

"This gives serious minded breeders the opportunity to work with genetic material that has taken decades to develop," said Ed Oliver, a consultant to this year's sale.

LANCASTER FARMING 30 Years Of Service 1955 1985

Genetics point the way to increased profits

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — Substandard genetics will slap a lid on pork production no matter how much a producer invests in environment and nutrition, says Dr. Gene Isler.

As the featured speaker at the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council's Progressive Pork Producers Seminar held at Lancaster's Farm and Home Center on Mar. 28, the Ohio State Extension swine specialist emphasized that all pigs are not created equal, and that a major limiting factor in any herd is its genetic potential.

Selection is still the producer's best tool in improving this genetic potential, said Isler, and the best indicator of a boars sireability is his own performance record.

"We can measure growth rate and backfat on a boar at five months of age and have a pretty good indicator of a boar's sireability," Isler said.

And using those top boars on crossbred sows is one way of improving herd performance, he pointed out. Having the right crossing program is worth about $70 per litter, said the specialist. A swine producer himself, Isler likes to get as close to 100 percent hybridization in his sow herd as possible. "At least 86 percent is what I'd accept," he said.

"Utilize your sire breeds and sow breeds so they fit like the pieces of a puzzle," Isler advised, pointing out that producers are currently shifting to the use of two white breeds in a three-breed cross.

During the afternoon session, Isler once again took the podium to point out the benefits of artificial insemination in swine production.

"Anyone can learn in five minutes all they need to know about breeding a sow," he said. "In fact, they can place the semen better than a boar."

Isler explained the use of the special spiraled rod in insemination, and also covered the subject of training boars for semen collection.

"Breeding many sows close together takes a lot of boars," Isler explained, " but with AI, a producer can breed between five and 20 sows with one collection,and do it all on his own farm." He also pointed out that liquid semen can be successfully stored at 65 degrees for three to five days, eliminating the need for daily collections.

"Timing is essential to the success of AI," Isler cautioned. The sow ovulates about 40 hours after the onset of standing heat, the specialist explained, so the producer must be skilled at heat detection. For maximum conception rate and litter size, sows should receive two to three services during the last half of their two to three-day heat period.

"Some people worry that AI will hurt the seedstock suppliers, but really what it does is increase demand for the superior boars," Isler concluded.

Also featured during the day-long program were veterinarians Dr. Timothy Trayer and Dr. Robert Graybill who discussed reproductive health, and farrowing and estrus synchronization.

The afternoon session included a panel discussion by producers having experience with artificial insemination. The panel included Larry Baum of Elizabethtown, David Lucas of Elverson, Mark Nestleroth of Manheim and Bernville producer Erich Schmitt.

Weis hosts farmer dinner

SUNBURY — Over 150 Pennsylvania fruit and vegetable growers were guests of Weis Markets at an annual dinner meeting held recently at the Country Cupboard Restaurant in Union County.

The growers who are all participants in a Grower-Distributor group, Pennsylvania farmers who grow and sell all or part of their crops to Weis Markets, were commended for helping make 1984 a year of progress in Pennsylvania.

George Michalak, Vice President for Weis Markets, was joined at the meeting by Pennsylvania officials and legislators in reviewing the efforts in agriculture during the past year.

Deputy Secretary of Agriculture, E. Chester Heim, told growers that agriculture continues to be Pennsylvania's number one industry, employing a million Pennsylvanians with farm receipts totalling more than $3 billion annually. Also, he added, Pennsylvania's fine family of farmers, who represent our proud heritage, are today's most valuable resource.

Other featured speakers included U.S. Congressman, George Gekas and House Representative Merle Phillips.

Throughout the year, Weis Markets with the help of the growers and the Department of Agriculture participated in the promotion of Pennsylvania products. This effort, according to Deputy Secretary Heim, made a meaningful contribution to increasing customer awarness of the goods produced in the Commonwealth.

Last year, Weis Markets purchased a total value of $60,426,157 of Pennsylvania Farm Fresh Products, an increase in value of more than $5,000,000 over the previous year.

Michalak concluded the meeting by discussing the diversity of agriculture within the Commonwealth as well as the plans made to help keep the family farm in Pennsylvania economically secure and protect an agricultural way of life that has had a profound impact on our state and nation.

Bush Hog offers tow-behind and mounted ATV sprayers

SELMA, Al. — Bush Hog has expanded its line of ATV products to include tow-behind and mounted sprayers, according to Bob Weaver of Carlisle, Bush Hog sales representative for Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

"These sprayers are ideal for applying herbicides or insecticides in a variety of situations," Weaver said. "Both models are equipped with booms for spraying open areas such as small pastures, lawns and gardens and spray guns for spot application around trees and shrubs."

The 50 gallon capacity tow-behind sprayer has a removable tongue and wheels that allow it to be mounted on the bed of a pick-up. Its operator has a choice of spraying with either a 13-foot, four-row boom or with the spray gun. The gun comes with 25 feet of hose and can spray 20 or 30 feet, depending on the spray pattern.

The 10 gallon capacity mounted sprayer is fitted with a universal mount for ATV racks. Its 50-inch boom has a 60-inch spray pattern and its spray gun has 15 feet of hose.

Both sprayers are equipped with heavy duty polyurethane tanks that resist even the harshest chemicals. Three way valves are used to divert the spray to the guns or booms and the sprayers are powered by 50 PSI Flo-Jet pumps that operate off the ATV electrical system. The tow-behind sprayer can be made self-contained with the addition of a 12-volt battery.

For further information, contact Bush Hog, Department NR-SP, P.O. Box 1039, Selma, AL 36701.

ATV's can be equipped with Bush Hogs 10-gallon mounted sprayer, or a 50-gallong pull-behind model.

Bullet's Ruland says,

"Drink your milk"

TOWSON, Md. – Jeff Ruland, the 6 foot 10 inch center of the Washington Bullets basketball team, is asking kids to drink their milk and see how they measure up to him. Ruland conveys this fitness message to children via a growth poster produced by the Advertising and Promotion Agency of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area.

The growth poster features a life-size picture of Ruland holding a milk carton and says, "Drink Your Milk and See How You Measure Up to Jeff Ruland." The poster is calibrated down the side so that a child may measure and chart his or her growth. Over 7000 youngsters received the colorful Ruland poster on Saturday, March 23rd, as they entered the Bullets vs. Celtics game at the Capital Centre in Largo, Md.

Bryon J. Meredith, Jr. presented Ruland with a silver milk pitcher in a pre-game ceremony recognizing Ruland for his lifestyle exemplifying health and fitness. Meredith is a MAMMA board member and division manager for Shenandoah's Pride Dairy.

An additional 1000 Ruland posters are being distributed to school lunch supervisors to post in school cafeterias.

Automatic's nozzles control droplet size

PENDER, Nebr. — New Micronizer JR. atomizing nozzles convert standard nozzles to controlled droplet size, according to Ryder Supply. The nozzles replace the three nozzles contained in the standard horizontal volute and produce a uniform 100 micron spray.

Each Micronizer JR. nozzle has a fixed orifice flow regulator with a conical grooved and toothed disc that rotates to break up droplets into uniform size. The disc is rotated by a turbine powered by the air blast from the mist sprayer.

The Micronizer JR. adapts to any standard Automatic Mist Sprayer and provides increased efficiency and greater cost-effectiveness with agricultural chemicals.

For further details contact the manufacturer, Automatic Equipment Mfg. Co., Department JR, Pender, Nebraska 68047, 402-85-3054, or the distributor, Ryder Supply, Box 219, Chambersburg, 17-263-9111.

Increasing concern over water quality

CREAMERY — A farmer with livestock concentrated in a small area can spend as much for a system to manage manure as the average American family spends on its home.

The volume of animal waste generated by a large farm can equal that of a small town according to District Conservationist Edward J. Brzostek, of the Soil Conservation Service at Creamery - 4H Center, Montgomery County.

"But there the similarity ends," he said. In town, the cost of disposing of the waste is divided among those who create it. On the farm, one person, the operator, bears all the costs unless technical assistance and cost sharing can be obtained from a public agency.

Today's farmers are facing increasing problems in disposing of animal waste and they are finding the solutions costly. Years ago, the farmer's investment was a pitchfork and a manure spreader. Manure was looked on as a farm waste product and spreading on fields was the easiest way to get rid of it.

The modern intensification of agriculture has, in large part, changed the farmers' opinion about manure. Most farmers have increased awareness of its plant food value. The nutrient value of manure can make crops grow better and save some of the cost of commercial fertilizer, Brzostek said.

At the same time, an expanding urban population is becoming aware of other effects of animal waste. Families which build or buy next to cropland may count the odor of spread manure as a nuisance. The smell from an unmanaged pile or pond of manure can be much worse.

Some families and communities are learning that poorly stored accumulations of manure or even manure overapplied and carelessly managed on crop fields can pollute surface and well water supplies.

"Part of the problem goes back to our forefathers," said Brzostek. "When farming began in this area, the best location for a barn was near a stream. There was no running water in those days and the farm animals got their drinking water from the stream."

That was not much of a problem when each farmer had a few cows, pigs, and chickens, he explained, but now many farms have more than 100 cows and some have 100,000 or more chickens.

When the farmer turns to SCS engineering technicians or Cooperative Extension Service county agents for help, they find out the solutions to animal waste problems are not always cheap.

Many farmers are turning to manure management systems which combine storage with application. The storage structures can cost anywhere from $5,000 for an earthen pond to $50,000 or more for a metal fabricated tank.

Brzostek said that on the average, farmers in this area are spending about $15,000 for their storage structures.

Farmers use various methods to get the manure on the land. Most farmers are spreading manure on the surface and disking or plowing it into the soil, he said, while a few are investing the equipment to inject the manure into the soil.

New equipment to apply manure can cost a farmer an additional $10,000 to $20,000 or more. The farmer is faced with a major expense, Brzostek said, while most of the benefits will go to others through better water quality.

There is a benefit to the farmer of lower fertilizer bills, Brzostek said, but the more expensive systems are so costly that they will not pay for themselves in the farmer's lifetime.

For this reason, Brzostek added, many farmers feel that the government should increase its contributions toward installation. They can now get up to $3,500 through the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP). In a few areas, other Federal or State programs provide additional funding. Brzostek said that Montgomery county farmers have completed two animal waste managements through the ACP program last year. Three are planned for this year.

"This represents a sizeable investment," he said. "Thanks to farmers who are doing their jobs, our ground water and streams are getting cleaner."

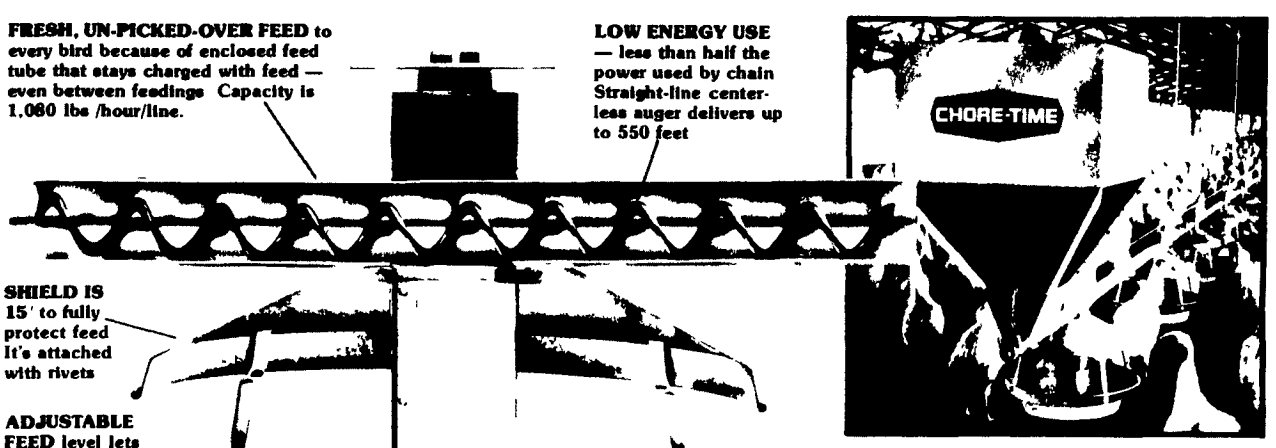
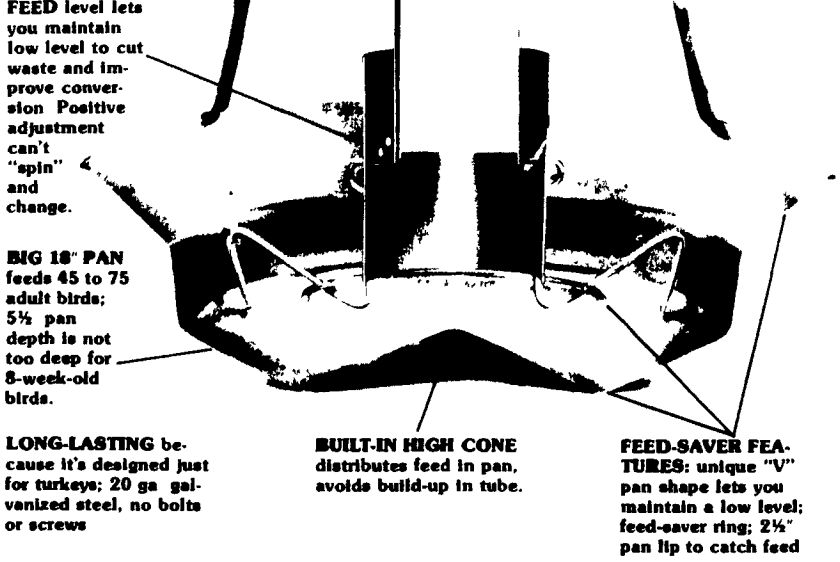
—that's why it's No. 1 with turkey producers

Chore-Time was first with a confinement turkey feeder, while others were trying to sell you made-over range feeders. We've kept improving on our idea. Now, Chore-Time's Turkey Feeding Systems are the standard of the world. No other equipment even comes close — in feed conversion features, in ruggedness, in ease of operation. That's why growers who have Chore-Time say, "Nothing else works like a Chore-Time system." Before you buy, consider the facts about Chore-Time's unique Model ATF Adult Turkey Feeder, plus our starter and grower systems:



FRESH, UN-PICKED-OVER FEED to every bird because of enclosed feed tube that stays charged with feed — even between feedings Capacity is 1,080 lbs /hour/line.
LOW ENERGY USE — less than half the power used by chain Straight-line center-less auger delivers up to 550 feet
CHORE-TIME



SHIELD IS 15" to fully protect feed It's attached with rivets
ADJUSTABLE FEED level lets you maintain low level to cut waste and improve conversion Positive adjustment can't "spin" and change.
BIG 18" PAN feeds 45 to 75 adult birds; 5½ pan depth is not too deep for 8-week-old birds.
LONG-LASTING because it's designed just for turkeys; 20 ga galvanized steel, no bolts or screws BUILT-IN HIGH CONE distributes feed in pan, avoids build-up in tube.
FEED-SAVER FEATURES: unique "V" pan shape lets you maintain a low level; feed-saver ring; 2½" pan lip to catch feed

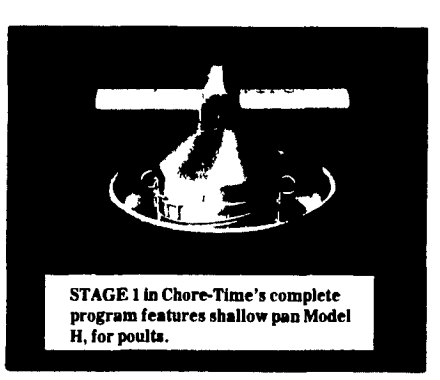
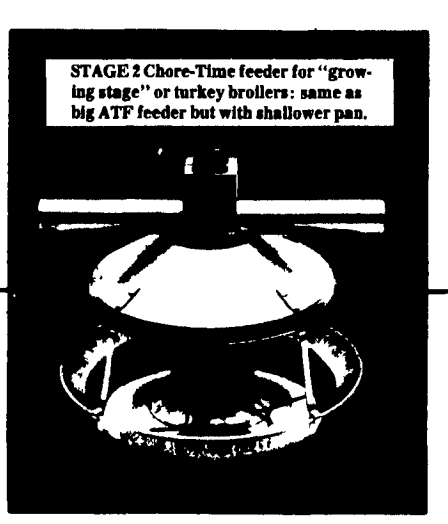
10-YEAR AUGER warranty: no one else comes close.



STAGE 1 in Chore-Time's complete program features shallow pan Model H, for poults.



STAGE 2 Chore-Time feeder for "growing stage" or turkey broilers: same as big ATF feeder but with shallower pan.

Preliminary tests indicate sulfur deficiency in some fields

READING – A sulfur deficiency? Here in Pennsylvania?

It doesn't seem likely. Unlike the coarse-textured, sandy soils found on bottomland and along the coast – where sulfur deficiency is more apt to occur – the heavy clays that dominate the Keystone State keep a tight grip on soil nutrients.

And don't forget all the "free" sulfur that blows in from the industrial Midwest. For decades emissions from steel mills and other factories there have dumped significant amounts of sulfur – a protein-forming nutrient – on local soils, prompting some farmers call it "pennies from heaven."

Nevertheless, reports have surfaced in recent years about crops in and around Pennsylvania responding to applications of sulfur fertilizer.

Last year, in university test plots in Landisville and Rock Springs, extension agronomist Dr. Elwood Hatley and researchers from Allied Corporation averaged wheat yield increases of 2.3 and 3.6 bushels, respectively, in sulfur-treated plots. All plots were planted with the Tyler variety.

On winter barley, yields jumped nearly a bushel.

Hatley says he was surprised by the yield increases. "I wasn't even looking for a crop response to sulfur," he says, "and at this point, I'm not sure that I saw one. I set out to compare two different nitrogen sources – ammonium sulfate (21-0-0-24S) and ammonium nitrate (33-0-0). The plots treated with ammonium sulfate happened to produce a better yield."

Why?

"I don't know. I really have no idea," the agronomist concedes. "It may have been the sulfur. It may have been all the ammoniacal N in ammonium sulfate. Or maybe it was a combination of both factors. We'll resume tests with Allied this year and see what happens."

All plots in the Penn State study received equal rates of N. Sulfur rates ranged from 10 to 30 pounds per acre.

While Hatley is intrigued by the possible need for sulfur, he also points out the irony of the situation. "Environmental scientists are conducting acid rain studies only a half mile from the site where we recorded the 3.6-bushel increase," he says.

Tom Hemphill, an agronomist for Allied Corporation, adds, "I'm sure we're still getting plenty of sulfur from the atmosphere, but we may not be getting enough to support today's high-yielding crop varieties."

Penn State does not include sulfur in its official fertilizer recommendations for small grains because only one year of study has been conducted to date. Hatley also notes that while yield increases were noted in all ammonium sulfate plots, the 3.6-bushel increase recorded at Rock Springs was the only test considered "statistically significant."

Researchers frequently use what is known as an LSD factor – for "least significant difference" – to account for natural variations in individual test plots. In this wheat study, a yield increase of more than two bushels per acre was considered statistically significant, meaning that a 3.6 bushel, or 7 percent, yield increase would be possible 95 percent of the time.

In the meantime, some farmers are putting out sulfur test plots of their own. Dairyman Floyd Kurtz of Fleetwood, Pa., says he recorded an 8 percent yield increase and a $12.70 per acre net return on a $2 per acre investment in sulfur fertilizer.

"I'm going to topdress sulfur on all of my wheat this spring," he says. "I might even try some on my corn."

Working with fieldman Roy Kurtz (no relation) of Reading Bone Fertilizer, Inc., a farm supplier in Reading, Floyd topdressed half of a 12-acre field with 50 pounds N in the form of a 30 percent UAN solution. The other half received 50 pounds N plus 10 pounds sulfur. The nitrogen-sulfur combination was applied as a 20-0-0-4S made with UAN solution and fluid-grade ammonium sulfate, a fine mesh dry fertilizer that Reading Bone mixes with liquid fertilizers. (Ammonium sulfate is also available in a granular grade for bulk blends.)

Both plots had been seeded the previous fall with Pioneer S-76 and had received 300 pounds of 6-20-20.

At harvest, the plot receiving sulfur yielded 59.6 bushels per acre, 4.2 bushels more than the adjacent plot topdressed with N only.

Dairyman Eddie Mercer of Frederick, Md., is also hooked on sulfur. "I haven't put out any test plots or anything. But then again, I haven't felt a need to, either," he says. "All I know is that my soil tests have consistently shown a need for 20-25 pounds of sulfur per acre, I'm using sulfur in my fertilizer program, and I'm producing the best yields I've had in years."

On non-irrigated land, Mercer

USDA boosts tobacco fund contribution by 25 cents

WASHINGTON – Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block today announced that, as a condition of price support eligibility for the 1985 flue-cured tobacco crop, producers must contribute 25 cents per pound to a no net cost fund.

The Secretary also said the support level on the 1985 crop will be $1.699 per pound, the same as the 1982-84 support levels.

The Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation recommended the 25-cent contribution, Block said. The contributions are intended to ensure that the tobacco support program will be operated at no net cost to taxpayers in conformity with the No Net Cost Tobacco Program Act of 1982.

The 25-cent contribution is an increase of 18 cents over last year. The increase is necessary, Block said, to cover projected losses on the 1982 through 1985 crops. By Jan. 1, 1985, the Flue-Cured Cooperative Stabilization Corporation held the largest inventory since 1965. Nearly one-fourth of 1982-84 producer marketings went into the association's inventory, and sales of the tobacco have been minimal. The amount of the contribution will be re-evaluated if legislative changes are made which wil substantially reduce the projected losses, Secretary Block said.

The Agricultural Act of 1949 provides that the 1985 flue-cured tobacco crop by supported at the same level at which the 1982 crop was supported if the basic support level increases by no more than 5 percent from the 1984 level as determined by the regular statutory formula. Since the 1985 basic support level is only 2.8 percent higher than the computed level of support for the 1984 crop, the level of support of $1.699 per pound that was applicable for the 1982 crop is also applicable for the 1985 crop.

Block said grade loan rates will be announced later

Producers who market 1985 crop flue-cured tobacco that is ineligible for price support because they have not agreed to contribute to the fund will be subject to the same penalty that applies to the marketing of excess tobacco, Block said. The penalty equals 75 percent of the previous year's average market price.

Price support programs for tobacco are administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service through loans to producer associations.

averages 70-bushel wheat, 51-bushel soybeans, 95-bushel barley and 165-bushel corn. His stands of pure alfalfa have yielded up to 8 tons per acre with a crude protein of 22-24 percent.

Roy Kurtz, who has been selling fertilizer for Reading Bone for 25 years, thinks the popularity of high-analysis N-P-K fertilizers over the past decade has created a sulfur shortage in some soils.

Unlike ammonium sulfate and ordinary superphosphate (0-20-0-12S), which contain significant amounts of incidental sulfur, high-analysis materials such as urea, ammonium nitrate, N solutions and triple superphosphate do not contain any sulfur, he explains.

"Before these fertilizers came along, farmers routinely applied sulfur to their fields – perhaps without realizing it," he says. "When they stopped using materials like ammonium sulfate, they unintentionally omitted sulfur from their fertilizer programs. Now, I think, it's beginning to catch up with them."

According to a report by The Sulphur Institute, an international trade group based in Washington, D.C., the first crop response to sulfur fertilizer in the United States was recorded right here in Pennsylvania by one of the state's most famous citizens – Benjamin Franklin.

The story goes that Franklin took some gypsum, which contains about 15 units of sulfur, and wrote, "This land has been plastered," on a hillside near Philadelphia. His inscription "greened up" within a few days and was visible to passers-by.

The Sulphur Institute says at least 35 states have reported crop responses to applied sulfur, nearly a three-fold increase since 1960. The Institute cites high-analysis N-P-K fertilizers, more intensive land use, and cleaner air resulting from pollution-control regulations enacted in the early 1970s as the primary reasons for the trend.

Like N, P and K, sulfur is one of 16 basic elements needed to support plant and animal life. More specifically, sulfur aids protein and chlorophyll formation.

"Without adequate sulfur, a crop cannot be expected to reach its full potential in terms of yield, quality or protein content," Hemphill claims. "That doesn't mean all crops need sulfur fertilizer. But farmers should learn to keep tabs on the sulfur status of their soils."

Sulfur-deficiency symptoms vary from crop to crop, though there are a few general signs. Plants tend to be small and spindly with short, slender stalks. Growth rate is retarded and maturity is often delayed, particularly with cereal grains. On most plants, young leaves turn light green to yellowish in color, with even lighter colored veins. Nitrogen-deficiency symptoms are similar, but yellowing from an N shortage usually begins on the lower, older leaves instead.

Soil and plant-tissue tests provide a general indication of sulfur needs, says Hemphill. But not all ag labs in the Northeast – including Penn State's – are geared up to run sulfur tests, he cautions. "And if they are, a special request must be made," he says.

Hemphill thinks home test plots are the truest indicator of sulfur needs. Applying one pound of sulfur for every five to 10 pounds of nitrogen is generally recommended.

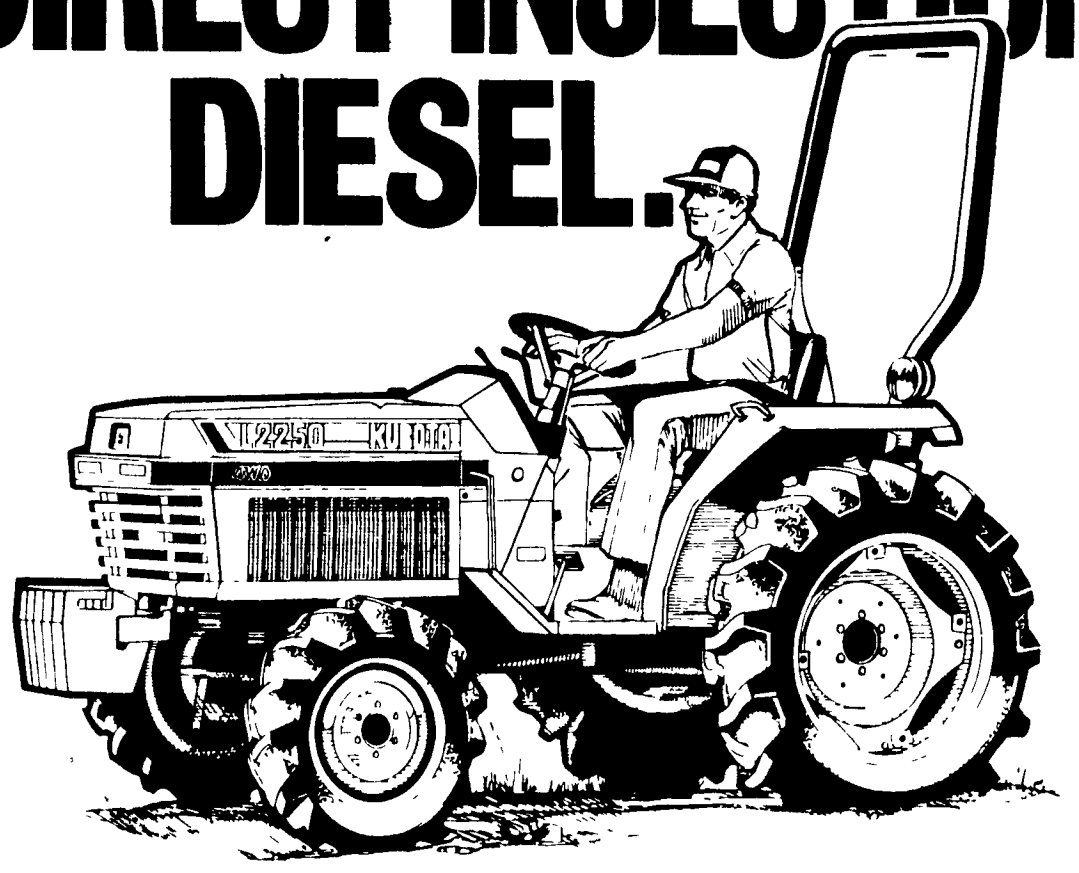
DIRECT INJECTION DIESEL.



Kubota introduces a compact tractor with direct fuel injection. The new L2250 has a 3-cylinder diesel engine with 21 PTO horsepower. Plus it has direct injection for improved starts in cold weather and better fuel economy, too.

Other standard features, not so standard on most tractors of this size, include rear- and mid-mount PTO for maximum versatility when it comes to attaching implements. Surprising, wet disc brakes are standard, too. Power steering is standard on the deluxe model.

LIQUID FERTILIZER

Gro-Mor LIQUID-CAL
(Liquid Calcium)

Gro-Mor LIQUID-SUL
(Thio-Sulfate)

Liquid-Cal can be used with liquid nitrogen which will help maintain your Ph in the top layer of soil when applying liquid nitrogen. Liquid calcium has glocoheptenate which is made from corn by-products. Glocoheptenate helps in breaking down the coarse calcium in your soil.

Liquid-Sul is very important in helping to make protein in your crops. Sulphur in the East is becoming very low in the soil. Many farmers who now are using Liquid-Sul have found higher proteins in many of their crops. Every farmer should be checking his sulphur levels in his soil especially if he is feeding his crops to his cattle.

AVAILABLE IN BULK and 5-GAL. PAILS

MILK PROTEIN TESTING

We all grew up in the dairy business with a pretty good idea about what testing milk was all about. Whenever testing milk is mentioned, we automatically think of butterfat. The fat test has been the basis for pricing our milk to the creamery and for assessing the production of a cow. Now we are testing for milk protein, for several reasons.

One reason is that the word 'fat' has some unpleasant connotations. The other reason is that we now recognize the value of protein as an essential ingredient in milk, as well as in our diet. And we also recognize the differences in the ability of individual cows to produce protein. This difference is expressed in percentage as well as total pounds, just like butterfat.

What are the differences between individuals, between breeds, and is there anything that we can do as breeders and feeders to influence protein production? We look for some answers in the monthly DHIA test, which now routinely tests for protein. But there are too many enigmas and aberrations in any given herd, in any given month, to give us plain answers.

Some of our scientists at Penn State have tried to pull together the information that has been gathered so far. They admit that there is less research available on protein testing than there is on fat test. But they report some very interesting and useable facts, based on the DHIA data.

They find, for example, that there is a close correlation between fat test percentage and protein percentage in a given population of cattle. Also, depending on breed, protein test generally runs from 77% to 89% of the fat test. But they warn that there are many exceptions to the rule, and that it is possible to have protein tests higher than the fat test, in an individual cow.

Sires are now evaluated on their ability to transmit high protein, [illegible] transmit high test. So that becomes an unknown factor until more data shows up. The problem is compounded by the pricing system, which does not always agree with the true value of the components being priced.

FACTORS AFFECTING PROTEIN TEST

According to the Penn State research, these are the best known influences on protein test at this time:

1. Genetics. Both protein and fat are highly heritable. Matings for protein alone would be risky though. Selections should still be made on the basis of milk, protein and fat.

2. Stage of lactation. Protein test is similar to the fat pattern, being highest in the colostrum, then reaching a minimum at about 25 to 50 days after calving. Protein generally peaks at about 250 days when milk begins to drop.

3. Season. Protein test is generally lowest in mid-summer heat, and reaches a peak in mid-winter.

4. Nutrition. Test can be influenced by altering rations, but must be done with caution. Protein may be increased when ration is high in energy and low in fiber. Items favoring propionic acid in the rumen can increase protein, but lower fat. Very often, the rations high in energy are also deficient or out of balance in fiber and minerals, and will result in digestive problems. They recommend a well-balanced ration for maximum milk, fat and protein, and to maintain the cows' health.

5. Feeding protein. A protein deficiency in the feed will reduce protein test in milk. The source of diet protein may also affect test.

6. Other factors. The physical form of forages and concentrates, additions of fats or oils and buffers, and the addition of chemical like propionic acid can affect protein test to some degree. Used to influence the test, they are generally uneconomical.

The best recommendation from our scientists is to test your forages and concentrates, have a competent nutritionist formulate your feed, and consider special matings for protein only if your herd test is abnormally low and feeding and management is excellent.

Vaccinate horses, ponies for "sleeping sickness"

Spring is almost here, and now is the time to vaccinate your horse against equine encephalomyelitis, commonly known as sleeping sickness. University of Delaware extension equine specialist, Dr. Mel Reitnour, recommends that owners protect their horses before the onset of the mosquito season.

The two forms of the disease, eastern (EEE) and western (WEE) encephalomyelitis, have 90 percent and 30 percent mortality rates, respectively. Both forms are transmitted by mosquitos and are more frequent with pastured than in stabled horses.

Encephalitis is caused by a virus which affects the nervous system. An infected horse or pony will wander aimlessly about, suffer impaired vision, demonstrate an inability to rise when down, and finally become paralyzed or die. Death in most cases is due to cardiac or respiratory failure. Horses that survive are seriously impaired.

Very effective vaccines are available providing combined protection against EEE and WEE. Some vaccine combinations also include protection against tetanus and influenza.

Reitnour advises horse owners to contact a veterinarian early this spring, before mosquito season, and arrange to have all horses vaccinated.

The special challenge of no-till alfalfa

TIPTON, Ind. – March 28, 1985 – No-till corn is a common planting practice; no-till soybeans are an increasingly regular sight, but no-till alfalfa presents special management problems that have kept it from becoming as popular. However, these problems can be handled with the right management approach–one that starts at seeding.

Alfalfa can be seeded as early as the ground can be worked, but double cropping behind a small grain in late summer may be the best alternative, according to Bill Fleet, an agronomist with the Eastern Division of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

"The seedbed is already in nice shape and it's generally dry enough so you don't run into problems with those early wet conditions. But more important than that, weed pressures just aren't there like they would be in the spring."

Weeds are the biggest headache in no-till alfalfa establishment, Fleet says. Understanding the strategy for spring weed control is the main stumbling block with springtime seedings.

"Because both broadleaf and grassy weeds can be a problem in spring, herbicides should go on at specific intervals," he notes.

The agronomist suggests spraying 2,4-D between four and six weeks prior to seeding alfalfa; coming back about two weeks later with an application of paraquat and then waiting for signs of new growth before another paraquat application. He adds, it is important to note that there are variations to this strategy and there are other chemicals that may be used.

"The problem is that farmers forget that there's a time lag involved and they either start too late or get in a hurry. The consequences are poor weed control," Fleet says.

Unlike spring-established stands, a late July over early August seeding can often be done with no herbicides or just one application of paraquat. However, it is crucial to incorporate soil insecticides at planting to control insects, he adds.

Once the number of plants per square foot fall below five, the stand should be plowed under. Fleet cautions against attempting to thicken an existing stand by planting alfalfa seed into old alfalfa stands.

"There's no question that there is an autotoxic effect, but it's not a matter of the plant producing special chemicals that are only toxic to young alfalfa plants. They are natural compounds produced by the plant–it's just that they inhibit germination and seedling growth.

"Autotoxicity is not a phenomenon occurring only in alfalfa; the same situation exists in other crops. It just seems to be more pronounced in alfalfa and other legume crops such as clover," the Pioneer agronomist says.

Rather than following an old stand with alfalfa again, Fleet suggests using the nitrogen built up in the soil to reduce the amount needed for a corn crop the following year.

"But if it's a case where you absolutely have to put in alfalfa after alflafa, say for erosion reasons, I recommend totally killing the old stand in the fall. Spray it with Roundup or a combination of 2,4-D and Banvel and let it sit. Go back and plow it, if possible, about two weeks later and then leave it alone until spring."

The stand can be re-established the following year, but Fleet stresses this is not a recommended practice.

"In most cases, it is better to reap the benefits of the nitrogen from the legume for the corn crop and let it help you reduce expenses," he says.

The expenses involved in growing alfalfa are due primarily to high machine ownership and operational costs. No-till planting is an excellent way to reduce these costs, but lack of attention to detail can be the downfall of a reduced tillage program.

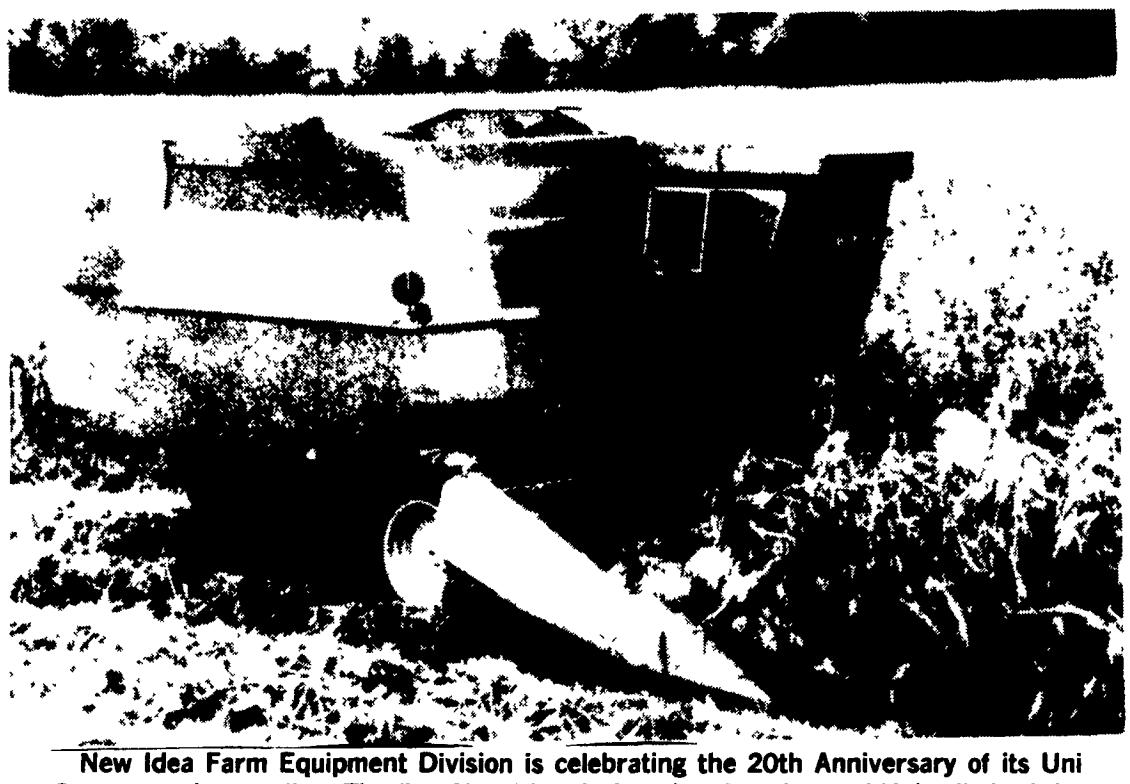
New Idea celebrates UNI's 20th birthday



New Idea Farm Equipment Division is celebrating the 20th Anniversary of its Uni System equipment line. The first New Idea designed and engineered Uni rolled off the assembly line in their Coldwater, Ohio, facility in April, 1965. New Idea is the only farm equipment manufacturer that offers the exclusive Uni System line... interchangeable self-propelled harvesting equipment. The Uni concept employs the use of one power unit to operate a selection of processing units; current models include the 819 combine, 868 forage harvester, 839 ear corn husker and 858 corn sheller. Grain platforms, corn heads and forage heads are available for all units. Through the years, the Uni has proven a truly unique and valuable harvesting system and has established itself as a leader in innovation and quality... most notably with their ear corn husker line which harvests over 90% of the world's seed corn. To help celebrate and commemorate the 20th anniversary of Uni, New Idea is offering to its dealer organization a scale model replica of the current Uni combine, Power Unit and corn head. The commemorative edition is a 1/32 scale made of die cast zinc and is available only through authorized New Idea dealers.

If the engine quits, two-way radio could pay for itself today.

Lose just one day during the planting season and it could make all the difference between a good crop and a poor one

That's why you should be equipped with a Johnson FM two-way radio

With two-way radio if your engine quits you can simply call for help Chances are, a mechanic can get to you and get you going again while there s still some daylight left

But without two-way radio you d just have to start walking

There are a lot of other ways Johnson FM radio can save you time and money Why not let us show you how you can lease or own a complete two-way system for as little as 75¢ a day

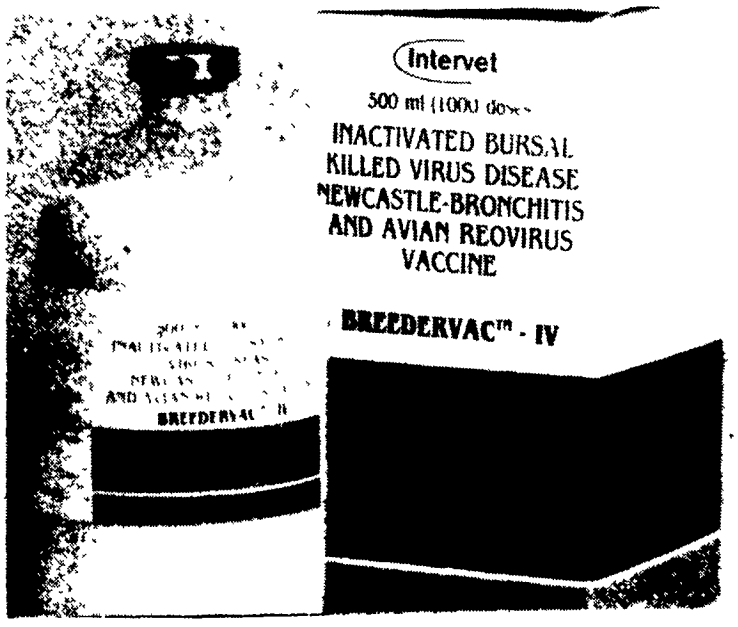
Four-way poultry vaccine



Intervet has introduced the first inactivated (killed) vaccine for poultry with antigens for four different diseases. The new vaccine, with the trade name BREEDERVAC IV™, protects against Newcastle, bronchitis, Gumboro and reovirus infections. It offers the same protection as other killed vaccines and requires only a .5cc dose. BREEDERVAC IV™, with Intervet's exclusive "time release" emulsion, offers several benefits to broiler breeder operations. The birds only undergo the stress of handling once, with the obvious reduction in labor. It's also an improvement over same day multiple vaccinations because the .5ml dose minimizes local reaction and operator effort.

Hayes says farm families key to strength

ATGLEN, Pa. – Der Mann mit der Hock (the man with the hoe) was the central theme of the remarks made to a gathering of Chester County farmers here Friday night by State Representative and Republican Whip Samuel E. Hayes, Jr.

Representative Hayes, himself a farmer by profession, addressed the sociological, economic, and political expression of the farmer in America. He singled out the Chester County farmer as representing the bedrock of what works in America today.

"Pennsylvania has the largest rural population in all the land," said Hayes, "and we're all better off because of it. The Chester County farmer has helped make agriculture the number one economic activity in the state – nothing else even comes close."

Speaking at the West Fallowfield Christian Day School before an invited group of more than 225 farmers and their wives, Rep. Hayes commended the closeknit nature of the farming family and stressed how important this is to America's continued strength.

Of immediate concern to the farming community, Rep. Hayes expressed hopes that legislation on farmland preservation now before the assembly would become law in the current session.

He also stressed the importance of protecting farmland against international investors who could easily dominate land ownership with the immense sums they have available for investment. He says the legislature is looking into ways to insure that Pennsylvania farmland remains in the hands of Pennsylvania farm families.

Friday night's Farm Appreciation Day Dinner, hosted by Fidelity Bank, was the fifth such annual affair. Marlene F. Rice, manager of Fidelity's Atglen branch, was official hostess for the evening.

Special guests in attendance were State Senator Noah Wenger, and State Representatives Art Hershey and Sam Morris.

BUSH HOG®

Flex-Wing Tandem Disc Harrows

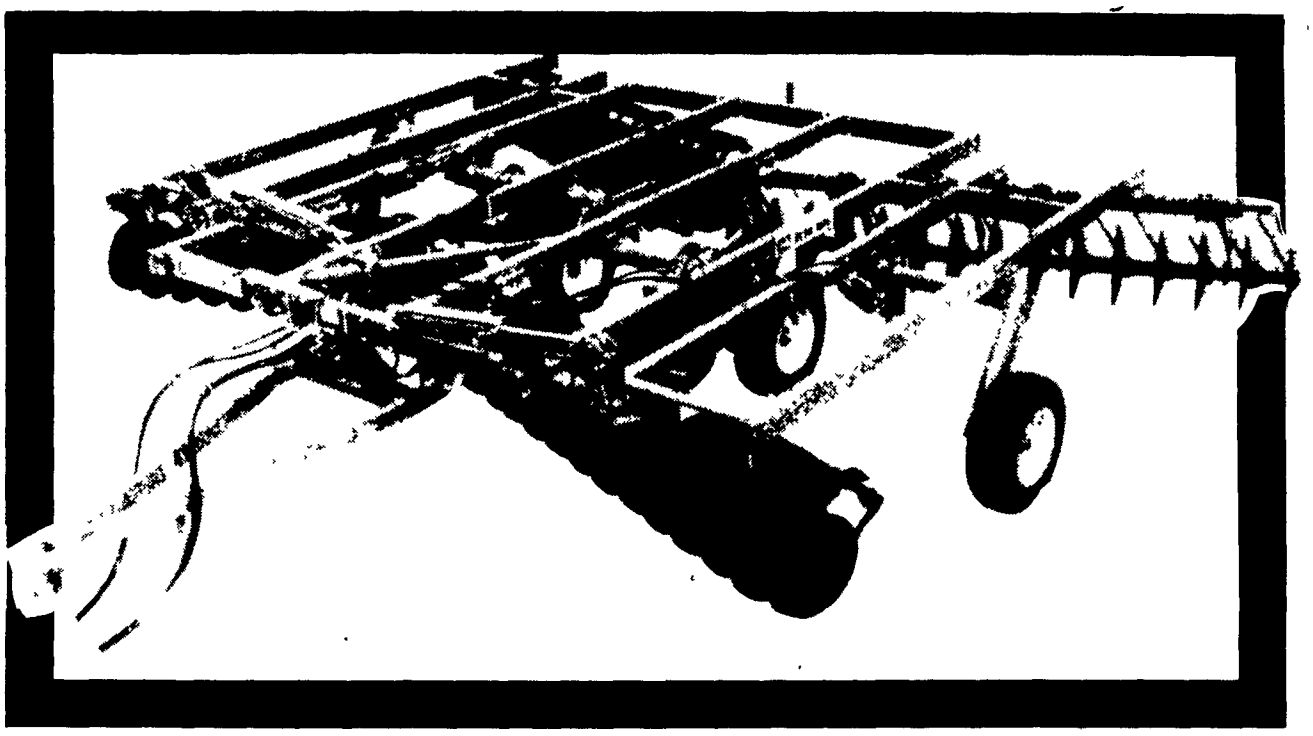
18'3" to 31'9" cutting widths ●
Rated for 125 to 220 drawbar HP tractors ●

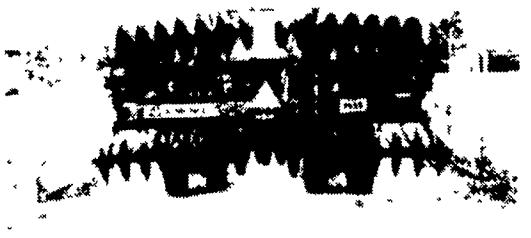


A Complete Line Of Flex-Wing Harrows
For Big Acreage And High Horsepower Tractors

FOR ROLLING TERRAIN, FOR HEAVY TRASH, FOR HIGH HORSEPOWER—THESE RUGGED FLEX-WING TANDEM DISCS FROM BUSH HOG ARE BUILT TO TAKE THE DEMANDS OF HIGH-SPEED FARMING AND LARGE ACREAGE.

Walking tandem wheels increase flotation and steadiness. The upward or downward frame movement is cut in half by the action of the tandem wheels when moving over a ridge or dropping into a hole.

Thoroughly worked soil is the result of the double-offset gang design. The need for a center tooth is eliminated because all of the ground covered is completely cut and mixed.



Wings fold completely over for more transport stability. Passage through gates or along roadways is no problem, with transport widths 12'3" to 16'2".

Dura-spring gang hangers are available for work in rocky soils or soils with obstructions. Adjustable scrapers are standard equipment for efficient blade cleaning. Spring scrapers are optional. Large 24" x 6 ga. blades are standard — to chop, turn and mix the heaviest stalks.

No-till corn session slated

WEST CHESTER — A session covering no-till corn planting will be held at Stoltzfus' Farm Supply, Cochranville, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 9.

"We hold a session each spring so that farmers who want to rent our White no-till planter are familiar with proper planting procedures", said John Stoltzfus. "Users need to be familiar with the adjustments of the planter. Different soils and different residue cover will require changes in the settings of the press wheels, the opening coulters, etc. Planting soybeans with the Maxi-Planter will require different adjustments."

The rental planter is a new 4-row White Maxi-planter. Gary Reed, Fieldman for White Equipment, Lancaster, will be on hand to explain the operation of the planter. "Proper adjustments are essential for proper placement of seed and fertilizer," Reed said. "It is important to adjust pressure on the cover wheels so that the seed is placed at the right depth. Soil needs to be compacted around the seed so that there is good contact," Reed explained.

Jenny Russell, Lewisville, Chairman of the Chester County Conservation District is very enthusiastic about Stoltzfus's no-till rental program. "Farmers using no-till have as good as or better yields than with conventional tillage. The important result is that they do less damage to neighboring property. The rental planter made available by John Stoltzfus will permit farmers to try the system. They will not need to invest in more equipment until they have a chance to try out the system with no capital investment."

Russell explained that Conservation District Directors are supporting no-till corn and grain planting. "Research studies and farm user's experience show that no-till reduces erosion and has less equipment expense than plowing and harrowing," she noted.

"Farmers are aware that the Chesapeake Bay study has alleged that agriculture is the cause of the greatest amount of sediment carried into the Bay", Russell said. "Never-the-less, farmers must be aware that they are under the gun. They must make every effort to make sure that they are not letting erosion and the resulting sediment escape beyond their property lines.

Stoltzfus is pleased that farmers are trying no-till planting. "Nearly 300 acres of corn were planted last year with the no-till planter. We have well over 100 acres signed up all ready this year. Total acreage planted with the no-till planter this year could go well over 400 acres," Stoltzfus calculated.

"Any member of the Crop Improvement Association who has not used no-till could do a comparison test with their conventional planting methods," Keith Zanzinger, County Extension Agent suggested. The Crops Improvement Association is new this year. It is a joint effort between the Extension Service and the Conservation District. Zanzinger will have pesticide applicator's updates at the meeting.

J. Omar Stoltzfus and personnel from Stoltzfus Farm Service, Oxford, will also be on hand to share their experience and knowledge with new users. They will talk about chemicals and fertilizer.

...another reason SWISH saves you more labor, more birds, and more money

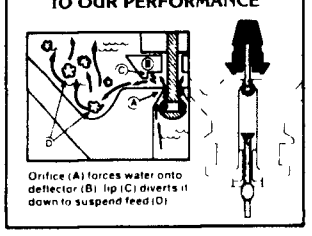
The newest twist in cage watering makes cup cleaning and maintenance a real snap it s SWISH s Twist-Lock cups for cage layers and brood-grow watering systems

Saves labor. No more contortions with hand tools inside a cage – one simple twist of the wrist unlocks and removes the unitized cup and valve It s that easy to maintain when necessary

But with SWISH, it's hardly ever necessary That s because our cup is self-cleaning Our patented valve keeps the cup clean by flushing any feed particles out so birds can consume them with the water

Installation is a snap too with SWISH s new cups they simply snap into the desired location and the hose attaches to the water line outlet These are some of the ways SWISH s new cup saves you labor – easy installation low maintenance, and labor savings between flocks because our cup constantly cleans itself

PATENTED VALVE IS KEY TO OUR PERFORMANCE



Helps save more birds. Because our cup is self-cleaning algae and bacteria growth is not a problem as with cups that don t flush out feed particles Clean cups mean less chance of disease and less mortality And our big cup means good access to water for a good level of bird health

SWISH saves you money. That s the bottom line with a system that cuts labor and keeps birds alive and productive

Get all the facts about our new cup and other SWISH innovations See your SWISH distributor or contact us

JAMES E. NOLL GRAIN

Consider small grains for forage alternative

By George F.W. Haenlein
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

We're short of good hay for our cows this year because of last year's rainy weather. And we're short of money because of lower milk prices over the last 10 months and in the foreseeable future.

This means we've got to maximize silage feeding–corn silage in particular. But for optimum herd health and production, we still need some hay or haylages from alfalfa, grass and/or small grain crops.

At least that's the situation we face with the University of Delaware dairy herd. Our high milk producers usually need extra fiber in their rations. This is best supplied by hay crops-especially if they're cut fairly mature. Well-matured corn silage may test 24 percent fiber in the dry matter, but well-matured alfalfa-grass haylage can test 32 percent fiber, while well-matured barley or rye haylage may test as high as 38.

We may not need fiber, however, under certain conditions, such as when silage is coarsely cut and the grain ration is buffered. In which case we can save money by cutting small grains in an immature stage to maximize their protein content and so reduce the amount of protein we must supply from commercial grain rations.

Normally, well matured rye, barley, oats or wheat have about 9 percent protein in the dry matter. But if cut in the immature stage before plants head out of the boot stage, small grain crops can easily test above 20 percent protein and as high as 27 percent dry matter.

Cut, wilted and made into well preserved haylage, such immature small grains can help you realize considerable savings by reducing dairy grain supplement requirements back to at least 16 percent protein.

Similarly, if the weather allows pasturing your herd on small grain fields, you can cut cash costs for supplements considerably and even save on silage.

When pasturing cows on small grains, be sure to use short-time strip rotations, because in the spring fields usually aren't dry and firm enough to allow the cows on permanent pasturing. It's best to use mobile electric fencing so you can open up different field strips, allowing only one to two hours per day of intense grazing.

If you planned wisely last year and planted some small grains, now's the time to give them a fertilizer boost with some liquid manure, for example, or spread some poultry manure on them. (Check with your county extension agent for information on manure loading rates and tips on spreader calibration.)

Once the manure has washed in well after some rain and the spring sun has grain plants off to a good start, put up your electric fence–a single strand will usually suffice–and start strip-grazing cows. They'll milk very well, since the small grain forage is high in protein. Just be sure to give them sufficient energy supplements, such as high-moisture corn, to balance the ration.

If you can't pasture your small grain forages, get your storage cutting and filling gear ready to turn them into high-quality haylage before grain heads out of the boot stage. This won't give you the highest yield per acre, but it will be the most nutritious haylage you can get per pound of feed–probably 65 percent TDN plus high protein.

Waiting for small grains to head into the milk or dough stages increases dry matter content and energy yield per acre, but this more mature forage will be very high in fiber, due to straw development. Thus it will support only mediocre milk production and require high protein and energy supplementation in the herd ration.

In this part of the country we often get spring rains just when small grains (rye and barley) ought to be cut for haylage or hay. This delays cutting and the result is haylage with a low nutrient content. So start planning NOW for an EARLY CUTTING date, just to be on the safe side and to maximize the financial benefits from your small grain forages.

Conservation tillage

LEBANON – Conservation tillage is a type of non-inversion tillage that leaves protective crop residues on the surface throughout the year. We commonly think of conservation tillage as it relates to no till or a combination of chisel and/or disk.

Conservation tillage has many benefits. First the protective residue mulch left on the surface protects the surface soil particles from detachment from the explosive energy of the raindrops.

Consequently, water has greater time to infiltrate into the soil surface, thereby increasing the moisture-holding capacity of your soil.

This also results in cleaner surface runoff from your fields. Conservation tillage also increases the soil tilth and reduces further runoff due to the increased roughness of the soil surface.

"If most of the corn stalks are incorporated into the soil, the soil surface is not protected from erosion, water infiltration into the soil surface is decreased resulting in more dirty runoff and soil tilth is reduced," according to Randy McCormack, Soil Conservationist with the U.S.D.A. Soil Conservation Service in Lebanon, PA.

For more information or recommended protective amounts of crop residue for conservation tillage, contact SCS at 272-4618.

Do you need Federal Crop Insurance? If so, how much?

BY WILLIAM T. McSWEENY
Penn State Extension Economist

Few industries are as risky as agricultural production. In addition to the financial, technological, and institutional risks encountered by most industries, farmers must contend with substantial production risks.

These latter risks, represented by varying commodity yields and/or quality, are introduced by changes in weather patterns, pest populations, and other natural phenomena.

While it is difficult to eliminate production risk, several management options are available for reducing their impact on the farm business. These options include enterprise diversification, irrigation, frost control technology, drought and disease resistant plant varieties, chemical and integrated pest management, and the purchase of crop insurance.

The crop insurance purchase decision is both an important and complex issue for many farmers. It is important because of the impact it may have on the level and variability of the farm's cash flow.

Also, the government's recent decision to substitute multiple peril crop insurance for federal disaster payments adds significance to the insurance program. It is complex because of the many options to consider when buying federally subsidized or private crop insurance.

Crop insurance is available in two basic forms: multiple peril, which includes fire and hail insurance made available under the Federal Crop Insurance Act; and fire and hail insurance sold by private insurance companies.

Under multiple peril insurance, if a crop yield falls below the guarantee level specified in the insurance policy, the insurance company, in exchange for a premium payment, agrees to compensate the farmer for the loss in production.

This arrangement may be attractive to growers for several basic reasons, as it:

- Represents an opportunity to substitute a known cost (premiums) for unpredictable and irregular losses;
- Stabilizes the farm's cash flow, thereby making the grower a lower risk user of borrowed money;
- Increases the attractiveness of forward contracting, hedging, or commodity options since the grower's risk of not being able to perform in accordance with the contract is lessened; and
- Provides the financial liquidity needed to make it through another year in the event of a crop loss.

The major long-term considerations in the grower's decision without whether or not to buy crop insurance are:

- The likelihood that crop damage below the insured level will occur and the amount of the resulting insurance payment;
- The premium cost associated with the purchase of insurance;
- The returns foregone by using cash and near-cash reserves for self-insurance.
- The financial ability of the business to withstand a crop loss and still meet cash production expenses, debt service, and family living expense;
- The farmer's attitudes toward risk.

The benefit of insurance is represented by the difference between insurance payments (item 1) and premium costs (item 2). However, this benefit does not necessarily have to be positive for insurance to be attractive. Farmers may wish to view the cost of insurance as the price paid for transferring risk to the insuring agency.

Generally, the insurance purchase decision involves a long-run evaluation of higher expected profit (no insurance) versus less variation in profit (with insurance). This trade-off is best evaluated by the individual farmer who understands that the farm business is subject to risks due to yield variation that affects his or her ability to bear financial risk.

What Exactly is Federal Crop Insurance?

The federal government has sponsored some form of crop insurance since 1938. However, until recently government insurance was available for only a few crops, and in a limited number of counties throughout the U.S.

The Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980 provided the basis for the current program which encourages the expansion of government-sponsored crop insurance as a replacement from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service disaster payments for (ASCS). The new program is administered by the Secretary of Agriculture through the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC).

How is the Insurance marketed?

Insurance can be purchased in two ways. One option is to enter into an agreement directly with the FCIC through a local independent insurance agent. Alternatively, an agreement can be made with a private insurance company who, in turn, writes a reinsurance agreement with the FCIC. The names of local private insurance agencies selling insurance can be obtained by contacting the local ASCS office.

What Causes of Yield Losses are Insurable?

Insurance coverage is available for most crops on unavoidable production losses caused by drought, excessive rain, hail, wind, hurricane, tornado, lightning, insect infestation, plant disease, flood, wildlife damage, fire, earthquake, volcano and many others.

However, not all of these causes are covered on selected specialty crops. All-risk insurance does not cover yield losses resulting from poor farming practices or theft.

How Much Yield Coverage Can Be Purchased?

The grower has the option of insuring at one of three yield levels: 1. 50 percent (coverage level 1), 2. 65 percent (level 2), or 75 percent (level 3) of insurable yield.

Insurance indemnities are paid only if yields fall below those yield guarantees.

How Can I Determine My Insurable Yield?

Traditionally, insurable yield was defined in different ways, depending on the crop, region of the U.S., and in some cases, the farmer's option.

Insurable yield has been based on average yields dentified by the FCIC according to similarities in soil type, production practices, yields, and loss experience. Over the years, however, farmers with yields consistently above their area yields have complained that crop insurance was not suited for

Federal Crop Insurance

In an attempt to answer these criticisms, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation developed Individual Yield Coverage (IYC) and Grower Yield Certification (GYC). For selected crops, a grower may use IYC provisions to substitute his or her particular farm's yield base for the FCIC area yield.

A farmer opting to use IYC must produce verificable records to ASCS for yields realized over at least the first three years of a 10-year base period for which the crop has been planted. ASCS uses an indexing procedure to calculate individual farm yields for those years the grower is unable to submit verifiable records.

The indexing procedure used by ASCS for FCIC is based on planted acreage yields versus the typically reported ASCS yields from harvested acreage. If a farmer's IYC yield exceeds the area yield, he/she will be eligible for greater yield coverage without additional premium cost, which reduces the effective premium rate. Crops eligible for IYC during the 1984-85 crop year are barley, dry beans, flax, oats, rye sunflowers, soybeans, and wheat.

Both the IYC and GYC programs, however, focused on improving the insurable yield from the farmer's viewpoint, but many still complained that the premiums, while certainly not higher, could not be lower because the premiums were also based on the historical performance of all farmers in a given area.

That is, the premiums were not based on the likelihood of crop failure by the individual producer. To rectify this, the FCIC developed the Actual Production History program, or APH.

In 1983, FCIC decided to replace area coverage with the Actual Production History of each producer for purposes of determining future yield guarantees. This substitution is to be gradually phased in, but will be completed in the near future.

Crops in APH during the 1984-85 crop year are cotton, rice, corn, grain sorghum, tobacco, and peanuts. Farmers who are interested in APH, however, should learn the details of the program and start their recordkeeping now if they haven't done so already.

All crops, including forages are to be covered starting in 1987. As is the case with IYC, the APH program is designed to offer yield guarantees that reflect the actual production history of each producer.

However, the APH program differs from IYC in two fundamental ways. First, premium rates for APH will not necessarily be the same as area rates. APH premium rates will be based on the APH yield, not the area yield, and whether the farmer is in a high or low risk area. Second, area yield coverage will no longer be available when APH is fully implemented.

Current insurance policy provisions, written under APH, require the farmer to provide ASCS with verifiable records of acreage and production evidence for the most recent crop year on an annual basis. The best time to verify records is immediately following harvest when receipts are available and stored commodities can be accurately measured.

It is important to remember that the records must be verified. Farm Management account books will not be acceptable unless proof of final disposition of the crop is provided by the grower.

How is the value of the crop determined?

In addition to selecting coverage levels for a crop, the grower must also select a commodity price level, or price election. Three levels are available: low, medium, and high. By law, the high price level is at least 90 percent of the anticipated market price. The price selected by the grower is used to compute insurance coverage and the amount of the indemnity if a production loss occurs.

How Do I Get Started in APH?

Yield guarantees will be based on the grower's individual records when the grower has three or more years of verifiable records. If the farmer has ten years of records, the guarantee is based exclusively on his ten-year average yield.

If records are available for only three or more years, yields for the missing years will be indexed using a relationship between the yields for which the grower has records and the Statistical Reporting Service adjusted county average yield for those missing years.

Furthermore, when the grower is able to provide three or more years of actual yields, the high and low yields (may be actual or indexed yields) in the ten-year series will not be included in calculating the grower's average yield.

Farmers with less than three years of verifiable records may still participate in APH. If no records are available, the farmer will have his guarantee based transitional yields. The transitional yield can be obtained from either the insurance agent or the local ASCS office. Of course, where the farmer has one to two years of verifiable records, yields from these records will be used, transitional yields will only apply for the missing year (s).

Consequently, every farmer, regardless of whether or not he/she has records or has previously dealt with ASCS, can obtain crop insurance under the APH program.

What Does Multiple Peril Crop Insurance Cost?

Historically, crop insurance premium rates were based only on actuarial data for the area in which the grower was farming. Such data included historical yields, soil type, and the historical incident of events causing insurable losses.

The premiums also varies with the yield guarantee level and the price election selected by the grower. Under the new APH program, this information will also influence the premium rates, but the grower has more influence in the determination of coverages and premiums by keeping production records and providing them to the FCIC.

The grower has the option to buy multiple peril insurance with or without fire and hail coverage. If fire and hail insurance is not desired, premium costs are reduced. Growers opting not to purchase multiple peril hail and fire coverage must, however, provide proof that an equivalent level of fire and hail coverage is being purchased from a private insurance company.

Premiums are due at harvest and if not paid within 30 days of billing, interest at 1½% per month must be paid. Premium payments are a tax deductible expense. Also, insurance indemnities are taxable income.

To encourage broader participation, congress has authorized a 30% subsidy for premiums at the 50% and 65% yield levels. If a farmer chooses 75% yield coverage, he must pay the full additional premium cost over the 65% level. Thus, the dollar amount of the subsidy is the same at the 65% and 75% levels, but the relative subsidy drops a little under 20% at the 75% yield guarantee.

USDA recommends milk order amendments

WASHINGTON – Comments will be accepted until April 10 on a U.S. Department of Agriculture recommended decision that supports some amendments to the Middle Atlantic and New York-New Jersey federal milk marketing orders, but denies others.

Edward T. Coughlin, dairy official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service in Washington, D. C., said the recommended decision is based on the record of 24 days of public hearings held in 1983. He said the recommended amendments would:

– Include 20 additional Pennsylvania counties in the marketing areas of the two milk orders, 5 in the Middle Atlantic order and 15 in the New York-New Jersey order.

– Revise the location adjustment provisions of each order by extending the plus 15-cent fixed differential under the New York-New Jersey order to include the 71-80 milk zone; and by increasing the minus location rate to 2.2 cents per hundredweight per 10-milk zone under the Middle Atlantic order except that in the Pennsylvania counties of Berks, Dauphin and Lebanon the location adjustment would be minus 10 cents per hundredweight.

Coughlin said the proposals denied in the recommended decision pertain to the New York-New Jersey order and would have:

– Extended the area to include the Pennsylvania counties of Clinton, Potter and Tioga.

– Revised the method of determining the maximum allowable tank truck service charge deductions.

The recommended amendments are based on a number of proposals submitted by cooperative associations, milk handler associations and an individual milk handler operating under the orders. The order expansions and changes in location adjustments are needed to reflect current marketing conditions and to assure orderly marketing in the two federal order marketing areas, Coughlin said.

Principal cities in the marketing areas are Philadelphia, Pa., Baltimore, Md., Washington, D.C., Newark, N.J., and Albany, Syracuse and New York, N.Y.

The recommended decision is scheduled to be published in the March 11 Federal Register. Copies also may be obtained from Joseph D. Shine, market administrator, P.O. Crop Insurance

Thus, over the long run, for each 70 cents a farmer pays as premiums, $1.00 will be returned to cover insurable losses. This is true for the 50 to 65 percent yield coverage levels and change slightly for the 75 percent coverage level. No matter which level of coverage is selected, the premiums are structured so that, on average, the amount paid into the system will be paid out as indemnities.

Whether a given farmer pays a premium that is below, equal to, or above the base rate (established by the FCIC for each crop in each county) depends on how his or her APH yield compares with the county average yield.

A farmer with proven history of above average yields will pay lower rates, while a farmer with a proven history of below average yields will pay a higher rate. The rate difference can be substantial.

For example, a low yield corn grower could be charged nearly two and one-half times the base rate, whereas a high yield producer may realize up to a 40% discount from the base rate.

Do I have to insure all of my crop?

Yes, if insurance is purchased for a particular crop, all of that crop (located in the same county) must be insured. It is not possible to just insure the portion of a crop that is most susceptible to loss. However, each crop is insured separately, so a grower may insure one crop without having to insure a second crop produced in the same county.

In addition, claims are paid by unit. The basis used to define a unit is the farm accounting system. A single farm (located in one county) represents one unit. If a grower crop-share rents a second farm, the rented acreage constitutes a second unit. Providing proper records are maintained, a grower may qualify for more than one unit if his land is located in separate sections or, if he farms both irrigated and non-irrigated cropland.

When Must I Purchase Crop Insurance?

Generally, insurance must be purchased at least 30 days prior to the start of seeding in the grower's area, unless abnormal conditions exist. See your local insurance agent for sign up dates for crops in your area.

Are There Provisions For Late Planting?

There is a late planting agreement option available. This option gives farmers an opportunity to purchase insurance on most spring crops when they miss final planting dates because of adverse weather.

Under the option, insured farmers will be able to obtain coverage on acreage planted up to a maximum of 20 days after the final planting date. However, the production guarantee on the acreage will be reduced by 10 percent every five days through the 20th day following the final planting date. The premium cost remains the same as on the final planting date.

Will crop insurance eliminate the need for other risk management strategies?

Almost certainly not. The concerned grower will evaluate all means of reducing income risk, and select that combination of risk management devices (for example, crop insurance, hedging, forward contracting, and commodity options) best suited to his or her own needs.

This combination might include one, several, or none of these ways to reduce risk, depending on the grower's own circumstances. Nevertheless, the new APH program is a much needed improvement over previous crop insurance programs, and warrants investigation by all Pennsylvania farmers.

Where Can I Learn More?

Interested farmers are encouraged to talk with their local crop insurance sales representative. If a grower doesn't know who the local crop insurance sales representative is, check with the local ASCS office and they will provide this information.

"New biology" gives new-tools to agriculture

ITHACA, NY — America's unmatched agricultural technology, which has made the United States the breadbasket of the world, now has new powerful tools — modern genetic techniques — to achieve even greater strides in the years ahead, according to a panel of the nation's leading agricultural scientists.

Dramatic advances made in the so-called "new biology," known more broadly as biotechnology, offer scientists a "fresh starting point" for progress toward potentially great rewards, the panel says.

"What scientists will now be able to accomplish through the use of modern molecular genetic techniques is awesome," the group points out. "To be slow in acknowledging and employing the power of these new tools would be to delay the progress of American agriculture."

The 18-member panel, led by a Cornell University scientist, made the point in a comprehensive report issued this month. The 120-page report is based on a year-long study conducted by a select committee created by the Board of Agriculture of the National Research Council (NCR)

Ralph W. F. Hardy, a visiting professor of life sciences in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell, served as chairman of the Board of Agriculture's Committee on Biosciences Research in Agriculture, which prepared the report — "New Directions of Biosciences Research in Agriculture: High-Reward Opportunities."

Two other Cornell scientists were members of the panel — Milton Zaitlin, associate director of the Cornell Biotechnology [illegible] professor of plant pathology, and D[illegible] Bauman, professor of nutritional biochemistry.

The committee, says Hardy, represented a breadth of knowledge across the disciplines of science as well as a combination of experience in research, management, and administration in both academe and industry.

The study was conducted for the Agricultural Research Service, the research arm of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, to identify and recommend areas of research in "bioregulation" to be pursued to "ensure the highest dividends to agriculture."

"The basic research approaches and goals outlined in this study can apply to the agricultural research community at all levels," says Hardy, who is also president of a Boston-based biotechnology firm known as BioTechnica International.

Pointing to the great potential of molecular genetic and recombinant DNA techniques, or gene splicing, the NRC report suggests how these scientific tools might be used, along with other methods, to yield new insights into studies of food animals, crop plants, and disease organisms and insect pests attacking food plants and animals.

The development of genetic theory, the growing understanding of the DNA molecule, and the expanding capabilities in cell and tissue culture now enable scientists to manipulate the gene — the basic blueprint of life — to boost the efficiency and productivity of American agriculture, the report says.

"Modern genetic technology, including recombinant DNA and the ability to isolate, transfer, and express foreign genes in crop plants and food animals, will likely have a major impact on agriculture comparable to that of the discovery of the laws of inheritance in the late 1800s," the report points out

What scientists have come to understand about plants and animals over the past several decades is impressive. The result is an overall increase in agricultural productivity of 240 percent in the past 50 years.

This increase is characterized by dairy cows that have more than doubled milk production per cow since 1950 and by dramatic improvements in grain yields.

Armed with the rapidly advancing techniques of the new biology, scientists now possess the ability to visualize the gene — to isolate, reproduce, and study its structure and its relations to the processes of living things, the report notes:

"The molecular genetic and recombinant DNA techniques are opportunities to be seized," the report stresses. "They are tools, not an end in themselves. They can be employed to discover additional basic information about genes and the protein products that trigger a response to disease, regulate growth and development, or govern communication between cells and between organs."

Stressing the need to step up basic research to develop further the molecular genetic and recombinant DNA techniques, the report cites some of the major areas of research aimed at boosting the agricultural ef-

Harsh Winter hurts plants

CREAMERY – Winter weather conditions in mid February have threatened plant quality and survival, according to County Agent Paul Reber. Gardeners are concerned about winter's influence on spring flowering and the quality of the total plant.

It is still too soon to see the results of this year's sub-zero temperatures. Weather-related plant problems are compounded when low temperatures are accompanied by severe winds. Under these conditions, frozen plant tissue is capable of losing water that can't be replaced by water from the frozen soil. This is similar to what occurs when washed clothes are hung out to dry on a winter day. The wet clothes quickly freeze, but water molecules are continually being blown from the cloth. When all the water has been blown away, the clothes are dry.

Reber indicated the chemical nature of water in plant tissues, as well as the physical qualities of plant tissues themselves, retards the drying process. Even with the safeguards of nature, however, water is lost. When a critical amount of water is lost, tissue injury and/or death can occur.

The best protection against wind-induced injury is a reduction in the total amount of air moving past the plant. Fortunately, not all plants are equally susceptable to wind injury, so durable species can be used to protect less durable ones. This is essentially the concept of windbreaks.

Observing wind patterns on your property will help in identifying sites that are more severe for plants than others. Generally, narrow areas between structures and bed areas that extend outward from an exposed corner receive the greatest air movement.

A lack of snow cover in a spot is a good indication of excess wind. In these areas plan to set up the hardiest plants or deciduos species less susceptible to wind damage.

The construction of artificial barriers may be another wind control solution. Screens and fences won't stop the wind, but they help slow it down or channel it away from plants, walkways and houses. Remember, screens may function as snow fences. Place them so snow won't accumulate on walkways or driveways.

The warm weather we had earlier this winter will also influence spring plant quality. Temperatures in the 50's and 60's tend to keep flower buds more active and less dormant. A number of plants were in bloom earlier this winter, which suggests a reduction in spring flowers. The sudden cold weather may cause considerable injury to partially open flower or leaf buds and stem tissues. Injury won't be evident until growing conditions return in spring.

In addition to injury caused by drastic temperatures changes, specific plants are injured by minimum low temperatures. Every plant species has a minimum tolerance level. When temperatures drop below that point, injury can occur. This plant quality is called hardiness.

Research indicates that roots are often less tolerant of low temperatures than top growth. When a plant leafs out in the spring and then quickly dies in a few weeks, it's possible that its roots were killed by low temperatures during the previous winter.

Enough moisture reserved in the stem may support bud and leaf formation, but a dead root system is unable to sustain water supply to the new leaves. Researchers also found that root injury may occur at temperatures 10 to 15 degrees warmer than those needed to injure stem and bud tissues.

In the areas of the plant sciences, the report calls for stepped-up research to make crop plants more efficient producers of food through intensified studies of photosynthesis, biological nitrogen fixation, regulation of plant growth and development, gene expression, cell culture and plant regeneration, plant response to stress factors such as drought, salt, cold, heat, and toxic chemicals in soil, among other things.

The average yield for eight major U.S. crops – corn, wheat, soybeans, sorghums, oats, barley, potatoes, and sugar beets – is estimated to be only some 20 percent of the record yield for the same crops, the report points out. Of the unrealized 80 percent of the potential yield, stressful conditions account for about 70 percent, with the remaining 10 percent attributable to insects and diseases.

As for animal production, the report suggests research to be strengthened to overcome numerous barriers to greater production efficiency.

Among areas of research that should receive greater attention, as the report points out, are molecular basis of disease and metabolic regulation with focus on genes regulating the immune response, pathogens and disease carriers, characterization of hormones and other bodily chemicals, and metabolic control and functioning of cells. Studies dealing with test-tube manipulation of cells and embryos, addition of genetic materials to embryos, and reproductive efficiency also should be stepped up.

In addition to identifying priority research areas, the report spells out some of the conditions that can provide the optimum research environment in meeting the challenge ahead. These conditions include the availability of funds, quality researchers, suitable facilities, the equipment, and "the presence of an attitude that encourages and supports scientific research of the highest caliber."

"The outcome of the best science is unpredictable, but scientific research at times yields a unifying idea or theory – a key that revolutionizes the understanding of a specific area of science and opens the way to new discoveries and practical applications," the reports state. "This has just happened in biology with molecular genetics."

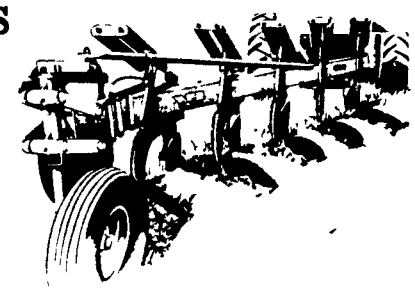
WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT



Let us show you the difference in disks.

Extra strong gang bolts, better bearings and a large selection all help set White Farm disks apart from the competition

Solid construction. Sturdy gang bolts prevent bending And White Farm bearings and bearing housings are made to hold up under high speeds, heavy residue and rough terrain.

More weight means better disking There are ways to spot built in working weight without putting the implement on a scale One example is massive box beams of high carbon steel used in all of our disks. More steel means more durability, plus adds weight to keep disks in the ground

Models for every need. We've got a disk for your farm Offset, rigid- and flexible tandem disks, many with flat folding features With blade spacings available in 7-, 9 and 11-inches

Come in and experience for yourself the quality and value built into every White Farm disk

WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT

A more valuable disk chisel.

All disk chisels can save topsoil But White Farm's 435 Conservation Chisel Plow also saves time and money.

Versatile concave disks up-front. Individually mounted 22 inch blades are hydraulically controlled to let you determine the amount of residue that remains on the surface Disks can be raised completely out of the ground for maximum conservation, or lowered for maximum tillage

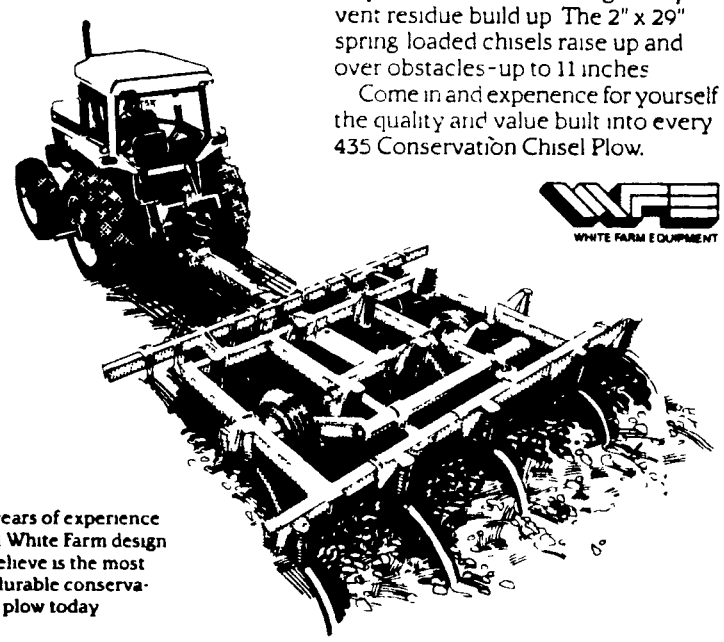
Chisel shanks every twelve inches. Three ranks of chisels spaced twelve inches apart on a long 90 inch frame help maintain uniform tillage and prevent residue build up The 2" x 29" spring loaded chisels raise up and over obstacles-up to 11 inches

Come in and experience for yourself the quality and value built into every 435 Conservation Chisel Plow.

WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT



Over 100 years of experience has helped White Farm design what we believe is the most versatile, durable conservation chisel plow today

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Going to a farm auction

There's something very special about a farm auction. I guess more than anything else it's because it signals the end of something. I've had occasion recently to attend several such auctions. These weren't the forced sales that you hear so much about in the media these days. They just happened to be older farmers who for various reasons, probably including the sad state of the agricultural economy, had chosen 1985 to retire.

And so, they had lined up for all to see their possessions, farm machinery, livestock, crops, furniture, junk, virtually everything but the clothing on their backs and the cars they drive. Then they invited the world, or what seemed like a considerable part of it, to stop by, take a look, bid if they so desired, and maybe take something home.

Nothing draws a crowd like a farm auction. If you get there early, you can find a place within reasonable hiking distance of the sale, but if you arrive late, forget it. You can walk a mile. Depending on what you're there to buy, a late arrival may be the prudent thing because the auctioneer can go on for hours selling what is loosely labeled as junk–all of those small items that accumulate around a long-time farming operation.

It's funny how the auction format seems to be the same regardless of the auctioneer or the location. The small items are piled on flatbed wagons and sold first. Then to the machinery, usually starting with the tractors and ending up with the combine, if there is one. And finally the livestock and any feed that's on hand.

As the auctioneer mounts the first wagon and details the terms of the sale, the crowd starts to close in making it virtually impossible for all but a few pressed against the wagon bed to see much of anything. Then with the help of a couple of assistants the auctioneer grabs up anything of seeming value and offers it to the highest bidder. Those things that don't attract bidders are piled together and sold as a final "everything that's left on the wagon.

It always impresses me when I attend a farm auction how expensive farm equipment is when it's purchased new and how inexpensive some of it is a few years later at a farm auction. I'm also impressed by how relatively inexpensively a young farmer can equip himself with the necessary if not the most ideal farm equipment.

I know a new combine sells for more than $100,000, but at recent farm auctions I've seen ready-to-go used ones sell for under $20,000 and ones that probably need a good going over before summer harvest sell for under $10,000.

I've watched strong diesel tractors bring five or six thousand dollars at a farm auction while their new counterparts stand waiting on the dealer's lot with forty and fifty thousand dollar price tags. Granted these older tractors lack heated cabs and air conditioning, but they don't lack horsepower and serviceability.

As I looked at those farm auction equipment inventories, I was also impressed with the amount of equipment some farmers find necessary or desirable. None had less than three tractors, some as many as five or six, and at a couple of those auctions I got the feeling the farm operator was equipping some kind of agricultural ark with two of almost everything mechanical.

There would be two hay balers, two manure spreaders, two springtooth harrows, two corn planters and on down the list.

Almost everything that could be fastened to a farm tractor was represented, usually in pairs, maybe one newer than the other or larger, but nonetheless duplicated by another piece of equipment. Every tractor ever owned was there from the first little Ford or Farmall H bought in the late 30s to the newest International, John Deere, or White. There was even some horse-drawn equipment at a couple of those sales.

There's one thing about an auction–it's a way of getting rid of whatever is for sale. If the auctioneer finds something that seems to have no value, he puts it with something that does, and together they find a home. And so by the end of a long day, everything has been sold, and a day or so later it's all been hauled away.

It must be a very emotional time for those retiring farmers watching their farm machinery and livestock loaded onto someone else's truck and leaving the farm for the last time. No doubt some of those farmers looked forward to that day when they could sell out, cash in and find a well-earned retirement.

Watching one old dairy farmer who I would have guessed to be 75, I had the feeling that he didn't really want to give up. He seemed to have a well-run, solid little dairy farm that would support a family, but he was just too old to continue. He could no longer meet the rigors of twice-a-day milking and a full schedule of field work. Probably his health was failing; I couldn't tell, but for whatever reason, he was selling out.

It was all there in the morning sunshine for his neighbors and everyone else to see. It was piled in a circle around his house and stretched on either side of the lane toward the highway, an accumulation of a half century of farming and living. It was sold to friends and strangers for whatever it would bring. And by the end of the day most of it was already loaded and on its way to some new use.

When I returned a few days later to pick up my purchase, a new man was already occupying the place–a young dairyman who was obvious during the auction carefully buying the things he thought he needed to get started.

So farm auctions are held and farmers come and go, but farming continues. The equipment may change hands and different people may be doing the work, but the land is still farmed. That's something to think about when you consider the current farm crisis and our long-term continuing need for food.

Deficit cuts "a must" for ag economy, expert says

ITHACA, NY – "Too much is being made about President Reagan's veto of the emergency farm credit legislation," says a Cornell University agricultural finance expert. "That measure was only stopgap, anyway."

"What we need immediately is strong action by the President and Congress that will attack the root causes of agriculture's problems. The battle could be won now; it need not take years," says John Brake, the William I. Myers professor of agricultural finance in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

The legislation vetoed by the President would have provided additional short-term credit to financially distressed farmers. In many cases, the legislation would only have traded government credit for debt that already cannot be repaid by farmers.

"The first step is to bring the budget deficit down substantially," Brake says. "A near-zero deficit is possible within only a few weeks if the Congresss and the President would seriously address the problem. That would immediately drop the interest rate several points. Interest on farmers' debt should then drop to more reasonable rates."

Brake argues that bringing interest rates down sharply and quickly is not impossible.

"If President Reagan and Congress would agree on spending cuts of $60 billion to $80 billion (the President has already proposed cuts of $50 billion), and if they could then agree to $100 billion to $120 billion in tax increases, the expected deficit could drop to near zerp by April first," Brake predicts.

Before the ink dries on any such legislation, Brake says that "interest rates would plummet." He claims that current high interest rates hurt farmers much more than they affect other businesses

"Agriculture is a capital-intensive industry," Brake explains, "and compared to other industries, it requires more dollars invested per worker. Farmers have to borrow to buy land, equipment, and supplies, among other inputs."

The second step in Brake's proposal is to initiate a government plan for agriculture that would put a safety net under farmers without spending the huge sums of money the present price-support system now requires.

In addition, Brake calls for immediate government aid to help relocate and retrain farmers who are being forced out of business. During the next few years, Brake believes that up to one-fourth of the nation's farmers may leave farming.

Borrowing by farmers takes two forms. First, farmers borrow periodically – perhaps every few years for major investments such as land or equipment. Second, many farmers borrow every spring for the spring planting. They then carry that debt until the fall or winter when income from the sale of crops pays off the debt.

"If you or I buy a house or a business, we borrow only occasionally, and often at a fixed rate. We have jobs; we know our income and our payments" Brake explains. "Farmers, on the other hand, must borrow repeatedly just to stay in business. They have no control over the interest rates. Indeed, for many farmers, all of the money they owe, including past debt, is tied to variable interest rates; the rate goes up or down as outside economic conditions dictate."

Tracing much of the staggering $212 billion farm debt to the period from 1977 to 1981, when interest rates climbed sharply from eight to 18 percent, Brake says that it was during this time that the total interest farmers paid on their debt began outpacing income.

As for the government's role in agriculture, Brake says that the government should focus on a stable, long-range plan that farmers can rely on over many years. Such a plan would include disaster relief assistance for farm income maintenance, and short-term aid measures to help displaced farm families.

"Government should formulate an overall plan which would include price supports much lower in cost than today's – so low that they would bail out farmers only in years of drought or other disastrous events," Brake says.

Calling such a price-support program disaster income maintenance, Brake says: "The goal would be to keep good farmers farming in disaster years."

"No one in agricultural circles wants to talk about it, but government cannot shrink from its responsibility to help farmers adjust to life after farming," Brake points out. "Perhaps we do have too many farmers and perhaps we may not need all of them to produce the food we eat."

Farmers forced out of farming, however, are not like other people who simply lose their jobs. Often, these farm families lose their homes as well as their means of livelihood, Brake points out.

Dry it faster. With Beacon Fast-Dry Forage Conditioner.

You'll get better forage—and more of it—out of the field faster. You'll also reduce yellowing of new growth, crop loss, and damage to the forage by weather and equipment.

40 years of proof

Since 1940, Gehl has been building field choppers and forage harvesters with one thought in mind ...performance. And, year after year, thousands of satisfied owners prove that we know how to use that specialized experience to build better machines. Today, Gehl concentrates those 40 years of chopping know-how into three fuel-efficient, high-capacity forage harvesters.

Capacity King 1250. The largest capacity pull-type harvester on the market Gehl's exclusive 24" spinner delivery system keeps forage moving with no cross augers to plug The giant, 9-knife, 25½" cylinder gives a quality cut And the new cutterbar adjustment is the easiest anywhere. In-head hydraulic knife sharpener and electric controls are standard too

New mid-range 1000 gives you the high capacity you'd expect from the big 21" cylinder and fast spinner delivery system Like the 1250, standard features include the in-head hydraulic knife sharpener, adjustable axles, one-way shear bolt protection and attachment down-stop

Fuel saver 750 tackles just about any chopping job Uses less horsepower per ton chopped than many bigger harvesters. Uses less fuel. The 8-knife cutterhead is set into the blower compartment for smooth, continuous material flow Add Gehl's patented in-head hydraulic knife sharpener for even more cutting efficiency

Prove to yourself that there's no substitute for Gehl's 40 years of forage harvester experience See your Gehl dealer soon

Contour strips produce savings

LEBANON — "With planting just around the corner, now is the time to consider putting contour strips on your fields," says Randy McCormack, Soil Conservationist with the U.S.D.A. — Soil Conservation Service in Lebanon.

What are contour strips and how do they save you money? Contour strips are alternate strips of row crops and hay or close growing grain crops.

Contour strips also save you money in various forms. First, contour strips reduce soil erosion by slowing down rain water as it flows down your fields.

Contour strips can reduce soil loss by 50% over farming the whole field in a row crop.

Reducing soil loss by 50% means reducing your fertilizer, lime, and organic matter losses significantly. Trouble is that most farmers can't see most of this erosion since it's lost in thin sheets called sheet erosion or small gullies called rill erosion. In Lebanon County the maximum allowable soil loss, before production is affected, for most soils is 3-4 tons per acre per year.

How much is 3-4 tons per acre? Not much soil considering a dime's thickness of soil over an acre is 10 tons.

This 10 tons per acre loss is barely visible to the human eye. Add to the loss of soil the value of the nutrients like nitrogen ($.25/lb.), potassium ($.22/lb.), and potassium ($.12/lb.), the soil loss value per ton of soil can approach $15-$20 per ton.

For example, a 30 acre field averaging 10 tons of soil loss per acre will lose about 300 tons of soil or $4,500 in value. Contour strips may reduce soil loss down to 3-4 tons per acre per year.

Contour strips also conserve water with the alternate hay or close growing grain strips that act as sponges to the surface runoff. If runoff can be reduced 50-75% with contour strips, increased infiltration of rainfall into the hay and corn strips means more water available during drought periods. A recent ag study concluded that for every inch of rainfall you can save from mid-July on, you-ll get 6-8 bushels per acre more of corn.

Contour strips usually reduce your nitrogen application rates due to the rotation from alfalfa or clover hay into corn. This continual rotation maintains soil fertility and also soil tilth with the incorporation of the hay into the topsoil.

Now is the time to put contour strips on some of your fields! A Soil Conservation Service technician or conservationist will work with you in laying out contours to fit your field slopes and equipment. Call Soil Conservation Service today at 272-4618.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Keys to financial success

You can be whatever you want to be – maybe – if you are realistic. If may also take more work and effort than you are willing to put forth.

Do you want to be a success as a farmer? That certainly is a valid and obtainable goal.

But think about it: are you willing to make those sacrifices that will be necessary? They only start with long hours. After that come the others:

- Low return for the time and effort.
- Making decision after decision.
- Spending time and effort on records.
- Learning to live on a variable income.
- Budgeting income to meet expenses and debt payment needs now, two months from now, six months from now, a year from now.
- Dividing family income from business income.
- Learning how to make decisions as to which investment will give the best return rather than make the best impression on the neighbors.
- Learning to recognize when you have made a mistake, then being willing to make corrections rather than excuses.

Farming today is not the same as it was 20 years ago. Unfortunately those of you who have started to farm in the last ten years must be superior managers or have a lot of backing or have a spouse with a very good job.

If I were to put a grade on the level of management for you to make it in farming, it would go like this:

- Those who started prior to 1960 need a grade of 5 with a 10 being perfect.
- Those starting between 1960 and 1970 would need to have a grade of 6 to 6.5 depending on the type of farm and when and where the start occurred.
- Those starting between 1970 and 1976 would need a grade of 7.5 to 8.
- Those starting between 1976 and the present would have to grade in excess of 8.5 or 9.

Is that fair? No, it is not fair, but what is? Remember, no one ever said that you had to be a farmer.

Repaying debts

Debt Repayment Ability (or D.R.A.) is the key for any farmer or prospective farmer who wants to be a successful farm operator. It does not make any difference how much equity you have in the farm assets, if you cannot generate enough income to pay the debt service you will fail.

Too often a lending agency will lend money solely on the equity value of the collateral offered against the loaned money, without considering whether the farm can pay the loan off or not.

No matter who makes this kind of recommendation, it is WRONG and does no one a favor, even the lender who may be trying to get out of a bad situation. All farmers who truly desire to be successful businessmen in their chosen profession should calculate their debt repayment ability before borrowing one red cent. If it is too late to make this calculation for that first loan, it should be made before the next loan.

D.R.A. is actually fairly simple to calculate. Take your total farm cash income not counting the sale of one-time capital assets such as timber or equipment or land. Deduct from that the total of (cash expenses not including interest + unpaid accounts – prepaid expenses made for next year) and estimated family living allowance. The difference is the amount you can pay on interest and principal (debt service).

Do not co-sign a note or offer your farm as collateral for a loan for someone else, unless you can afford to pay off that note or are willing to risk losing your farm. If you are willing to take the risk because it is your child who needs the loan, you should at least require that person to push a pencil to see if it will work.

There is nothing sadder than to see a parent lose their farm because a child bit off more than he or she could chew. Yes, it may well be the only way that person could get a start, but at least see what the odds are.

Analyze the potential return. For a dairy farm, a top operator can probably handle a maximum of 35% of cash income as debt payment if the family can live on no more than 10% of the projected cash income.

An average dairy farmer can probably handle 20 to 25% of cash income as debt service if the family can live on 10% of cash income.

For crop farmers, use 25% and 17% in place of the 35% and 20-25%. Add in the ability to put 10% of the gross aside in above average years to take care of below average years.

MAMMA signs Georgetown coach Thompson for milk ads

TOWSON, Md. – John Thompson, coach of one of the hottest NCAA basketball team in the country, the Georgetown Hoyas, has been the focus of much media attention as NCAA basketball fever has swept the country. Thompson, a giant of a man at 6'10", whose large frame is only overshadowed by his bigger than life image, has wielded his influence to help promote milk in the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area.

The Advertising and Promotion Agency of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area, was able to sign Thompson just prior to the NCAA playoffs. The timely television commercial featuring Thompson debuted on March 16th and aired throughout the playoffs, capturing the wave of NCAA playoff enthusiasm. Entitled, "The Coach," the 30-second TV commercial, which aired in the Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Baltimore and Washington markets, will resume air play next winter during the college basketball season.

John Thompson is a known milk drinker. Drinking a quart of milk after every Georgetown game is quickly becoming as much his trademark as the familiar towel over his shoulder during every game. John Thompson is a respected coach and teacher, and an outstanding human being. He grew up in Washington, D.C., attending Catholic school where his basketball career began. His parents stressed academics and athletics, the same thing he stresses to his players. Thompson's concern for education lead him to hire Mary Fenlon as academic coordinator for the team. Out of the 46 players Thompson has coached, 44 have graduated from Georgetown University.

Thompson played college ball for Providence College. After a successful college career he was drafted by the Boston Celtics. Thompson decided to quit the NBA after he married and then returned to his native Washington to start a family with wife, Gwen. In Washington, Thompson started to coach a high school basketball team and do volunteer work with local youth groups. Six years later he was selected for a coaching position by Georgetown University.

"We think he is an excellent person to represent our product and our organization," said Dick Norton, MAMMA manager. "We think he will help expand our market. He adds a new dimension throughout our entire marketing area."

MAMMA is a dairy farmer-funded and directed, promotion agency responsible for advertising and promoting milk and dairy products in the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area (Federal Order #4).
